

SETTLEMENT MADE IN DAMAGE SUIT

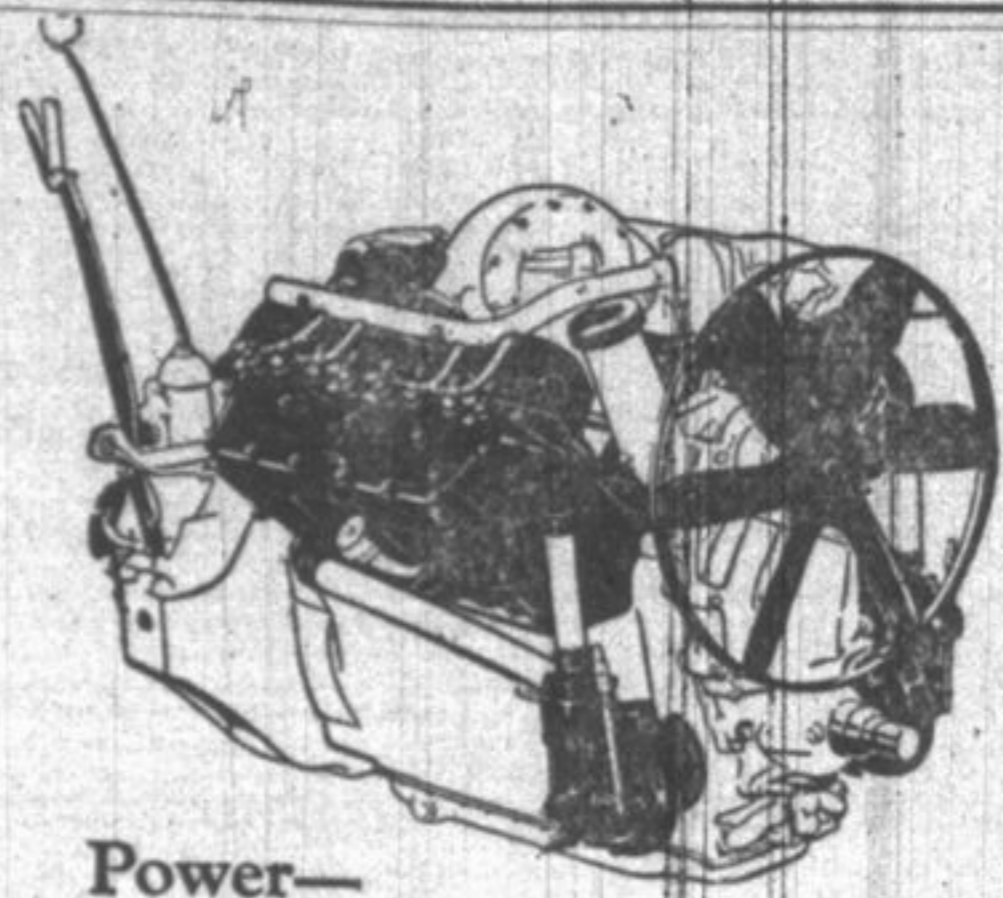

Co-ed Hurt Near Sacred Heart in 1920 by Collision Gets $2500

Mary Smith of Racine, Wis., a student at Northwestern University in Evanston who sued the Great Lakes

Fruit company of Waukegan for $25,000 personal damages received in a wreck that occurred at Sacred Heart station back in 1920 when William C. Dettman's auto, a Great Lakes Fruit truck and a North Shore line limited got all tangled up, has settled out of court for $2,500.

The accident occurred when Dettman's car, was struck by the fruit truck, thrown onto the right way of the North Shore Line and the Dettman car was struck by the Limited train, derailing the train and injuring many persons beside wrecking the Dettman car. Eight lawsuits followed, many against the Fruit company, some against the North Shore line and some against Dettman, who is a Milwaukee man.

Railroad Operation — An Intricate Problem

EFFICIENT operation of a railroad is a problem which requires the ability and energy of specially fitted men — qualified by experience and training.

Every department—traffic, operating, engineering, maintenance, safety and clerical—must coordinate like clock-work to result in a transportation system which will prove an asset and convenience to the communities it serves.

The policy of the North Shore Line of fitting every employe for the position has developed a healthy spirit of cooperation between the employes and management which is well reflected in the quality of North Shore service.

And the ability of the North Shore Line to keep abreast of the pace and demands of the territory it serves is a tribute to the industry and faithfulness of its employes.

The North Shore Line is the direct route between Chicago, Milwaukee and intermediate points. There is a train whenever you want one.
