ROSEHILL MAUSOLEUM

To provide families and individuals with a sumptuous and permanent memorial—that was the purpose in the erection of the Rosehill Mausoleum. It is serving today as the trusted repository for many who recognize mausoleum burial as the most enlightened form, and The Rosehill Mausoleum is one of the most perfect in existence.

An ample trust fund, constantly increasing, and a perpetual charter are two vital assurances of the Rosehill Mausoleum's everlasting security.

A limited number of Memorial Rooms are still available; single crypts, arranged in varying groups; and family sections of five compartments.

An inspection may be arranged at any time, and cards of admission obtained at the cemetery entrance.

LIBRARY NOTES

Mid Pots and Pans and Kettles. The kitchen is always with us—summer and winter it's always the same, someone has to plan the menu, do the ordering, prepare the food and serve the meals. But the funny thing about it is that so often the housewife, even when she prides herself on being efficient and up to date, gives so little thought to the aids which can be had for the asking. We mean books! There are so many good ones in print today that it seems a pity that every housewife does not appropriate a tiny bit of her time to consulting books on cookery. Your public library has a great many books on the subject. Think how much easier kitchen work would become if one were to borrow from the library some of the following:

Lucey G. Allen—Choice recipes for clever cooks.
Helen Kinne—Foods and household management.
Mary A. Donahay—The calorie cook book.
Edna S. Tipton—Table decorations for all occasions.
Marion C. Fisher—Twenty lessons in domestic science.
H. C. Sherman—Chemistry of food and nutrition.
A. W. Biting—Canning and how to use canned food.
L. F. Cooper—The new cookery.
Fannie M. Farmer—Boston Cooking school cook book.
Fannie M. Farmer—What to have for dinner.
Christine T. Herrick—The chafing dish supper.
E. E. Kellogg—Healthful cookery.
A. G. Kirk—Practical food economy.
Anna J. Peterson—Simplified cooking.
Amelie Langdon—"Just for two"
Sara T. Rorer—Vegetable cookery and meat substitutes.
Marion Harland—The dinner year-book.
M. E. Evans—My candy secrets.
L. G. Allen—Table service.
Claudia Q. Murphy—History of the art of tablesetting.
Mildred H. Crew. Librarian.

DEERFIELD

The Deerfield Men's club party last Tuesday evening was a splendid success. Mr. Gary of Brierhill was master of ceremonies. Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Pettis, Mrs. R. B. Patterson, Mrs. Auston Plagge, Louie Meyers and Ira Hole won prizes at cards. Prizes for dancing were awarded Mr. A. C. Stader, Mrs. Eugene Ender, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Woods and Mrs. C. W. Getty.

A masquerade will be given at the Wilmot school by the Progressive club on Saturday evening, Feb. 7. Masks will be sold at the door. Good music and refreshments will be provided.

There have been eight cases of small-pox reported in Deerfield. Mrs. Herman Dubert is ill.

Robert Pettis, who has pleuro-pneumonia, passed the crisis Saturday afternoon and although still very ill is on the road to recovery. Dr. Davis, the family physician, called Dr. Byfield of Highland Park in consultation Friday evening and the same morning Dr. Wylie of Glenoe used his diathermy electric machine on his lungs. The previous day Dr. Lanphere of Highland Park was called in on emergency, so with the assistance of a very capable graduate nurse, Miss Helen Smith, of Evanston, everything possible was done for him to bring him through the crisis.

SOME TAX RELIEF

Brokers' statements appear not to be well understood either by the Bureau of Internal Revenue or by taxpayers. Because of transactions in stocks and bonds during 1920, a taxpayer concluded from his broker's statement that he had sustained a loss of $10,300. The commissioner of internal revenue deliberated long over the same statement and said the loss was $2,000, and that the taxpayer should pay forthwith a "tax deficiency." The taxpayer went to the board of tax appeals, for the benefit of the bureau and the taxpayer, which computed painstakingly the different items of loss as shown in the brokers' statement, and showed the loss was $9,700.

This is not the only way, says the Nation's Business, in which the board of tax appeals is coming to the aid of taxpayers. In a recent case the commissioner of internal revenue contended that a taxpayer should not be permitted to raise before the board questions he had not raised before the bureau. The response of the board was that a taxpayer may bring into proceedings before it any matter that is relevant to the liability to tax, since the board has the function, independently of the Treasury and every other governmental agency, of getting at the real facts and applying the law to them. Besides, the board has announced that it considers it has power to decide, not only what the tax should be, but whether or not a penalty assessed by the commissioner in connection with a demand for additional tax is justified.

PROTECTION FOR BIRDS

Sixty-four bird refuges are administered by the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. These are located from Porto Rico to Chumisso Island near Kotzebue Sound on the Arctic coast of Alaska, and to the Hawaiian Islands. Some of these are celebrated breeding places for wild fowl, and each breeding season are occupied by marvellous colonies of interesting species. The maintenance of these refuges is the principal insurance against the extermination of some of our most beautiful and attractive birds. The Biological Survey takes steps in connection with each of them to render conditions favorable to the birds. Thus, on Laysan Island, where hundreds of thousands of albatrosses and other beautiful sea birds rear their young, it was necessary about a year ago to destroy the rabbits which were eating the vegetation on which the birds depended. At Big Lake Bird Refuge, Ark., a number of hollow nesting boxes were put up for the tree nesting ducks, and headlights used in fishing were prohibited on the lake because of their disturbance to the wild fowl nesting there. At Clear Lake Bird Refuge, Calif., more than a mile of woven wire fence was built across a point jutting into the lake, to prevent sheep from eating the shrubs used by breeding birds. Similar precautions for conserving bird life are taken on any of the reservations when occasion arises.
