"One of His Yarns"

On one occasion, he related, the Hodja was sleeping on the yeranda when he awoke suddenly and saw what he took to be a robber, dressed in white, climbing over the garden wall. He seized his bow and sent an arrow straight through the imaginary intruder, only to find that the white object was one of his own shirts hanging to dry on the wall. "Praise be to Allah," cried the phil-

"Originated Mother-in-Law Joke" Nasreddin is said to have been the originator of the mother-in-law joke. His wife one day placed some hot soup before him, and when he took a large spoonful, it burned him so that large tears rolled down hischeeks. "Why are you crying?" asked his wife. "I was thinking of the death your mother" said the Hodja. "But L didn't know you loved my mother so much," replied the wife. The Hodja made a wry face. "I am weeping because you are not with her," he said.

"Other Specimens" Nasreddin was asked which was more useful, sun or moon. He replied, "The moon, because the sun comes out in the daytime, when it is already light enough; but the moon comes out at night when we really need light."

A neighbor visited Nasreddin one day and asked for the loan of his donkey. The Hodja answered that the donkey was not at home. Just then with Nasreddin.
