DEERFIELD

While the village was enjoying its holiday morning sleep, on Saturday, the thirtieth of May, ten members of Deerfield Boy Scout Troop One, assembled at the Corners, at seven o'clock, to raise the flag bought during the World War by the Parent-Teacher Association, to its place of prominence in celebration of Memorial Day. Traffic was halted by Patrol Leader Wallace Newcomb. In addition to the early passing motorists, two men and one woman (the last a member of the North Shore Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, and the mother of the Scout Scribe) witnessed the impressive patriotic ceremony which they had left their homes to view. Led by John Garrity with the troop colors and Wesley Stryker with the American flag, at eight o'clock the Scouts went to Mooney's Cemetery, where they placed flags and flowers on two graves, that of the late John C. Ender, a Civil War veteran, and of George W. Karch, a soldier in the World War. With flags still flying at nine-thirty o'clock the Boy Scouts, with the Scoutmaster, Owen Savage and Assistant Kenneth Hagie, Rev. Mark Andrews, minister of the Presbyterian Church, playing a fife, and Harold Bloomfield, a member of the Deerfield-Shields High School Band, and Webster Dodd, of Lincoln School, both from Highland Park playing drums, with Ed Jacobson, assistant Scoutmaster in navy uniform, following in the rear, marched from the Bungalow Church. With them was a group of school children and members of the church who proceeded to the Deerfield Cemetery, where the grave of a former Scout, Ward Reichelt, and the following Civil War veterans' graves were decorated: Thomas Mitchell, Benjamin Webster, Silas Sherman, John K. Clark, Lewis P. Todd, Peter Bass, John J. Huck, Johannes Donner, Jacob Martin and Theodore L. Knaak. But two of these graves bear official Grand Army of the Republic markers, which should designate every Civil War soldier's grave. After taps were sounded by the bugler, Russell Patterson, who also officiated at the flag-raising at sunrise, and the lowering at sunset, Rev. Roy Williams of the Bungalow Church offered a prayer, the audience sang "America" with cornet accompaniment by Arno Frantz, Mr. Grantham, delivered an informal Memorial Day address, reading from an original poem, "Lines on Memorial Day," written in 1885 and published by him in the Willbur, Nebraska, paper on May 3rd of that year. The gist of Mr. Grantham's message to the children was in Kipling's lines "Lest We Forget." Rev. Andrews pronounced the benediction.

The two Northfield cemeteries were next visited by the Scouts, who were transported in automobiles, and two soldiers' graves in the old Northfield Cemetery, and fourteen graves in the larger Northfield Cemetery were decorated, and more elaborate Memorial Day exercises held there, with Rev. Mark Andrews as the speaker.

Thursday afternoon the North Shore Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution presented a beautiful large American flag on a standard, to the Oak Terrace School, Highwood, of which Mr. Wayne Thomas, formerly of the Deerfield School, is principal. The Oak Terrace P. T. A. gave a large flag for outdoor use. The most impressive part of the delightful program presented by the pupils, was the story of the evolution of the American flag, read by several pupils, and in which twelve boys appeared, each carrying a large flag to illustrate the number of flags that have been flown on American territory, beginning with the ones that Christopher Columbus, and John Cabot brought with them—and the changes that led to our present flag. Mr. E. L. Williams, baseball coach of the Deerfield-Shields high school, presented to the team of the Oak Terrace School, a pennant which it won as champion of the North Shore Grammar School Baseball League. Each student in the school was given a small flag of the United States, by the North Shore Chapter D. A. R., at the conclusion of the exercises.

Miss Amelia Petersen talked of Spanish speaking people in America to the Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church, Thursday afternoon.

The children of the Northbrook Grammar School will broadcast a garden program on Friday, June 5 at 3 o'clock from W. L. S., the Sears Roebuck station, during the weekly Little Red School House Program.

Tune in and listen to your neighborhood school children. Peter Leist, the village constable and traffic director at the corner of Waukegan and Highland Park Roads, is very handsomely attired in a brilliant blue uniform, black patent leather puttees, white cap with black visor and brass insignia and immaculately white gloves. No motorist will now think Mr. Leist a pedestrian, with all these decorations. Henry Petersen, the chief of police, is also gaily dressed in a blue uniform and heavily laden with brass.
