PIRATES CAPTURE PARENTS AND SON

BOY WINS THEM FREEDOM

Missionary's Lad Gains Goodwill of Chinese Rovers Who Shower Him With Money; Report

Two years ago Miss Olive Probasca, of Fayette, Iowa, a graduate of Upper Iowa university, was married to William W. Overholt, of Indianola, Iowa, a graduate of Iowa State. Both these students took graduate work at Northwestern university where in their study of the history of religion and related topics they found much of common interest. One of their favorite professors was Dr. Edmund D. Soper, professor of the history of religion at Northwestern university. Olive won her master of arts degree from Northwestern in 1923 and Mr. Overholt his master's honors the following year. The two were married in 1923 and a son, born about a year later, was named Edmund Soper Overholt.

Likes The Chinese
The boy's nickname is Ned and after he had been taken to China, where mother and father have gone as missionaries of the Methodist church, the little lad developed a tremendous fondness for the Chinese. He was never happier than when a Chinese coolie or other servant was playing "bear" with him and went trustfully into the arms of a Chinese nurse with gurgles of delight. Recently Mr. and Mrs. Overholt and Ned started for Foochow from Shanghai upon a flatbottomed steamer. All fell sea-sick within a few hours but their troubles were increased when a band of Chinese pirates suddenly rushed from the hold of the ship, shot down the pilot and overcame the crew and terrified the passengers.

Captured by Pirates
"It took the pirates about an hour and a half to go through the boat," writes Mr. Overholt to Dr. Soper. "They systematically went through the pockets and baggage of the Chinese, got a manifest of the ship's cargo and picked out what they wanted from that. There was a shipment of silver sycee of the American-Oriental bank of $130,000. One Chinese woman lost $10,000 and total loot was somewhere around $200,000."

Mr. Overholt, with others, had been put under guard in the cabin; his wife and Ned had remained quietly in their stateroom. The father, a bit worried, finally got permission to bring Ned up on deck. Out on deck the pirates placed a rather ferocious guard over the missionary and the child. Sea-sick and fearful that their money and valuables would be lost, none of the passengers, Overholt wrote, knew what was to happen next. Then little Ned did his work.

Makes Friends
"While we were waiting for Olive to get the things for Ned, the little fellow had been smiling at our Chinese guard," writes Overholt. "Ned is very fond of all Chinese and had already learned to like the cabin boys on the boat. His smiles won our guard's heart. The fierce oriental face broke into laughter and the guard reached into a bulging pocket and pulled out a handful of money, part of his loot. I pushed his hand away as I felt a missionary shouldn't accept tainted money. But the guard insisted and went so far as to dump the money on deck in front of Ned, and so we picked it up. Ned, then, had a good souvenir of the affair, a little over two dollars that we are now saving for his college expenses at Northwestern university."

There was a satisfactory climax when the pirates took none of Mr. and Mrs. Overholt's valuables and gave them no hurts. They were, however, huddled into the ship's dining room for a matter of two days until the steamer reached a certain lonely island when the pirates took quick leave. One of the last things the Chinese guard did was to go up and say good-bye in Chinese to little Ned.

SCORES TOO MUCH EFFICIENCY DOPE

Noted Professor Says Education Should Aim at Growth Of Mind and Soul

"Efficiency" and the schools that train for it are the objects of a severe arraignment in the January Scribner's magazine at the hands of Frederick E. Bolton, dean of the college of education of the University of Washington, and author of a number of books on educational subjects.

"The ideal of training for efficiency in the gainful vocations is crowding out all other ideals," he writes, "and its dominance means danger. Efficiency in a gainful occupation as an ideal unmodified by higher ideals means selfishness and sordidness. That ideal of efficiency is tending to crowd out all opportunity for fostering the development of altruism and all the finer sentiments that are contributory to it."

"The dollar-sign has become so thoroughly accepted as the sign of success and efficiency that whenever a successful man is mentioned, the automatic inquiry is likely to be: 'How much is his salary?' 'How many shares of stock does he own?'

"How many railroads or corporations does he control?" The men who voluntarily engage in some occupation regardless of financial remuneration and solely because it offers opportunity for service are rare indeed. Witness this in the decreasing number who enter the ministry, teaching, and certain fields of authorship. Also witness the same tendency in the tons of driveling stuff that is published in magazines, books, and newspapers under the name of literature. This last certainly indicates efficiency in studying and catering to the perverted instincts of a certain reading public. But what about the soul growth and expansion of the writers and the intellectual and moral benefit of the readers?"

BOYS COMPETE IN FLYING CONTESTS

Model Airplanes Used and U. S. Lads Are Invited to Meet French Youth

Local boys may compete with boys of Paris, France, in flying miniature airplanes. The Chicago Y. M. C. A. have radiographed a challenge to the boys of Paris for a contest in flying. Raymond Poincare, former Premier of France, has written Terence Vincent, director of the miniature flyers, approving of the projects and expressing the hope for "the development and retention of friendship of the children of our two nations" and hoping that the proposed international contest "will fortify international concord and universal peace."

William E. Schweitzer, Armour institute, of station 92W at 4264 Hazel avenue, sent the following radio message to the Y. M. C. A. of Paris, on behalf of the Chicago Y. M. C. A. "To foster international good will, Chicago challenges Paris to boys' miniature airplane contest. Letter follows. Glenn D. Adams 19 South La-Salle street."

The plan is, according to Mr. Adams, for the Chicago "Y" to conduct tryouts for the week ending January 31 at each of the ten local departments. These tryouts will be open to all boys in Chicago and suburbs who have not reached their fifteenth birthday, and who wish to compete. The contest will be for indoor duration of flight for planes not exceeding twelve inches in length or width and powered with rubber strands. Each contestant will be allowed to fly his plane officially three times and the total time will be his score. Each plane must be complete made by the contestant.

Plans for making an indoor duration plane may be obtained from the Miniature Aircraft Fliers, 746 Monadnock block. A self-addressed, stamped envelope sent there will bring an answer to your query.

RADIO NOW USED IN FAR BOMBAY, REPORT

Small State Making Rapid Progress in Other Modern Improvements

Rajkot, comparatively a small state in the Bombay presidency, covering an area of 282 square miles, enjoys peculiar advantages owing to its central position in Kathiawar. Under its enlightened ruler it has made progress in various directions and notable advances have been made of late particularly in the introduction of wireless telephony among the states of Kathiawar.

A wireless installation with a loud speaker was established at Rajkot a year ago, and is reported to be functioning satisfactorily. It serves as an important adjunct to the network of ordinary telephones which link the principal villages of the state.

WOULD BE CHEAPER

"The portrait painter charged me $1,000 to do me in oil," said the man who had just cleaned up in the stock market. "You get off cheap," replied the man who had been on the losing side. "In the future I think I'll have my dealings with a painter instead of a broker."
