STIMULATE GENIUS NEW COLLEGE PLAN

Also How to Aid Backward Students Being Discussed
By Educators

What, if any, methods are the American colleges and universities using to stimulate genius? This question, and its opposite, how shall the backward student be treated, will be the outstanding topic of a conference in the office of President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern University the whole day of November 28th on the occasion of a visit to Northwestern of Prof. C. E. Seashore, head of the department of psychology of the University of Iowa. Prof. Seashore, who also is dean of the graduate school of that institution, is the famous inventor of the Seashore tests for discovering musical ability.

He is making the rounds of various American universities just now to take up the topic of the gifted student and how shall that student be advanced as rapidly as his qualities will permit.

"It is a large question and most of the universities are thinking very seriously about it," commented President Scott. "At Northwestern we have started by grouping some of the more gifted students together in mathematics but we are only in the primary stages of the work."

Wonder how long it would have taken to develop this country, if the pioneers had been principally anxious for fear they would work too hard.

GET CERTIFICATES FOR WAR SAVINGS

During the war the government offered war savings stamps, paying about 4 per cent as a method of saving for people of small means. Since the war, and to take the place of war savings stamps, the government offered treasury savings certificates in denominations of $25, $100, and $1,000, now sold to investors at $20, $50, $82 and $820, respectively. They pay 4 per cent if held until maturity, five years from the date of issue. About $625,000,000 of War Savings

Stamps, series of 1918, become due January 1st, 1923, and the government now offers to issue treasury savings certificates in exchange for them, affording the owners an opportunity to continue a safe investment with good interest. Saving has furnished the life blood for many nations and insures prosperity to the people. The government is doing everything possible to encourage saving in the United States by offering sound and attractive securities for the investment of small sums. If you want to save, and insure your future, it would pay you to investigate Uncle Sam's Savings System.
