~and Even If Mother Had a Dozen Hands~

She wouldn't be able to operate the heating plant properly without automatic control

Every day is "busy day" at home, work for many hands, every moment crowded full. Regulating the heating plant adds another great burden, one that means frequent interruptions, trips to the basement and no little worry.

This added task of heat regulation by hand is so unnecessary. And it's utterly impossible to keep the temperature at the right level, even with a dozen hands. That's why the Minneapolis Heat Regulator. The "Minneapolis" takes complete charge of dampers, drafts or valves. Operates them automatically to maintain exactly the temperature you want. Prevents over-heating and under-heating. If you are buying or building a home, be sure it is Minneapolis-equipped.

Easy Payment Plan

A small down payment puts the "Minneapolis" in your home. You don't have to wait another day for this convenience. Easily and quickly installed on any heating plant burning any fuel. Visit our local factory branch. Or phone or write for complete information and free booklet, "The Proper Operation of the Home Heating Plant," giving many simple rules for saving fuel. Why not do it today?

ST. JAMES' CHURCH, HIGHWOOD

Preparations for the annual bazaar for the benefit of St. James Church, Highwood, are rapidly nearing completion. It has been decided to hold the bazaar in Sant's Hall on November 12, 13, 14, and 15. Mrs. A. J. Walsh has been chosen as the chairlady; she is assisted by Miss Alice Curley, Miss Tessie Johnson, Mrs. Wm. Dooley, Miss Katherine Kenry, Mrs. F. N. Williams, Mrs. R. O'Connor, Mrs. Morren, Mrs. Santi, Mrs. Muzik, Mrs. Denzel, Mrs. Quinn and the Messrs. A. J. Walsh, George Quinn, and Charles Mordini. The sectional chairladies are Mrs. Morren, Mrs. Gilkinson, Mrs. Zahle, Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. Muzik, Mrs. Brenner, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Leonard, Mrs. Denzel, Mrs. Dooley, and Mrs. H. Liske.

On Thursday afternoon, Nov. 13, a card party will be a special feature and in the evening an elaborate chicken dinner will be served. Friday afternoon will be reserved for the children. The numerous articles which will be disposed of on the various evenings will form an attractive background for social features which have made these affairs such a great success in the past.

The splendid spirit of general cooperation which has been manifested by those in charge of the affair gives promise of a great success and it is hoped that by this means a new era of progress will be assured for St. James' Church.

NORTHBROOK PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Sunday evening service will be discontinued until the church building is completed sufficiently to permit such meetings to be held here.

The church is being finished with its stucco walls this week and the plasterers will begin work on the interior. It is hoped that the building will be finished for occupancy by the first of December. Its plan as now revealed proves to be a real addition to the attractions of the village. The sound of the old church bell will be welcome and very few communities will have as fine a toned announcer for religious gatherings.

The Ladies' Aid society will hold a bazaar, as it has done in previous years, on December 6. Suitable things for Christmas presents will be on sale and a wee bit of coffee can be had with cake and such.

The bulletin board purchased by the Ladies' Aid will be in position this week at the corner of Church and Shermer avenues.

Mrs. Berry gave a fine address at the morning services last Sunday, on the work and meaning of a Presbyterian Board of Education.

Morning service at School hall at 11 o'clock, Bible school at 9:45, Milton Haas, supt.

Bible study class, Friday evenings.

The people are urged to face the facts, but they frequently put on rose colored glasses before doing so.

QUESTIONS OF PUBLIC POLICY

Two important questions of public policy will be presented to the voters of Illinois at the general election, November 4. One is the proposition for a bond issue for $100,000,000 to continue hard road building without suspension, the bonds to be paid off by accumulated automobile license fees spread over a period of years. The question really is, shall a hundred million dollars in auto license fees be anticipated and five thousand more miles of hard road be constructed in the next four or five years, or shall the roads be built no faster than the annual license fees come in, taking of course years longer to complete the same mileage?

The other question of public policy to be submitted to the voters is the "gateway amendment" plan, designed to make the fundamental law of Illinois less difficult to alter. Under present conditions no more than one amending proposition can be placed before the voters of the state at one time. Several times in recent years amendment of the constitution, especially in its revenue provisions, has been urgently demanded, but generally in such instances there have been offered two or more bills before the legislature, one blocking the other because of the provision admitting vote of the people on more than one amendment at a time.

The legislature finally agreed to submit this proposition for an amendment of the article of the constitution on amendments, so as to permit, if the proposition carries on Nov. 4, as many as two proposed amendments to be submitted to the people hereafter by one legislature.

These are important questions and every voter should express his sentiment regarding them by voting one way or the other on November 4.

A CATECHISM FOR LA FOLLETTE

Editorial from the Chicago Evening Post, Sept. 22, 1924: Elsewhere on this page today we print a communication from a reader, Mr. E. R. Hart, composed wholly of questions addressed to Senator La Follette. (This communication also is reprinted on another page of this issue of The Press.)

Not one of these questions is put to the radical aspirant to the presidency without just reason. Each finds its basis in his record, platform or public utterances. They are questions the senator will not be able to answer without embarrassment to himself—without, indeed, disclosing the inconsistencies of his position economically and politically. We do not expect the senator to attempt an answer to them.

La Follette's only method of escape from the many dilemmas which are involved in his effort to embrace all the discontent and dissidence to be found in the United States lies in generalities of denunciation and impossible promises. He covers with the rhetoric of the demagogue the conflict of theories and futility of proposals which characterize his program.

Mr. Hart's interrogations penetrate beneath this surface cover and display the absurdity and emptiness of La Follette's claim to popular support. We commend this catechism to the study of our readers and to the consideration of those of both the Republican and Democratic parties who are campaigning against the Wisconsin senator's heresies. Its wide circulation in so-called La Follette territory should prove of great value.
