MEAT CONSUMPTION IN U. S. IS SHOWN MORE BEEF & VEAL USED

President of American Farm Bureau Federation in Statement Gives Figures for Last Year

The per capita consumption of beef and veal for 1924 increased slightly in the fact of total figures showing a decline of approximately one pound in meats consumed per person during that year. This was pointed out in a statement by O. E. Bradfute, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, an a director of the National Live Stock and Meat board, concerning government figures recently made available.

Comparative Figures

Mr. Bradfute called attention to the amount of beef and veal consumed, which was 70.9 pounds per capita as compared with 70.0 for the previous year. The decline was evidenced in pork, which showed a falling off of two pounds. The 1923 consumption of this meat was 90.8 pounds, and in 1924 it was 88.8 pounds. Lamb and mutton remained stationary, at 5.2 pounds. The total consumption of dressed meat for the year was 164.9 against 166.0 for 1923.

"There is nothing alarming about this small decline," said Mr. Bradfute. "It may be easily explained by considering the huge growth of our population each year, which is about 1,500,000. The situation in 1924 was simply this: rapid growth in population slightly outdistanced meat consumption figures. Therefore, we should not be led to believe that the American people are turning against the basic food."

Record in 1924

On the other hand, the Farm Bureau quoted figures showing that 1924 stood out as the world's record for meat animals slaughtered in spite of the fact that 1923 retains the high mark for meat production. He explained this condition as due to the fact that animals averaged several pounds lighter per head during the past year, fattening being restricted somewhat on account of high corn prices.

A Columbia university professor claims that men with long legs have more brains than those who are short. Well it must be admitted that they can cover more ground.

EXPORTS OF FOOD FROM U. S. LARGER

Marked Increase During Year Just Past Is Reported in Statistics

The export of foodstuff from the United States is increasing according to the foodstuffs division of the Department of Commerce. In 1923 the exports were valued in round numbers at $978,583,000, but during the last year there was an increase of $127,228,000 in the value of our exported foodstuffs.

One of the most decided gains was in products sent to Germany where the increase of exports in 1924 over 1923 was fifteen per cent. Of the total exported to Germany, lard made up nearly half of the value in 1923 but only thirty-seven per cent in 1924. Other exports were flour, canned milk and grain.

Wheat, lard and bacon make up ninety per cent of our exports to Italy and there was an increase of all these items in 1924. The value of foodstuffs shipped to Great Britain and Ireland increased eight per cent in 1924 over the previous year. There was a gain in wheat, grain, flour, lard, barley, apples and canned and dried fruit but a decrease in the amount of meat products and canned milk. The gain in exports of foodstuffs to Canada over the year previous was seventy-three per cent. This gain was nearly all due to the increase in the shipments of wheat and rye due to the crop failures there.

The French government, it is said, will refuse to take part in any agreement for the reduction of flying machines. In other words so far as aeroplanes are concerned, the sky is the limit.

George Bernard Shaw says he is never coming to the United States because the Americans would "kill him with kindness." Evidently he has heard about our home-made gin.

A farm commission is coming here from Germany to study our agricultural conditions and farm problems. All they need to do to get the latest dope on the subject is to write to Senator Brookhart and Magnus Johnson.

Figure Beauty

There are lines and lines, but only one true line of beauty.

It is granted by the new Gossard Complete, which gives the slim, smooth, unbroken line from shoulder to thigh.

N. S. SCHOOLS HAVE HOLIDAY MONDAY

Teachers at Meeting of State Association Division at Evanston

Schools were dismissed Monday in all the Lake Shore towns so that the teachers might attend the meeting of the Illinois state teachers' association which was held in Evanston. At this meeting the report of the committee of administrative units was a notable feature.

The committee of five, of which Principal R. L. Sandwick of Deerfield-Shields high school is chairman, reported on the re-organization of the administrative units of the educational system. The committee had previously consulted with education experts and held a series of meetings at which the most competent persons available discussed the work of each unit, in detail. In its report the committee recommended the adoption of the junior college as well as the junior high school and kindergarten units.
