PLANT RED MAPLES, SAYS NATURE EXPERT

Jesse L. Smith Urges Value of This Native Tree As Beauty Factor

The red maple is in bloom now. This is one of our native trees that is not so highly rated as its beauty deserves. Now while the woods are still bare the blossoms of the red maples are furnishing a pleasant glow to the landscape. The staminate blossoms are on one tree, the pistillate on another. The latter are a bright red, the staminate, a gold-orange. It is worth the while taking a walk about certain parts of our city to enjoy this spectacle which will last well into next week. A considerable part of the beauty of some of the fine yards of Highland Park is due to this tree. It is a moderate sized tree, its stems often occurring in clumps like those of the linden. The warm gray of its stem makes a very pleasing effect upon the winter landscape. A spray of blossoms in a vase is one of the finest decorations of the season. The red maple might well be raised for its use in spray bouquets. The silver maple, or soft maple, as it is generally called, should not be confused with the far more beautiful red maple. The former has dull colored blossoms, both kinds on the same trees. These appeared two or more weeks ago, and the greenish colored seeds with their attached wing-like blades are already maturing on the tips of the twigs. The silver maple grows more rapidly than the red maple but that is all that can be said in its favor. It lacks the color in early Spring when color is at so great a premium and in beauty of stem and foliage it is much inferior to the red maple. Something can be said in favor of an introduced maple, the Norway maple, including a variety of it which has rather gaudy masses of reddish-brown foliage, but we can well afford to give preference to our own native maple so well established here before clearing away the forest here to make room for human habitations.

Some of us are promoting a "drive" to begin restoring the red maple to our local landscape. It is probable that in the past twenty years less than a dozen red maples have been planted in all of Highland Park. So from natural causes and building plans this maple is rapidly diminishing. It is as yet difficult to get specimen trees from nurseries, so we must content ourselves with seedlings a foot or two high. These can be planted as shrubbery and cultivated until large enough to set on lawns or parkways.

As a practical evidence of his interest in this matter, Mr. Fritz Bahr has paid for a shipment of 1000 seedlings which Mr. Clarke Smith and the writer are distributing through the school children as Mr. Bahr's gift to this city. This letter is written to make public acknowledgment of his generosity and to try to stimulate interest in this beautiful native tree. JESSE L. SMITH.

M. A. FARMER KILLED UNDER BIG TRACTOR

struck a large stone jolting the driver from the seat. As he came down the spring seat threw him up again, and he evidently lost control of the machine and was thrown upon the wheel to the left which carried him under as it turned, crushing his chest, breaking his wrist, arm and shoulder and fracturing his skull.

He was placed in a touring car and rushed to a hospital, where Dr. Grady was called and everything possible done to save his life. His injuries, however, were mortal, and he died in about 20 minutes after reaching the hospital, and without recovering consciousness. The verdict of the coroner's jury was that death was accidental as described.

Born in 1902

Michael A. Farmer was born in October, 1902. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Farmer, his wife, formerly Miss Margaret O'Leary of Lake Forest, whom he married about two years ago, and one brother and one sister, John T. Farmer and Mrs. Martin Olson. There are no children. This is the second child of the Farmer family to meet an accidental death. The oldest daughter, Elizabeth, was killed 13 years ago at Hubbard Woods, when she was run over by a train while on her way to the parochial school there, in which she was a student, then aged 14 years. The young man killed Saturday was the youngest of the family.

Funeral Tuesday

The funeral service was held at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, at the Immaculate Conception church, Rev. Dr. O'Neil officiating, and burial was in the Mosney cemetery.

The family has the deep sympathy of their many friends in the sudden and sad bereavement. Young Farmer was a skilful engineer, industrious and successful and had a host of warm friends in the community who are deeply grieved at his death.

The man who thinks that the newspapers should be more active in attacking the evils of the community, are often unwilling to write a letter to the newspapers over their own signature.

These super power schemes are all right, but this country can't get along without muscle power also.

Germany has just one objection to the reparations plan, and that is that it does not want to pay up.

The next question is as to how long the girls can keep bobbing their hair without glutting the wool market?
