MACHINE-SET POLES FOR ELECTRIC LINE

The digging and pole setting machine used by the company has been actively on the job in district "A" in construction work on important lines. One of these latter is a new 12,000-volt tie line connecting the station bus at the new Waukegan generating station with the present bus at the present station there. This will be connected direct at the new station to the bus but through a transformer bank will be stepped down to 4,000 volts to tie in to the bus at the pressure station No. 1. About three-fourths of a mile of this line is underground. This section consists of 500,000 CM cable. The remaining two miles constitute a 40-foot class A pole line with two circuits of 250,000 CM wire.

Where Poles Were Set

The poles were set in sand and swamps and a few poles in an old dump so that ancient bed springs and other such articles were encountered in the digging. A large part of this line was strung in over a live 4,000-volt feeder, making the work more interesting.

The transmission lines leaving the new station on the private right of way are two 25-foot class A lines each with two circuits of 000 wire. One of these continues on the right of way to Lake Bluff, where it will tie in to the line, one circuit feeding south to Evanston and the other into the Lake Bluff sub-station. On this line it was necessary to clear the right of way of several dense patches of trees and brush. The line also went through swamps where it was necessary to build bridges and make fills in order to get the digging machine in.

The other line turns south where the right of way crosses the North Shore Line and follows it south, one circuit picking up a line at Belvidere street, feeding west through Grayslake to Crystal Lake and Barrington, the other line extending on to 14th street and tying in to the line to Lake Bluff. On this line 200-foot spans are used on the right of way.

Digging Machine Used

The digging machine was used on these two lines, setting poles up to and including 50-foot class A poles with double arms and insulators on at the time. The first poles were received and work started July 24.

Another pole setting machine of the same type is at work in line building in the western section of the territory. This is the first one acquired and results gained with it led to the addition to the company's equipment of the other whose performance is described above.

COOLIDGE ATTITUDE TOWARDS BUSINESS

INDICATED BY SPEECHES

Extracts From His Utterances Before Becoming President Have Bearing On This, It Is Believed.

President Coolidge's attitude toward Business is indicated by the following extracts from a number of his speeches before he became president, reprinted from the Electrical World:

Industry, thrift, character are not conferred by act or resolve. Government cannot relieve from toil. It can provide no substitute for the rewards of service.

Ultimately, property rights and personal rights are the same thing.

We have reached the age of invention, of commerce, of great industrial enterprise. It is often referred to as selfish and materialistic. Our economic system has been attacked from above and from below. But the short answer lies in the teachings of history. The hope of a Watt or an Edison lay in the men who chipped flint to perfection. . . . The hope of tomorrow lies in the development of the instruments of today. The prospect of advance lies in maintaining those conditions which have stimulated invention and industry and commerce. The only road to a more progressive age lies in perfecting the instrumentalities of this age.

Let us dismiss the general indictment that has all too long hung over business enterprise. While we continue to condemn, unsparringly, selfishness and greed and all trafficking in the natural rights of man, let us not forget to respect thrift and industry and enterprise. Let us look to the service rather than to the reward. Then shall we see in our industrial army, from the most exalted captain to the humblest soldier in the ranks, a purpose worthy to minister to the highest needs of man and to fulfill the hope of a fairer day.

We have had many attempts at regulation of industrial activity by law. Some of it has proceeded on the theory that if those who enjoyed material prosperity used it for wrong purposes, such prosperity should be limited or abolished. That is as sound as it would be to abolish writing to prevent forgery.

There is just one condition on when men can secure employment and a living, nourishing, profitable wage for whatever they contribute to the enterprise, be it labor or capital, and that condition is that someone make a profit by it. That is the sound basis for the distribution of wealth and the only one. It cannot be done by law, it cannot be done by public ownership, it cannot be done by socialism. When you deny the right to profit you deny the right of a reward to thrift and industry.

Taxes must be measured by the ability to meet them out of surplus income. Industry must expand or fail. It must show a surplus after all payments of wages, taxes and returns to investors. Consumption can call once, then all is over.

