APPLES

We are now picking the fruit from our orchard located one mile west of Highland Park.

The flavor of these apples is superior to any grown in western irrigated orchards and much better keepers.

We sort them as we pick them and barrel them in one handling.

We will discount the cost of storing them, if ordered now, for delivery direct from the orchard.

P. T. A. OF ELM PLACE TO OPEN OCT. 22

Program Committee Plans For Season; Mr. Smith Presents Work Plan

The why of a Parent-Teachers association was discussed most earnestly at the first meeting of the program committee of the Elm Place P. T. A. the other evening, and it was decided to make the meetings this year conform as closely as possible to the two ideals of such an organization, namely information and co-operation.

The fact that fathers are included under the term "parents" may come as rather a surprise to many of us who have been used to the traditional afternoon meetings. This year a definite aim of the association will be to include the fathers in the activities, and to this end many of the meetings will be held at night.

The date of the first meeting has been changed to Monday evening, October 22, as it was found that Friday evening was not a convenient night for the teachers, many of whom are away for the week-end. At this first meeting Mr. Smith will present the plan of work at the Elm Place school since parents must first be in possession of all the facts before they are able to co-operate effectually. There is a general impression throughout the community that the Elm Place school is an unusually fine example of what a school should be. It certainly possesses many attractive features not usually included in a public school. Perhaps most unusual of all is the fact that the children enjoy going to school there. Just how this result is accomplished the association will hear on October 22nd from the man who is most of all responsible for it. An unusually fine feature of the program will be songs by Mrs. Arthur Byfield.

Following this opening presentation, in November it is planned to turn the meetings over to a discussion of school health. Dr. Morley D. McNeal will lead the discussion, presenting some of the essentials which contribute to the health of a school child. The members will be urged to ask questions and enter freely into the discussion. Dr. McNeal is a child-dreper's specialist who has lived among us two years, before which he was associated with the Mayo Clinic under Dr. Helmholtz whose first assistant he was in organizing the department of pediatrics there.

The December meeting will be a Christmas-entertainment with carols by the children.

It is planned to engage some eminent speaker of national reputation for one of the meetings following the New Year, and at the other regular meetings the work of various departments will be presented and full opportunity given for questions and discussion.

A "Parent Night" is also planned at which as many of the parents as possible will have an opportunity to speak on some aspect of the school nearest their hearts. A mimeographed copy of the events at the last meeting will be mailed to every member shortly before each meeting that they may be kept in touch with the discussion in case they were not able to be present, and every effort will be made to make each meeting a step forward in intelligent co-operation between the school and the home. Save the third Monday evening in each month and come. It will be worth your while.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE NEXT WEEK

IN CHARGE OF THE ELKS

Highland Park Quota is $1,500, And Expected This Sum to Be Easily Raised; Outline Plan

Plans are being completed for the annual Salvation Army fund drive in Highland Park, as part of the great national campaign to be conducted during the week of Oct. 15 to 22. In this city the campaign is in charge of the Elks lodge, and Howard Moran is chairman of the committee named by the Elks to direct the drive. The quota sought here is $1,500, and it is expected that this sum will be readily raised.

It was through the service rendered in the great world war that the people, as a whole, really discovered the Salvation Army. Strange as it may seem the Salvation Army does not ask their representatives to stress the work done in the war.

The army argues that it only did its patriotic duty and was but following the lines of service for which it had always been renowned. Its representatives desire emphasis to be laid on the fact that they are still in the field and are doing business at the same old stand where they have been found for nearly half a century.

Step in Advance
But it was soon apparent after the war, that they must take a step forward in the matter of organization if they were to meet the demands made upon them. The war work greatly advertised them, hence the demands upon their service were increased accordingly.

As an expediency in rendering this larger service, county advisory boards have been organized in practically every state in the union. Men and women of all creeds and faiths serve with equal acceptability and these boards are proving a mighty adjunct to the Salvation Army in its increasing battle against the ills of society.

New Program
This new program was born in January 1920, and although a new feature in the Salvation Army, the ends sought through it were not new. Through these advisory boards, the Salvation Army places its fully developed machinery at the disposal of each community for service. The populous centers are obviously the festering points of distress and the work of the Salvation Army was, at first, confined there. It was found, however, that the remedial measures should go further.

Extends Scope
So through these county boards the smaller communities and countryside now have a service that could not be rendered without the co-operation of the interested citizens of each community, who take a deep and abiding interest in the moral status, as well as the economic advancement of their cities and counties.

For the smaller service that the citizens can render to them they give the last full measure of devotion. As a matter of fact the citizens of each municipality are but helping the Salvation Army to do their own local work.

All cannot be emergency workers, but all can aid the Salvation Army and enable them to carry on their beneficent work in the community. They don't pretend to do everything but there are certain phases of work in which they are unexcelled. Their service is a challenge to the aid given them in any community.

The main campaign dates for Illinois this fall are Oct. 15-23. However, some of the committees are already starting in advance of the state dates, in order to finish the work speedily.

EVANSTON WOMAN MAKES APPEAL TO LOCAL "Y."

A woman in Evanston called Mrs. Searcy last Tuesday saying the Y. W. C. A. at Ellis Island had helped her when she came to this country about ten years ago and now her niece was coming over, she wondered if they would perform the same kindly office for her.

The following night letter was immediately dispatched, much to the relief of the aunt and shows the opportunity for service.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION CLASSES AT ELM PLACE

Open October 16 and 17; List of the Churches and Teachers

The Highland Park Council of Religious Education announces the formal opening of the work on October 16 and 17, at the Elm Place school. Classes will be held from 8:30 until 9:15 a. m. The 5th and 6th grades meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and the 7th and 8th grades on Wednesdays and Fridays. By arrangement with the Elm Place board of education and the teachers of the school, pupils who enroll in these classes may enter their first period at 9:25. The Council of Religious Education will pay the Elm Place school board for the use of the class rooms necessary, thus complying with the Illinois statutes regarding the use of schools.

The work will be conducted along denominational lines, and a room at the school will be assigned to each group. The school is open, not only for the children enrolled in the Sunday schools of the churches concerned, but for those who have no church connection. Their church preference may be stated upon the enrollment card or they may get in touch with the pastor of the church preferred.

The co-operating churches and the list of teachers follows:

Trinity Episcopal—The Rev. Philip P. MacDonald, teacher.

United Evangelical—the Rev. F. R. Cardwell, teacher.

Zion Evangelical Lutheran and Zion Lutheran (Highwood)—The Rev. William Suhr, teacher.

Ebenezer Evangelical—the Rev. Joseph Keagle, teacher.

Highland Park Presbyterian and Grace Methodist Episcopal—Miss Olive Putnam, teacher.

It is the aim and purpose to conduct this religious school in the same degree of efficiency as that of the public school. The same methods of instruction and the same means of maintaining discipline will be followed. The Council hereby expresses its appreciation of the hearty co-operation of the school board of Elm Place and its principal, Mr. Jesse L. Smith.
