 The Thanksgiving season is drawing near. By the foregoing statement we do not mean there is a special season for Thanksgiving but rather that this is a season when we should give special thanks to the Almighty for the many blessings we have received from Him. Come to church next Sunday and help us to rejoice in the Lord. There is a pew in our church for you.

FRITZ BAHR AUTHOR OF BOOK ON FLOWERS
 Fine Volume, Handsomely Illustrated; Classic Work on Horticulture
 Horticulturists everywhere know Fritz Bahr of Highland Park as an expert in both the theory and practice of flower growing. As a medal winner and successful floriculture expert he needs no introduction to the trade nor to the people of Highland Park, but both flower lovers everywhere and his friends at home will welcome the news that he has written a book on the subject next his heart, Commercial Floriculture. The volume is of more than 550 pages, handsomely printed and beautifully illustrated and the text is a comprehensive treatise on every phase of flower culture, intended especially for the retail florists' trade, but intensely interesting to lovers of flowers everywhere. Mr. Bahr's reputation as a successful floriculturist is guarantee of the excellence of the book, as he writes from experience in years of familiarity with both the business and pleasure of making two blades of grass grow in place of one, of beautifying old sordid earth with a profusion of floral color and delicate foliage tracery. Mr. Bahr's book promise is a classic in floriculture and should have wide demand among flower growers and flower lovers.

PUBLIC LIBRARY
 It is not only a woman that changes her mind. At the opening of Children's Book Week at the Library on Monday evening, Mr. Ralph Fletcher Seymour, having come to speak to an adult audience and finding fifty percent of the audience wriggling boyhood, changed his mind so capably and brilliantly, that not only wriggling boyhood sat still and listened attentively but the adults were equally delighted.
 His subject was the history of printing, from the earliest times when mankind had the desire and the need for a more rapid multiplication of books, down to these present days when books are so plentiful that no one need be without. He shown a priceless page of the Gutenberg Bible, a beautiful, ornamented page of William Morris' Chaucer, and others of interest. It was a fine opening for the week, and we have every reason to believe that the week will end as well as it started.
 It may well give American business pause to consider that its overhead costs are outrageously high.

A Nice Compliment
 "I want to thank you for your very considerate service and tell you how much I have appreciated it."

The service referred to is the service developed during twenty-two years of experience, a service rendered to all our patrons, large or small, a service which you are missing if you are not a customer of this bank.