"DOES IT PAY" IS COMING TO MONROE

The Monroe theatre has booked "Does It Pay?" for the week commencing Monday, October 8. This Fox special production deals with a phase of life which touches close to the dangers besetting the home. The plans of a designing young woman to take the place of the faithful wife of an elderly millionaire are laid bare and the consequences of a man's folly are revealed with compelling truthfulness.

The author of the story is Beatrice Doyakie and the direction was in charge of Charles Horan. Many of the scenes take place in unusually handsome interiors, of which those placed in the home of the millionaire husband are most lavish. At the lead of the cast of skilled players is Hope Hampton. In the character of the fascinating, but unprincipled, second wife of the millionaire, she is given an opportunity to do some of the strongest acting of her career. Robert T. Haines has the leading male role.

TREMENDOUS GROWTH OF OIL REFINING

Production Trebled but Demand For Automobile Uses of Oil Greater

Since 1909 crude oil production in the United States has trebled, but where in 1909 there were 588 barrels produced to each motor car on the road, in 1922 there were only 45 barrels to each motor car. Performing the phenomenal feat of tripling the crude oil supply has not been the only factor in satisfying the automobile's appetite for gasoline.

The science of refining oil has been revolutionized, and the laboratories of the petroleum companies are continuously engaged in the practical development of further inventions to increase gasoline yield and preserve the crude oil.

The people who won't take any part in politics because it is so corrupt are finding fault about the men that got elected to office.

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS FROM LAKE COUNTY

NEIGHBORHOOD JOTTINGS

Happenings Here and There About North Shore; Doings At The County Seat and Elsewhere

The Waukegan Woman's club opened its 1923-1924 season last week with a luncheon at the Methodist church. During the luncheon the club was entertained by a number of musical selections and recitations.

Obie Johnson, 25 years old, an employe of the Liberty Engineering company was fatally injured last week beneath the wheels of a five ton truck belonging to the company while returning from a construction job in Gurnee. He died 20 minutes later in the Lake County General hospital, where he was rushed after the accident.

Bending back iron bars over a window, forcing the lock from the outside and entering a space about two feet by four feet wide, robbers last week entered the J. H. Peterson and company's men's furnishing store at 113 North Genese street, Waukegan, and carried away thousands of dollars of new overcoats, suits and $60 in cash that had been left in the cash register.

William Hoban, of Gurnee, had the thumb of his right hand almost severed when he caught it in the blades of a silo filler while helping fill the silo on his farm. He had been sharpening the blades when someone started the motor.

Fear that Alex Hein, well known Waukegan merchant who now is residing in Germany where he has erected a palatial home, might lose all of his rather extensive fortune through confiscation by the German authorities apparently was without basis for Mr. Hein now writes to friends that his fortune is safe. He says living costs are rising and he may return to Waukegan.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Dunakin of Waukegan celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last week.

Excavation is to be started at once for the construction of a $50,000 store, office and flat building, by Elias Feinstein, Waukegan, to be located on the east side of Genese street, just north of Lake street.

A. F. Dilger of Waukegan, suffered a painful injury to his right hand when he accidentally caught it in a saw with which he was cutting wood. One of the fingers were torn off by the teeth of the saw.

NOVEL SCHEME TO DETERMINE CREDIT

A friend of mine who used to sell talking-machines by mail-order hit on a simple method for finding out which persons he might trust, writes Fred Kelly in The Nation's Business.

On receiving an answer to his advertisements, he wrote to the inquirer asking for the name of his family physician, as reference. If this name was forthcoming, my friend shipped the talking-machine without further ado. He never even bothered to write to the family physician. His reasoning was this: People always pay the doctor last. If a man will give his doctor's name as reference in a mail-order transaction, he surely doesn't owe the doctor any money. And if he doesn't owe the doctor he probably doesn't owe anybody. Hence, presumably, he is a fair risk for a talking-machine or other goods on credit.
