"Smiles" is the longest word in our language, 'cause there's a mile in between the first an' last letter, yet they're the nicest an' easiest things we've got to give. Some ginks shovel snow off the walk like as if they'd learned how from a correspondence school.

NATIONAL DEFENSE CAMPAIGN STARTED

Women's Organization to Back Educational Drive Showing Necessity

A nation-wide educational campaign in support of the national defense will be undertaken by the sixteen national patriotic groups co-operating in the Women's Conference on National Defense as Peace Insurance held here recently at the call of the American Legion Auxiliary. This decision was formed following addresses by President Coolidge and various representatives of the war and navy departments.

Plans for furthering the work of the conference will be evolved in the near future by an extension committee created by the conference. This committee consists of the presidents of the co-operating organizations or representatives appointed by them.

Support of the American people in putting the national defense act into full effect was asked. Moral support and efforts to see that necessary funds are appropriated were suggested.

"Peace with honor is the end of which we strive," resolutions adopted by the conference declared. "We pledge ourselves as individuals and as a nation to promote the cause of peace. Yet these earnest convictions and ideals must not bind us to the world of reality."

In the present unsettled condition of the world, living in the midst of national ambitions, jealousies, suspicions and hatreds, it would be puerile and foolish to cast off the instruments of defense. Our national security must be preserved and we believe that in national defense rests America's best peace insurance until such time as, by agreement, limitation of arms may be possible."

Mrs. O. D. Oliphant, national president of the Auxiliary, presided. Miss Bess Wetherholt, national secretary of the Auxiliary, was elected secretary of the conference.

WHERE LEADERS OF NATION ARE BORN

Statistics Show That Larger Percentage Are From Urban Life

Where are the nation's leaders born and educated?

According to popular belief, rural life is more favorable than urban environment for the nourishment of greatness. But that belief is not supported by the facts, says the National Educational Association. To make its case, the association turns to Who's Who with the explanation that the census of 1870 is nearest the birth of most of the persons now included in Who's Who.

The census of 1870 disclosed that 26,952,301 persons, or 70 per cent, were living on farms, and 11,606,070, or 30 per cent, were living in cities, towns and villages. From those figures, and assuming that most of those now listed in Who's Who were born about 1870, the association says the expected conclusion would be that most of them were born on farms.

Just the opposite is the fact, the association asserts. Although 70 per cent of our people were living on farms in 1870, but 6,288, or 25.9 per cent of the people listed in Who's Who, were born on farms. Although only 30 per cent of our population in 1870 was living in cities, towns and villages, this 30 per cent has produced 17,990 notables, or 74.1 per cent of those listed in Who's Who.

To put that conclusion in other words:

Each 1,000,000 people living in rural sections produced 233 notable men and women.

Each 1,000,000 people living in urban sections produced 1,550 notable men and women.

In proportion to population, over six times as many notable people are born in urban as in rural communities.

But nowadays transportation complicates any conclusion by producing a hybrid citizenry, partly rustic, partly urban. Week days a man may be captain in the city; week ends he may be the master of a chicken farm. How is the offspring of the commuter to be classified?

Women being elected to many public offices. This means orders for fewer cupids and more brooms.

Claimed congress should be at work, but anyway they can't spend any of the public money when not in session.

The sports' should now agitate to have St. Patrick's day, the opening of the ball season, and the day when the law goes off on fishing, set apart for legal holidays.

Many who now kick on their income taxes, were hollering in 1915 for the government to spend more money so as to win the war quicker.
