NEW MYSTERY PLAY TALK OF CHICAGO

"Zeno" with Brilliant Cast, Registers Instantaneous Hit at Great Northern

Scoring—according to the dramatic critics of the Chicago dailies—a bigger hit than the far-famed "Bat," a new mystery thriller, titled "Zeno," has soared into immense popularity at the Great Northern Theatre. Spiritualism, the occult, radio, trick scenery and weird lighting effects all combine with a gripping plot to mystify and enchant the audience. Thrill after thrill follows until the capping climax at the fall of the final curtain. "Who is the mysterious Zeno" is already a by-word on the streets of Chicago.

"Better than 'The Bat'—as full of tricks as Houdini—and a genuine surprise." So wrote Ashton Stevens, the eminent dramatic critic of the Chicago Herald-Examiner. Sheppard Butler in the Tribune, said: "Here, folks, is the spookiest of all thrillers—filled with excitement—shudders and gooseflesh galore." The Daily News said: "You bet it's a thriller. Go and then send your neighbor."

"Best cast ever seen in a mystery play"—wrote O. L. Hall, dramatic critic of the Chicago Journal, and predicted a "whirlwind success." The all-star cast includes such Chicago favorites as Edie Shannon, George Nash, James Crane, George Probert, Ned A. Sparks, Helen Gill and others—without question, the finest cast ever assembled for any mystery play. "Zeno" will find you an evening of thrills, excitement and laughs such as you have never experienced in the theatre. The play was written by Joseph F. Rinn, an authority on psychic research and is presented by Lee Kugel. Popular priced matinees are given both Wednesdays and Saturdays.

WILD GEESE AND THUNDER STORM

When the "Honk, Honk" of wild geese was heard across the city last Sunday old residents and amateur weather prophets began to predict an early spring as several flocks of migrating geese were seen winging their way northward, and it is believed this is one of the earliest northward flights in many years. Another unusual weather feature was the bright lightning and loud thunder Saturday night, which is exceptional at this season.
