MRS. PHOEBE BOOTH DIED HERE TUESDAY

Mrs. Phoebe I. Booth, widow of Howard L. Booth, died at 2:45 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, at the home of her son, Carl H. Booth, 335 Hazel avenue.

The funeral will be held at the Carl H. Booth home at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, the Rev. Frank Pitt of the Presbyterian church officiating, assisted by the Rev. Henry Seymour Brown of Chicago, formerly the decedent's pastor. Burial will be in the family lot at Columbus, O., where Mrs. Booth formerly resided.

Mrs. Booth was a resident of Chicago and while visiting at her son's home here, last May, suffered two attacks of paralysis which rendered her practically helpless. During the several months until her death she was tenderly cared for by her relatives here.

Phoebe I. Williams was born Feb. 12, 1848, at Radnor, O., a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Williams, and was married to Howard L. Booth, at Columbus, O., in 1880. In 1915 they removed to Chicago. Mr. Booth died at the home of his son in Highland Park, Feb. 8, 1914. It is a coincidence that both he and Mrs. Booth were visiting here when seized by their last illnesses.

There are two sons, Carl H. Booth of Highland Park and William K. Booth of Chicago. Eight grandchildren are living. Other near relatives are two sisters, Miss Emily Williams and Mrs. George Brown of Ligonier, Ind., and one brother, David Williams, Sandusky, O.

Mrs. Booth was a member of the First Presbyterian church of Lakeview, Chicago, for years and active in church and philanthropic work. She had many warm friends and was highly esteemed in the community in which she lived and by those who knew her here, and the family has the deep sympathy of all at this time.

LOUIS K. ANSPACHER LECTURES IN GLENCOE

First of Series Given Last Friday. Much Enthusiasm Is Shown

Mr. Anspacher's first lecture Friday night at the Union Church, Glencoe, brought out a representative North Shore audience which listened as one man to the stimulating and invigorating enfoldment of Evolution of Thought in the development of religion. It took a thousand years for man's intelligence to grasp the fact, that the ignition of two sticks by friction had nothing to do with "sitting on a rock under an oak tree with your back to a beech tree forty rods away from a stream." The advance of progress in thought has been slower than the march of winter through the long spring rains to make summer. The demarkations of advancement stand out like dots in the long century, sometimes grown dim, almost erased by the floods of prejudice and controversy.

"What was good enough for my grandfather is good enough for me," no longer stands the test and pressure of reason. The march is ever forward and there is no surer way to that conviction than a sweeping look backward, which the years of study and research of the scholar lays before us in an hour, enlightening flashes of magnetic eloquence.

Can any of us afford to miss the opportunity to avail ourselves of the privilege brought to our very door so to speak to make our very own this vast store of knowledge?

The next lecture will be Friday, October 20, at eight o'clock, subject "What is Actuality?—The Mediaeval View of Life."
