CREPE RUBBER IS MORE WIDELY USED

IS FAVORED IN ENGLAND

Material Adaptable for Various Purposes, Including Making of Rugs, Shoe Soles and the Like

The bulletin of the Rubber Growers Association of London details some interesting facts on the increasing uses to which crepe rubber is being put, says The Christian Science Monitor.

The Northampton boot trade is very much alive to the necessity of its members keeping abreast of the times in this respect. In a trade notice it calls attention to the fact that crepe rubber to the boot trade is an absolutely new material requiring special treatment.

Few boot repairers understand how to repair crepe rubber soles and the use of it is increasing so fast that a repairer who does not understand its replacement or repair will be out of the running.

Crepe rubber rugs are now on the market. These, too, are made up in the East on the estates where they profit by the cheap native labor. They are, of course, both air and wet proof. Inquiries have also been made for crepe flooring, stair-carpet, and so on. For a bathroom or scullery this covering should be ideal.

The crepe sole had its initiation during the war. There was an embargo on manufactured rubber, and planters in the East who could not obtain the ordinary vulcanized soles turned to and made extra thick crepe which they stuck on their tennis shoes. They soon found out its wonderful wearing qualities, and experiments quickly produced the most satisfactory way of getting the right thickness and corrugation.

The peculiar gristly texture which gives the wonderful wearing quality is obtained by special milling of the rubber on the same day that the crude latex issues from the tree.

So far it has been found difficult to color the crepe, but an invention is in course of preparation for coloring the liquid latex before it is coagulated on the plantation.

The crepe sole has surely come to stay. Not long since the War office ordered 40,000 pairs of canvas shoes with crepe rubber soles, and tenders are out for repeat orders, while the Post Office are also testing them for postmen. It is estimated that more than 2000 tons of rubber have been used for soles purposes.

CHERRY SISTER IS AFTER MAYOR'S JOB

One of Famous Team in Vaudeville 20 Years Ago Wants Political Office

Miss Effie Cheery, one of the vaudeville team which convulsed theatre audiences two decades ago, wants to be mayor of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and she will bring the same earnestness to bear on this ambition that she did in her stage career.

Miss Cheery probably will not have such deterrents as vegetables, ancient eggs and other merchandise to combat, as she did when she was at "Proctors" in New York with her two sisters in their debut. The most important plank in her political platform is that curfew shall ring for everyone at 9 p. m. She also will seek strict law enforcement and pure drinking water for the city. The tidy fortune contributed by howling moas who came to see, now howl, but how badly she and her sisters could act, had been dissipated in unfortunate investments, and she is managing a bakery here.

The Little Red Schoolhouse is said to be disappearing, but its graduates are constantly being heard from.
