The seal of approval has been placed on LACO OILS and GASOLINE by the motoring public. Thousands of motor cars and trucks are operated by LACO gasoline and LACO motor oils.

LACO gasoline takes you up the hills on high with a whizz and easiness that will surprise you, and LACO motor oils will keep your car out of the repair shop. Metal parts can't wear when LACO oils are used. They lubricate under the most adverse conditions and are the best oils we know.

LOSES DESPERATE FIGHT WITH DEATH

FRED BOSS FOUND DEAD

Body Discovered on Swift Farm.
Vernon Town; Evidences of Terrific Struggle to Reach Succor

Bruised and battered, with clothing half torn off in a terrific struggle with death, alone in the woods in Vernon township, the body of Fred Boss, 54, farm laborer, was found late Tuesday afternoon on the Sneddon farm of the Swift estate, southwest of Lake Forest, where evidently it had lain for several days.

Boss, who was unmarried and lived with two brothers, Theodore and John Boss, in that neighborhood, had been planting shrubbery on the Sneddon farm and left there about 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, May 1, alone. It was supposed he had taken his usual evening course to a barn where he was in the habit of feeding horses and thence to the home of John Tully, Sr., where he usually took his meals, or to his own home some distance farther.

He was not missed until Tuesday of this week, when Mrs. Tully went to the Boss home to get him to do some work, as he had been employed much of the time in the last eight years by the Tullys. Then it was discovered that he had not been at home, while his brothers had thought he was at the Tully farm.

Finding of Body

A search was instituted and the body was found by John Corr of Everett, who followed the customary route taken by Boss toward home. The body lay 120 rods from the road and far from any dwelling, deep in the woods, where persons seldom passed and about it were evidences that the man had suffered some sudden seizure or mental derangement and though not disabled had lost sense of direction and had crawled backward and forward striving perhaps, in agony, for days to reach succor. Portions of his clothing were in several places many rods apart and in the pocket of his khaki trousers was found his money, amounting to $193.11. This and the fact that none of the numerous scratches and bruises on his face, arms and legs were sufficient to cause death made it clear that there had been no foul play for robbery or other reason.

Inquest Held

The body was taken to the Wenban undertaking parlors in Lake Forest, where an inquest was held by Coroner Taylor of Libertyville at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, before a jury composed of R. E. Wood, foreman, Charles Fitzgerald, Fred Wenban, Aubrey Warren, H. L. Hamer and B. Van Amersfoort. Witnesses were J. Corr, who found the body; Theodore Boss, brother of the dead man; William Sneddon, superintendent of the Swift farm where Boss had worked, and John Tully, Jr., son of the man by whom Boss had frequently been employed.

All the witnesses testified that when they last saw Boss he was in good health and spirits, that he had never been ill nor had suffered any kind of attacks, as far as known, and none of them could account for his death, except that probably he had suffered a sudden seizure of some sore.

Dog Attempts Rescue

From the condition of the body it was believed the man had fought death for perhaps days, and a slight confirmation of this belief was seen in the testimony of William Sneddon, who reported that his wife had told him of the strange actions of their shepherd dog on the Thursday following the Tuesday on which Boss had left. The dog was apparently excited and would run off in the direction of the place where later the body was discovered, and while no particular attention was paid to his actions at the time, Mrs. Sneddon remembered them in the light of later developments. It is thought that Boss may have still been alive at that time and that the dog was endeavoring to bring him aid.

The Verdict

The verdict returned by the jury was that Boss "came to his death from exhaustion after becoming mentally deranged and wandering around in the woods on the Swift farm, in Vernon township, Lake county, Ill., for an unknown number of days."

LOCAL BOWLERS IN STATE TOURNAMENT

Next Sunday will tell the story whether or not Highland Park bowlers will land state honors this year. More than 20 men from this city will compete in the team, doubles and singles events in the state tournament in Chicago.

Two teams, the Majestics and the Highland Sweets of this city, rolled last week, and the only scores to land in the prize lists were the fine 617 total of Tony Lencioni and the 600 of George Rudolph. The doubles mark made by R. Greenslade and T. Clark will get their entry back.

As the bowlers are listed in the doubles at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, they will have to leave early in the morning on a limited North Shore train in order to make connections. "Duck Pins," the great bowling game, will be put on two alleys at the Majestic next week. The small ball rolled with the pain of the hand is used.

Physical Consolidation

We beg to announce to the patrons of the bank and to the general public, that the physical consolidation of the Highland Park Trust & Savings Bank with the Highland Park State Bank has been completed and all business is now being conducted in the banking room of the Highland Park State Bank, pending the remodeling of the bank building on the corner of St. John's and Central Avenues, which will be completed about September 1st and which will then be used for the permanent home of the Consolidated Bank.
