EVANSTON GARDEN MARKET OPENS SAT.

GARDEN CLUB IN CHARGE

Products To Be Displayed at Raymond Park; School Children to Exhibit Gardens

The Evanston Garden Market held under the auspices of the Garden club of Evanston has become an annual affair. From its small beginnings some eight or ten years ago it has grown to such proportions that it attracts and serves, not Evanston alone, but the whole North Shore; and no garden-lover considers her garden entirely launched each spring hereabouts until she has visited the Market and filled all the bare spots in her winter ravaged beds from its plenty.

As usual the Garden Market will be held in Raymond Park in Evanston on Saturday, May 19th. The park paths will be lined with gay booths set forth with tempting wares; the accessories table will be replete with baskets of all sorts, trays and colored napery—everything to make a luncheon or tea served al fresco a delight to the eye; garden furniture, both wooden and concrete will suggest that out-of-door living which is fast becoming an American habit; the donations-table will contain bits from the best gardens in Evanston and all the florists will be there in full display with their best potted plants ready to take home and sink in your garden looking for all the world as if they had always lived there. There will be bird-houses for every bird that likes a house, bird-baths and feeding tables. There will be an information booth where wisdom may be had in large or small doses, and where one may rest for a moment and enjoy the scene. The posters which advertise the Market have been drawn and painted by the children of the Evanston public schools as part of their regular art work and do great credit to that course, and their plasticine model gardens will again compete for attention with the real flowers across the path. These model gardens of the children have shown such remarkable interest and ability in the past that the Garden club, with the consent of the school authorities, are offering two sets of prizes in money for the best gardens entered in the Market display. There will be first and second prizes for both fifth and sixth, and for seventh and eighth grades. The judges will be Mr. Earl H. Reed, Jr., Mr. Meyer J. Strum and Mrs. Harrison B. Riley.

Last and perhaps most interesting will be the booth devoted to refreshments. Americans are beginning to learn the charm of eating al fresco and the tables spread under the trees of Raymond Park and shaded by gay umbrellas will tempt the smallest appetite. The "eats" served at the Garden Market have become celebrated on the North Shore: The Garden club salad and spring salad vie with the corn-beef hash; the coffee is delectable and the ice-cream perfect. In short, no one was ever known who could resist the charm of a Garden club luncheon under the trees served by the ladies of the club aided by the Girl Scouts.

The entire North Shore is invited to come Saturday the 19th and enjoy the Garden Market.

QUICKSILVER OUTPUT IN U. S. IS REDUCED

Some Mines No Longer Producing and Others in Small Quantities

Preliminary figures showing the production of quicksilver in the United States in 1922, compiled by F. L. Ransome, of the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, give a total of 6,497 flasks, of 75 pounds net, as compared with 6,339 flasks in 1921, which was the smallest annual output in the 72 years of recorded production of domestic quicksilver. In 1922 California produced 3,494 flasks, Texas 2,725 flasks, and Nevada and Oregon 278 flasks.

Production Small
In California four mines were productive, but the output from all but the New Almaden group was very small. The New Idria mine continued non-productive but the old Redington or Boston mine at Knoxville, Napa county, which has lain idle for many years, yielded some quicksilver and will probably be a larger producer in 1923, as a rotary furnace has been installed. In Texas the Chisos mine, in the Terlingua district, Brewster county, yielded more quicksilver than any other mine in the United States. The Mariscal mine, near McKinney Springs, in the same county, was also productive. Prospecting was in progress at the Waldron mine, in the Terlingua district, 95 miles south of Alpine. In Nevada the only production recorded was made from deposits in the Pilot Mountains, east of Mina, in Mineral county. The output from Oregon was practically negligible.

Average Price
The average price of quicksilver in 1922 per flask of 75 pounds, as calculated from quotations by the Engineering and Mining Journal-Press, was $8.95 for New York and $7.78 for San Francisco. The price declined from $51 New York and $50 San Francisco early in January, to $48 New York and $47.30 San Francisco in February. From the first of March the rise was fairly steady to $74 New York and $71.30 San Francisco at the end of the year.

The tariff act of 1922, which went into effect on September 21, placed a duty on imported quicksilver, of 25 cents a pound equivalent to $18.75 a flask. At the end of the year the directors of the great Almaden mine, in Spain, where extensive improvements have been in progress, reduced the price of quicksilver at the time to the equivalent of about $45 per flask.

LONELIEST ISLAND IN WORLD IS FOUND

DISCOVERED BY EXPLORER Described in Story of Last Expedition of Shackleton; Is Situated in Center of South Atlantic

In a recent issue of the Journal of the Royal Geographical society appears Commander Frank Wilde's report of Sir Ernest Shackleton's last Antarctic expedition in the Quest. One of the outstanding features of the account is its description of that lone island in the middle of the South Atlantic known as Tristan d'Acunha. This is one of the most isolated inhabited places in the world. The expedition paused there for a few hours and learned that a Japanese vessel which had called a month before was the first vessel the 137 inhabitants had seen in a year and a half. In the way of material things, the Japanese ship had given the islanders nothing except a package of picture postcards, all of them colored views of Fujiyama. But from the vessel there had been landed two missionaries, the Rev. and Mrs. Martin Rogers, and in the short time that had elapsed Mr. Rogers had already started a Boy Scout troop. He had also created a school, "the boys and girls attending Wilde in age from about four to forty years."

INHABITANTS PEACEFUL

The people are moral, peaceful and long-lived. They have "no headman, no laws, no taxes, no goal and no police." They have neither alcohol nor tobacco. Their one crop is the potato, but they have cattle and poultry. Their twenty houses are infested with rats and fleas. Far out on the beaten track of vessels, they are always in want of all that the civilized world has to give them. But they are sturdily self-reliant, and they have to be.

"We are as near heaven by sea as by land!" cried Sir Humphrey Gilbert on the night his vessel founded in the North Atlantic. There are countless souls in the lonely places, the world over, who feel themselves forever in "their great Taskmaster's eye," though not within hail of fellowmen. Those who dwell amid the fleshpots of civilization, cannot understand the satisfaction a Grenfell or a Martin Rogers or a Yukon bishop finds in ministering to those who are said to be "so far from everything."

A RAILROAD TICKET and a KODAK

The railroad ticket is a very necessary part of the vacation equipment, but it is not to be compared with the value of a KODAK in taking pictures before you start, en route and after you get there. Do not fail to be equipped with a KODAK. A vacation, no matter where you go, cannot be completed without the means of taking clever pictures, which afterwards supply tangible evidence of faces you met and the places you visited. A KODAK costs but little.

VAGRANT DOGS ATTACK FARMER NEAR EVERETT

Two stray German police dogs attacked James Dawson, a farmer residing near Everett, Friday of last week, when he attempted to rescue two cows which they were tearing to pieces, and he had a narrow escape from being killed by the infuriated beasts, it was reported today.

James Dawson took a shotgun and started in pursuit of the dogs, when they turned upon him. The attack was so sudden that he had a terrific fight with the infuriated beasts before he could get into a position to shoot. He finally managed to shoot one of the dogs, wounding it, and besting the other.

Thomas Dawson saw the dogs attacking a herd of cows and called to his brother, James Dawson to drive them off. The dogs had driven the herd until two of the cows had become exhausted, and the dogs had bitten one of them very badly.
