NO SMALL JOB
It is no small job to repaint a car. Every particle of old material must be removed, and the bare surfaces carefully sandpapered to insure an absolutely smooth surface before the new coats are applied. Every job we turn out is a perfect repainting job. We shall be glad to give you an estimate of the cost.

PUBLIC LIBRARY
TAKE ALONG A BOOK!
Summer vacation rules are again in force at the Public Library, which enable residents to take away for the summer months as many books as they wish, and to keep them until the first of October. If you are to be a tourist this summer, you will want to sit down at night and studiously pour over the pages of a vast and serious work which all winter long you have not found time to read. But nevertheless you will want to have something that you can read in your hotel bedroom at night—something interesting and complete in itself, and susceptible of being read in a short time. Perhaps it will be a volume or two of short stories, perhaps a good anthology of poetry, in which every page contains something complete and perfect in itself, or perhaps only a collection of aphorisms or maxims. If they are good, maxims make the best reading of all. They take only a minute to read, and they provide matter upon which thought can ruminate for hours. If, on the other hand, you are going to settle down in a quiet camp for the summer, where there will be plenty of leisure and long evenings untinged with physical fatigue, will not this be a splendid opportunity to read, to catch up with, as it were, the books which have long been on your reading list, but which you have put off for the more active pleasures and duties of life?

Select, then, your traveling library or your camp library now. Find a place in your trunk or your knapsack for books, for no matter how absorbing your vacation trip, there will always be times when you will "hanker" for something to read. The Public Library stands ready to help you make your choice and to furnish you with good books.
TAKE ALONG A BOOK!
Present age is said to have a mania for speed, but you would not know it when watching many persons work.
Claimed schools should adjourn when the circus comes to town, and probably the pupils would consent to forego the advantages of lessons on that day.

Just choose from our many services the one which suits you best—and you'll be at the end of the line that never brings a smile.

Not much is said about the clothes worn by the boy graduates, but they should not regard themselves as unimportant that they can go on the stage in their shirt sleeves.
