NORTH SHORE BUS
ANOTHER BUS LINE

Route Extends West From Waukegan to Woodstock; Begin Next Spring

Announcement is made by the North Shore Line of a new motor coach to cover a thirty-three mile route almost due west of Waukegan. Service on this line will begin some time in the spring.

About ten White motor coaches, similar to those now operated by the North Shore Line on their Waukegan to Kenosha trip, will be used. The new route will start at Waukegan and go through Grayslake, McHenry, and end at Woodstock.

Obtain Permit
 Permission from the various villages to operate this new line, as well as from the Illinois Commerce Commission, was obtained several months ago but at that time it was not stated just when the new line would be put into operation.

It is believed that when this line is operating that it will open up a rich territory for Waukegan as it will make the city much more accessible to the people of the rural communities. Then too it will make the lake region more accessible to Waukegan and the north shore.

New Line
 At the same time announcement is made by the North Shore Line that construction of a branch of the North Shore Line to run west from Howard street, Chicago, will be started within a few weeks. This statement is made by Britton I. Budd, president of the line.

The new line will start at Howard street, at the present elevated and run west to Cicero avenue, and will be extended north to Dempster road.

Rights of way have been obtained and surveying is under way, which is the first step in a $5,000,000 program for another north shore route from Chicago to Waukegan, running west of the present route. This announcement corroborates previous statements and bears out reports that have been circulated for a long time.

MELLON IS MYSTERY
IN MANY RESPECTS

Puzzle to Many Why Man of So Great Wealth Works Hard In Cabinet Job

It is a mystery what satisfaction Mr. Mellon, the secretary of the treasury, gets out of public life. His self-effacing modesty—it is more than modesty, it is shyness—is apparent at first sight. His features proclaim this quality more than any other. His slender figure suggests it. If Mr. Mellon is one of the richest men in the world, he certainly has not used his money to fatten his frame. The spare figure, the unobtrusive dress that would go with a shopkeeper or a clerk, the thin blond face, all compose the picture that old-fashioned folks used to describe as a "picketed chicken."

One wonders about his motives and his personality altogether. Here he is, within three months of 70 years of age. He could command the ease that most elderly men desire, the ease that most of us think we are storing up for our own late sixties by working and saving.

If it is not ease and freedom from incessant care that appeals to Mr. Mellon, he could command any sort of concrete satisfaction, any sort of pleasure that the material world affords. He could travel, he could play; he could surround himself as Mr. Rockefeller has, with the comforts and pleasures, and have isolation and repose. He could buy newspapers and take to the full pleasure of impressing his ideas on the world. That is what appeals to Mr. Ford.

Nor can one guess readily just what that untiring mainspring may be. Possibly he got going in the early days when he was a hard-working clerk in his father's bank—and just keeps on going. One would prefer to think it is something more than that, something more surely productive of a higher satisfaction to a man who, so far as one can surmise, seems to deserve the highest.—Mark Sullivan in McNaught's Monthly.

Congress has not passed many bills yet, but a large number have been introduced and pigeonholed.

Poverty is a terrible evil, but some folks consider that work is a greater one.
