Board Accedes to Petition of Residents In That Section for Year

A delegation of Highland Park citi zens living west of Sunset Park and who were anxious about school facilities for their children attended the regular meeting of the Board of Education for District No. 107, Monday evening, and presented a petition for consideration by the board. This recited the fact that while all the petitioners, some thirty in number, were citizens of Highland Park and lived. proximity to Ravinia Park, the home in territory closely adjoining School of the world famous summer opera, dergo the great inconvenience of famed musicians who came to the sending their children to remote Pearl theatre to hear him and cheer schools, some to Deerfield and some him in their hours of relaxation. to Highwood. Mystery surrounds the disappearance, on Wednesday, Sept. 9, of Howard W. Stoker, 28, from his home on Prairie avenue, Highwood. He had nade his usual round of collections for the Prudential Insurance comhad cashed the checks at a bank in Highland Park, as usual; but no later trace could be found of him, although the best founded of rumors reported him driving north between Glencoe and Highwood about three o'clock of the day he disappeared. It was the day for him to report at the insurance company's office in Chicago, where he was accustomed to go at about two o'clock. At three the company called Mrs. Stoker and asked the reason for Mr. Stoker's delay. At five they called again to report that he had not shown up. It was not until then that Mrs. Stoker grew alarmed, for she knew of no reason for him to leave his home, where he has wife and two children, the youngest of which is but eight weeks old, his position that he had had for two years, and numerous friends. Since Mr. Stoker's disappearance, no slightest trace of him has been substantiated, although various rumors have been traced to their source, some shock received in his fourteen Mayor Farwell Winston of Lake months across during the war; or
