FOREST PROTECTION WEEK THIS MONTH

Week of April 20 to 27 To Be Thus Observed According To This Plan

Forest Protection Week for 1924 has been designated by President Coolidge for April 21-27, inclusive, announces the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

In his proclamation, President Coolidge calls attention to the appalling losses that occur each year from forest fires, and urges all citizens, either in association or as individuals, to protect all wooded areas from fire. Governors of many states will issue proclamations supplementing the one issued by the President, and Arbor Day in several states will be observed during Forest Protection Week.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and W. B. Greeley, Chief of the Forest Service, have many times emphasized the importance of preventing forest fires, about 36,000 of which every year sweep 11,000,000 acres of land.

Secretary Wallace has stated that eight out of every ten forest fires result from human carelessness and will not happen once the public is brought fact to face with the serious losses these fires cause. These losses fall especially heavy on the American public since the United States uses more saw timber than all other nations combined.

Chief Forester Greeley says it is not difficult for everyone to be careful with fire while in wooded areas. Here are simple rules which if observed will go far toward reducing the appalling number of man-caused forest fires reported every year: Be sure your match is out before throwing it away; Don't throw cigars, cigarettes, and pipe ashes along the roadside; Build small camp fires away from brush and small trees; Never leave your camp fire unwatched; Make sure your camp fire is dead—then bury it; Keep in touch with Forest Rangers and Fire Wardens and report all fires you may see, no matter how small; Be as careful with fire while you are in wooded areas as you would be in your own home.

Claimed the American people do not sing enough, but some folks make quite an effort after imbibing home brew.

If the congressmen don't do something pretty soon, the fact that they served in this congress won't help them much to get re-elected.

Claimed the country is getting a taste for reading, and anyway the back yard goats are chewing up some newspapers.
