DESCRIBES VISIT TO THE POOR FARM

North Shore Resident Tells of Things Seen and Heard at This Institution On A Recent Call

The following regarding the county poor farm appeared in last week's Libertyville Independent. It was written by a resident of this vicinity:

The early hours of Sunday, Dec. 15, gave strong indications for a beautiful balmy day. The sun's rays added heat enough to cut the coolness of the air, thus making a motor trip quite enjoyable. With a party of friends decided to take a spin over Route 22, and from this route branch off anywhere fancy pleased.

Landing at Half Day at 12 noon, we found the distance covered, by actual reading, 105 miles. Our appetites were somewhat keyed up, so we decided to lunch. After partaking largely from a well supplied table, headed north over a beautiful section of the country, and newly finished concrete road to Libertyville, passing through the village north.

Attractive Surroundings Our attention was attracted by a well kept lawn, and on a well elevated hill, by nature's formation gradually sloping to the southwest and west, stood and old, old building. Recent years indicated new additions.

Our curiosity was aroused to such an extent that one of the party suggested that we stop and try to purchase some fresh country butter and eggs.

We made our way to the house and after ringing the door bell a lady, in personality that makes a very strong impression of character, and kindness, answered the call. The writer made known the wants of the party, but was informed that this is an institution for the Lake county poor, however, inviting us in and introduced us to the superintendent (her husband) Mr. Philo Burgess, who extended to us every courtesy (for which the party wishes to thank him), describing every condition, every improvement in the main building of the home, which gave strong indication of manifest interest in the welfare of the lucky unfortunates of Lake county, who total 63—43 males and 20 females—to be sheltered in such pleasant surroundings.

Tour of Place Follow me as we followed Mr. and Mrs. Burgess, the real mainstays of the institution and home for Lake county's poor:

As we stepped into the hall of this institution, Mr. and Mrs. Burgess cast a ray of sunshine on all the inmates' faces a cheery word here and a parting remark there, was of no unusual occurrence.

Let us now go to the laundry. Here we find everything modern—6 large tubs, recently installed, full of soiled clothes soaking to make ready for Monday's 5 o'clock wash. Adjoining the laundry is a large drying room, nicely ventilated with wire attached to a turnbuckle. The clothes are hung as on a clothes line and the turnbuckle tightens the wire.

Now let us step into the bakery, where a number of the latest improvements have been made, and on sanitary lines. Large ovens that bake 60 loaves at each baking.

Now into the dairy, where cream is saved for the butter, which is made by this institution. Every can and vessel is sterilized and left in the fresh air. Not one remnant of dirt can be seen and everything is beyond reproach.

Now come with me to the stables and outbuildings.

First, the stable with teams of horses, which show plainly that they are well cared for, in keeping with every condition. The feed is cleaned by an automatic process.

The cow barn has been recently remodeled. All these buildings have cement floors. We find a number of beautiful cows in their stanchions.

Now to the chicken coops, where every detail has been studied through advice from the agricultural department at Washington, D. C., which Mr. Burgess followed closely, and has led out a successful production of eggs.

Now to the woodshed. Here we find every splinter that shows up on the ground neatly piled by inmates, who like to apply themselves to a little work.

Now to the work shop. Here we find available tools for all kinds of trades, and Mr. Burgess has adapted his energies in applying himself to meet all emergencies.

Next the store room. Here hanging to the joints we find plumbers' and steam fitters' fixtures that have been salvaged, cleaned and oiled ready for emergency.

Large Garage Next the great big garage recently arranged for the care of machinery during the winter months.

Now to the root cellar, specially arranged and full to the brim with supplies for the winter, which were raised on the farm.

Ding! Ding! There goes the bell. Let us go into the dining room. Seated at long tables in a well lighted room, the inmates are enjoying a dinner of soup, meat, bread, butter, coffee or milk, and judging from appearances all are contented. The invalids who cannot go to the dining room are served in their rooms.

I wonder how many Lake county residents have visited this institution to judge for themselves the horror of "Over the Hills to the Poor House" or to measure its grandeur by the hard work of Mr. and Mrs. Burgess to make it a real home for unfortunates? I must not forget to mention six Christian young men with musical instruments, going to the chapel to preach the gospel and entertain those poor unfortunate souls.

The leap year custom recognizes the fact that there are plenty of old bachelors who would be glad to get married if some one had the courage to ask them.

Throat trouble is said to be common now, owing to the difficulty people are having in swallowing their taxes.

Although I am whole-heartedly in favor of legislation which will provide in the most liberal manner for the generous care and compensation of every disabled World War veteran, I am strongly opposed, as a matter of principle and good citizenship, to the granting of a Federal bonus to able-bodied Ex-Service men. I therefore wish to be enrolled as a member of the Ex-Service Men's Anti-Bonus League.
