SAND DUNES ARTIST AT OSSOLI CLUB TUES.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dudley give Recital-Lecture: "Art in Painting and Song"

A recital-lecture, "Art in Painting and Song," presented by Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Dudley of Chicago, was given Tuesday March 25th at half past two before the Ossoli Club.

Clad in an artists smock of dull green, with palette and brush, the distinguished "sand dune artist" brought to his audience a realistic impression of a sketching trip, including the determination of a subject, planning the composition, then making the actual sketch. Preceding any creative effort, Mr. Dudley touched upon the importance of art to daily living in a brief talk on initiative studio life.

He said: "No artist can paint a picture greater than himself," declaring that the greatness of a picture is measured by the completeness of understanding within the heart and mind of the painter, and emphasized the fact that spiritual insight alone carries faithfully the true message of nature. Mr. Dudley spoke at length on the importance of technique, which he defined as mere facility with tools and which cannot stand alone.

From speaking of art in the abstract, Mr. Dudley turned to the concrete, which was the bare canvas to him, and, while he proceeded through the creation of different stages in his picture, Mrs. Dudley in a charming soprano voice delivered a group of ten unusual songs with equal art and spontaneity.

Tea was served by the social committee, following the lecture.
