UNDER THE EAGLE'S WINGS

What a wonderful experience it is to be alone, absolutely tomorrow in honor of Mrs. George alone, in the depths of a virgin forest! Deep in the woods, where Campbell who is leaving in a few the moss is thick and soft under foot, where the dense foliage is al- weeks for California, where she will most impervious to the sun's rays, where the tall pines and the spend the winter. oaks and maples tower with clean boles far into the air, their lofty tops holding a mass of foliage against the sky seen in patches at intervals through the thick canopy of leaves. How silent it is! The peace of "God's first temples" rests the tired soul, and the week-end guests Masters William and faint breeze stirring in the tops of the tall pines is like the diapa- John Brin and Stanley Heir, three son of a distant organ,

Sometimes the wanderer through dim woodland vistas finds deep in the heart of the forest a spot where the great trunks are farther apart and where, away above him, the wide vault of heaven looks down more frequently through the tree-tops. Sunbeams pierce the gloom, and the carpet of green is flecked with a marvelous mosaic of light and shadow. And while he rests awhile impressed with the calm of that silent place, suddenly a shadow The Rev. P. C. Wolcott, D.D. Rector sways across the sylvan landscape. He almost feels it as it The Rev. Philip W. MacDonald, M.A. passes, and he looks up to see soaring away above there in the blue a mighty eagle, with giant pinions outspread between him Sunday servicesand the sun, while traveler and all about him are held for a moment in the shadow of those outstretched wings.

And the thought comes, with the eagle up there, watchful, strong and unafraid, that in much the same way every American holy communion). wandering through the tortuous paths of the world, where darkness and light alternate, where troubles lurk and dangers threaten, should be able to feel above him the protecting wings of the communion-9:30 a.m. great American eagle that represents the power of his country's arm to succor and to save. There have been times in the past when Americans in foreign lands have looked in vain for the safety they might have a right to expect in their citizenship, times when the fact that they were Americans could not save them from abuse and death.

This must not be. REASON FOR THANKSGIVING

What a spectacle the world presents! Russia in ruins; Germany on the verge of disaster; France striving to safeguard her future and get reparations for her devasted area; England staggering under a burden of taxation and unemployment; Greece, Jugo-Slavia and Italy in ferment; China torn by civil war; Japan STATE OF ILLINOIS, County of laid waste by a double catastrophe of earthquake and fire.

We are the possessors of a continent of vast resources, with a population small enough to be supported in comfort. We are protected by thousands of miles of ocean from possible rivals; we have no age-old heritage of hate; our problems can be met with good heart.

There is not a worker in America, not a business nor professional man, not a mother, nor a child, who should not thank God for a lot cast in this favored land.
