RED CROSS ON THE JOB

At 2:30 March 18th, the tornado struck Murphysboro, Ill. At 4 o'clock, three Red Cross trains left St. Louis, with doctors, nurses, trained workers and supplies. In charge was Henry M. Baker, Red Cross national director of disaster relief, experienced in 87 floods, tornadoes and tidal waves. At 8 o'clock the 22 cars were side-tracked at Murphysboro and as doctors and nurses started to relieve the suffering, canteen workers began handing out hot coffee and food.

At 1 a. m., the 20th, Henry M. Baker had visited every Illinois town and village in the disaster zone and had the relief organizations set up. The Indianapolis Red Cross anticipating the need sent by airplane a large supply of anti-tetanus serum.

The American Red Cross has now taken over the entire medical work in the disaster zone. A unit of Chicago doctors left Chicago Monday night, the Illinois Central furnishing transportation free.

That such an organization is in readiness for immediate action is due to your membership in the Red Cross. The special contributions are used entirely for relief work and rehabilitation.

RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERING

Highland Park, along with many other cities of the state, has promptly prepared to aid in the relief movement for the tornado sufferers in southern Illinois, and there is every indication that the drive here for funds for this purpose will result successfully. The need is urgent and the cause most worthy. The immediate emergency is past, but there will be necessity for aid for some time to come to the people in those cities ruined by the cyclone, and there is no danger of the funds exceeding the necessity, as every day brings new stories of illness, suffering and death as a result of the terrible catastrophe. It is not necessary to impress on Highland Park people the necessity for liberal giving for a cause like this. It is only needful to urge dispatch. "He gives twice who gives quickly."

A NOTABLE IMPROVEMENT

The handsome structure erected by the Masons on Sheridan road is an ornament to the city and an improvement of which any community should be proud. In architecture, excellence of labor and materials and adequacy of equipment it leaves nothing to be desired, and the local Masonic lodge is to be congratulated on its splendid new temple, which is to be dedicated on Saturday afternoon. That will be an event of historic importance in the history of this lodge, whose officers, building committee and members merit the thanks of the community for the magnificent building which they have added to the business district.

Tenure of office in county schools is always so uncertain due to the caprice of directors, that some assurance should be given a principal that when he has gained his experience in a school, and developed to a point of efficiency that he will be retained, or that other schools which pay higher salaries will not take the principal away, and the whole process of training a new young principal will have to be repeated.

Garden Club

The Garden Club of Deerfield met at the home of Mrs. Boyle, March 15.

Mrs. Lincoln Pettis gave a most interesting paper on rotating the vegetable garden. She gave some very valuable plans as to how to make a small garden produce all the vegetables for an average family. A garden with no bare spots in mid-summer and early fall is so much better looking, and Mrs. Pettis gave away some her clever tricks in getting that effect.

The Garden Club will observe National Garden week, April 19 to 26, again in planting trees on the school grounds. To arouse the interest of Deerfield and create a healthy rivalry, a home beautifying contest is to be put on. Any resident of Deerfield may enter this contest on application to the Garden Club and submitting a spring picture of their home grounds. Next fall a picture of the same grounds showing the results of the summer's work in the improving of their grounds by means of shrubs, vines, lawns, annually trees, etc., must be submitted.

The homes which show the most improvement during the season will be awarded cash prizes. The specific details of this contest will be published early in April or sent to any applicant.
