

GERARD PRAISES COOLIDGE POLICY

The latest Democrat of prominence to pay his respects to President Coolidge is James W. Gerard, who served as Ambassador to Germany from 1913 to 1917.

In speaking of the President and his foreign policies, Mr. Gerard said, "I think that the foreign policies of President Coolidge have been successful."

Mr. Gerard has emphatically denied reports that while abroad he criticized the Coolidge administration note on the French debt. He said, "I did not know that the debt note existed and I did not discuss the question in public or private."
