TEST LONG DISTANCE LINES EACH MORNING

To Determine Condition of All Wires in Preparation For Day's Business

Early every morning before most people are ready to give serious thoughts to the problems of the day, a test is made of the main groups of the long lines of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, all the way from Boston to San Francisco, from Duluth to Key West. Each of the twenty-three district offices makes a test of the long distance lines within its territory. The test begins between 5 and 6 o'clock in the morning when the lines are least busy.

The object of this early morning test of the nation's highways of speech is to determine the condition of the wires and to find out if the plant is ready for the day's job. When the general plant manager at headquarters in New York City arrives at 9 o'clock, he is at once informed of the condition of the long lines wires all over the country.

If the operators on trying out the lines find any trouble, they refer the matter to the toll wire testers, who, like magicians, sit at their offices, probe into the wires with their delicate instruments and tell within a few feet where a wire is tangled or broken. They become so expert that their ears often suffice and by merely listening in on a wire can estimate the location of the trouble.

Because of the early morning test, the toll operator can accept a long distance call with confidence that she will be able to offer a clear circuit to a distant city, and the operator at the other end knows she will be able to complete the call successfully if the person desired is anywhere near a telephone in her territory.

RADIO TERMS LIKE THOSE OF SEA TALES

Many of Names Used Borrowed From Nomenclature of Sailing Ships

Days of the clipper ship and white sail are pleasantly recalled by that newest wonder, radio, in the nomenclature used by radio station operators.

The necessity for ship-to-ship and ship-to-shore communication perhaps furnished much of the incentive to develop radio. Nearly all radio-casting operators have been to sea as ship radio operators. And it is natural that in the control room at KGO, the General Electric Pacific coast station, visitors are inclined to feel as if they are on board ship from remarks made by operators.

Here operators refer to the floor as the "deck." Walls are "bulkheads," and windows are called "ports." Operators do not work so many hours; they simply "stand watches." Standing the "600-meter watch" means to listen in with a special receiver during the time KGO is on the air for SOS signals from ships in distress.

The book recording transmission and changes of apparatus is called the "log." There is no clock in the KGO control room. Instead there is a real ship's "hack" chronometer, all rigged up in gimbels to take care of the swaying of the ship, in the regular little brown mahogany case.

Even the record of the chronometer's variation is called the "chronometer log," which means the "daily rate," which means the daily loss or gain in fractional seconds. Even radio listeners often hear over the air the ancient bos'n's warning, "stand by!" In the studio control room "G M Time" is shown, that is, the KGO chronometer shows time at the meridian upon which Greenwich, England, stands, and from which mariners compute time and position on the earth's surface.

When Christmas Comes You Will Want Your Home to Look its Best

We are making this offer to get acquainted with the many people who have recently moved to Highland Park. We want them to know from experience the superiority of our work. For the next thirty days we are, therefore, making an allowance of one-fourth off the regular price on all Cleaning or Repairing of either Oriental or Domestic rugs and carpets.

In cleaning rugs many concerns remove the sizing with the result that the rug becomes limp, wrinkling easily. As our method does not weaken the sizing, the rug will always lie flat. Repairing is also handled by experts, men who have made Oriental rugs themselves. They spend patient hours, replacing broken threads, that the original Pattern may be preserved. Our Guarantee of Satisfaction is based on these facts.
