Insurance

In All Its Branches

Life insurance is the only medium through which the contingency of death may be anticipated and discounted. No other known plan offers the same or even similar advantages, or accomplishes the same ends. In some form and in some measure life insurance applies to all, whatever one's circumstances or condition in life may be.

If you are a married man, life insurance will enable you to leave your family an estate, even though you do not live to earn that estate.

If you have a son or daughter, life insurance will guarantee their support and education after you are gone.

If you do not wish to own a home, a Monthly Income from life insurance will pay the rent.

If you are a business man, life insurance will strengthen your credit because it protects the creditor.

One of the outstanding features of the vacation trip of President Coolidge, who has just returned from a two weeks' stay at his father's farm in Vermont, was the visit of Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison and Harvey S. Firestone.

On their annual camping trip, these three geniuses of industry and invention called upon the President on an automobile tour through New England, and for several hours discussed with him various problems and conditions. All three of them assured him of their hearty support of his candidacy for election.

The chief topic of conversation was the future prosperity of the country. The three camping companions assured the President that in their opinion

"Conditions in this country will continue to grow better so long as the farmer is prosperous," he said.

"He is the barometer by which to judge conditions. His is the basic industry of the country, and the one on which the continued improving prosperity of the country depended upon the condition of the farmers. Agriculture must prove profitable for America to continue prosperous, they said.

"I think times are getting better, and for sound agricultural reasons," said Mr. Ford.

Interviewed during his call upon President Coolidge, Mr. Edison said: "We'll have great prosperity if the corn does not get nipped and crops in general are good."

Mr. Firestone declared that the farmer was the keystone of American prosperity.

After leaving the President's farm Mr. Ford, Mr. Edison and Mr. Firestone continued their tour through the Green Mountains, stopping now and then to talk with the people of rural New England and view the countryside. They spent the early part of their vacation at Mr. Ford's Wayside Inn, at South Sudbury.

Before visiting the President, Mr. Ford played host to 5,000 New England farmers at his Wayside Inn estate at South Sudbury, Mass. With Mr. Edison and Mr. Firestone he supervised a plowing and agricultural demonstration and invited the Farm Bureau Federation to use his grounds for its annual gatherings. On the same day the Holstein-Friesian Association gathered at Mr. Firestone's old homestead in Columbiana county, Ohio, for its annual picnic, as the guests of Mr. Firestone, who sent his son, Harvey, Jr., to welcome them in his absence.

In unveiling a war memorial recently general Sir Ian Hamilton said: "There is no getting over the fact that tragedies make good copy and that goodness makes bad copy. Therefore a feeling of hopelessness comes over the man who wishes to point out to his fellows the wonders and beauty of peace."

In the year 1907 China enacted the most spectacular moral reform in history. To free themselves of the opium slavery they plowed up the poppy on a million acres of land, closed up 500,000 opium dens, and old smokers stacked up their pipes in the market places and burned them.

A committee from the American Bar association, after examining the law courses of twenty-five of the leading schools of the country, reports that in only nine of them is a study of the Constitution compulsory, and in two of these attention is given only to the purely commercial or legal value of it.

CAN'T BUILD BIG PLANTS AT MINES

Lack of Water for Condensation in Many Instances Would Prevent Use

Electric power plants of large size cannot be built adjacent to coal mines, unless the latter are located on or near rivers, affording a constant supply of pure and cold water sufficient to meet the large condensing requirements. Electric power plants require from 400 to 600 tons of water for condensing purposes for each ton of coal used in the plants.

Furthermore such plants, as a rule, cannot be constructed at the mine mouth in such a way that coal can be hoisted directly from the mine to the plant's coal bunkers. In most cases, the coal would have to be handled and transported some distance.

In addition to this handling charge, which cannot be avoided, the expense of bringing such a vast volume of condensing water to the plant would be far greater than the cost of transporting the coal to a location where ample water was immediately available.

The Prince is Here

The Prince of Wales, young man of many falls from horses, arrived in New York last week, lunched with President Coolidge on Saturday, and is now being lionized by N. Y. society as he attends the international polo matches on Long Island.
