Good Homes Deserve Fence Protection

In a great measure the appearance and atmosphere of rich exclusiveness which pervades the most beautiful homes and estates on the north shore is due to the air of privacy effected by the fence surrounding them.

The American Wire Fence Company has installed many miles of permanently beautiful and protective chain-link fence in this locality. Our factory at Libertyville is splendidly equipped to furnish and erect fence for your home with advantages in both cost and immediate service.

"THE PROFESSOR'S HOUSE"

By Willa Cather
Alfred A. Knopf

It has been said of Willa Cather that she remarked that nothing which has happened to her since she was twenty years of age seemed to be material for her art. If this is true it would perhaps explain the quality of remoteness, of trying to recapture something, which is so apparent in her writing.

In "A Lost Lady," the story of a woman who never really existed, this subtle quality found its perfect expression, in Miss Cather's latest book "The Professor's House," the expression is less perfect.

Miss Cather has written in this book of the inner life of a man, a professor in a Midwestern university. Godfrey St. Peter's exterior life has not been one of great excitement, a happy marriage to a charming woman, the growing up of two daughters, a more or less bitter struggle against the forces of commercialism in the university, these have made up the part of his life that the world has seen.

But against these as a pleasantly colored and ever present background, St. Peter has lived a vivid and absorbing life in the old third floor study which he shares with two wiry and bedecked dress forms. These are the allies of Augusta, the sewing woman, who occupies the study during the professor's off hours. Here St. Peter wrote his brilliant work on the early Spanish adventurers in America, here or in his beloved garden, he and Tom Outland talked far into the night.

In Tom Outland Miss Cather has once more created a character through the eyes of others. This boy with his unusual background and his vigorous original mind gave to St. Peter, outside of his own creative work, the only thing in his life which was entirely above the commonplace, — exactly as he had dreamed in his boyhood that life must be. Outland's death in the war is Fate's assurance that this one thing in a lifetime of things, shall be kept inviolate.

We see the Professor first when all this is over. But in retrospect we live it again with him, during those years in which he is learning that his zest in living and his youth have somehow slipped from him. At the moment when he faces and accepts that fact we leave him.

It is effective writing, with a strength and subtlety not easy to put into words—it must be read. It has, as one critic has expressed it, an "arrowy perfection."

"MY AFRICAN NEIGHBORS"

By Hans Coudenhove
Little Brown & Co.

We enjoy having William Beebe tell us of strange little insects and animals who live their bizarre lives without any help from or reference to us. It is with the same sort of enjoyment that we can read this book "My African Neighbors," by Hans Coudenhove.

The author is a man who writes with a great deal of charm of style, who is extremely well versed in the arts both ancient and modern and yet who has "Never seen an airplane, or a dirigible balloon, or a motor-bus, or a taxicab, or a motor boat, or a wireless apparatus, or a cloud picture, or the president of a republic, or a portrait of Einstein, or a Bolshevik." We are just beginning to think that happiness still exists on earth when he goes on to say that he has not slept in a bed for twelve years, and for one period of five years did not sit down to a meal with another human being.

But this isolation has given Mr. Coudenhove ample opportunity for which he has chosen. He tells of their

NEW RECORD PRICE FOR LAKE CO. LAND

Tract Southeast of Libertyville Reported Sold at $1330 Per Acre

What is believed to be a new record high price for farm land in Lake county was established last week, according to Wankegan papers, when it became known that the Copeland track of 244 acres, lying southeast of Libertyville on the Rockland road, had been sold at a reported consideration of $1,330 an acre or a total consideration of $323,000.

This tract was owned by a Libertyville syndicate known as the Copeland Syndicate, headed by Carroll Gridley. The latter will be manager for the new syndicate that has taken it over.

Forty-two acres of the tract lie north of Rockland road with a frontage of 700 feet on Milwaukee avenue. This has been platted and will be placed on sale immediately for residence purposes. The tract extends from Milwaukee avenue east of St.

folkways and superstitions, their remarkable modesty which makes them unable to answer a direct question, allowing the most stupendous news to come out casually, reminding one of the story, "There ain't no news except the dog's dead."

He brings out their strange psychology, their shrewdness, in regard to some things and gullibility in others, as for instance when many believed that the World War was caused by a dispute between the "Sultans" of the English and the German's as to the relative merits of their mounts, a black and a white mule.

Mr. Coudenhove at one moment gives descriptions of the beauties of the country which bear out Mr. Carl Akeley's prophecy that Africa is the future playground of the world, then he turns to giving us science mixed up with humor.

GAS HEATING MAKES CONSIDERABLE GAIN

Public Service Co. Reports Say Increased Use of It In This Region

Gas is making some big strides as the heating medium for homes in the territory served by the Public Service company of Northern Illinois.

In the last six months there has been a marked tendency in this territory toward the use of the ideal fuel for home heating. In that period the sale of gas burning boilers showed an increase of 450 per cent over the same period last year.

If this percentage is maintained there will be between 500 and 600 such boilers on the company's lines by the end of the coming heating season.

The sale of gas for industrial purposes in this company's territory also has shown a steady increase and the gross revenue from this source for the first six months of the year was 18 per cent greater than for the same period last year.

A marked feature of the business is the use of gas in the heating processes of the so-called smaller industries. There are representatives of this classification in about all the communities served and the variety of their products is wide. Gas fuel is found to be readily suitable.

The large summer demand for gas in the towns in the northwestern section of the Public Service company's territory is fully manifest this season. The territory is growing and one of the factors in this demand is the combination of good roads, a beautiful country, thousands of automobiles, good appetites and a great many restaurants and hotels.

At Barrington, a few years ago the company built a reinforcing plant into which tanks and a compressor enter. Its function is to bring up the pressure of gas reaching it from Niles station to such a point as is necessary for distribution requirements.

JOINT MEETINGS OF GLENCOE SOCIETIES

Women's League and Young Women's Guild Plan Four Sessions This Year

Four joint meetings of the Women's League and the Young Women's Guild of the Glencoe Union church are to be held this year and the first meeting was Tuesday, October 6, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning. The feature of the meeting was a lecture-recital by Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson, accompanied by Mrs. Dwight C. Orcutt. Luncheon was served at 12:15 o'clock. After luncheon the program and a business meeting were held.

It is all right to desire publicity, but no one should insist that his name should be mentioned in every issue of the newspaper.

TAX PUBLICITY LAW MAY BE REPEALED

PLAN DRIVE IN CONGRESS

Protests from Every Section of Country Urge Uselessness of Measure Emphasized

A positive effort to repeal the publicity clause of the income tax law will be made at the coming session of Congress. Protests from every section of the United States against the publicity of income taxes has made this inevitable.

Originally it was claimed that the publicity would force the larger tax payers to pay more honestly. A further theory was that the neighbors of the tax payers would, through jealousy, advise the tax collectors of deceptions. Treasury officials say the publicity has not resulted in the disclosure of any additional revenues. On the contrary, to meet this situation, men and women of wealth have placed this money in tax exempt securities, which do not yield revenue to the government, state, county, or town, and thus escaped the publicity in part.

Bulk of Protests

Contrary to what was predicted the bulk of the protests have come from the wage earners, the small business man, and others of moderate means. They have taken the position that the making public of their earnings has limited their credits and banking opportunities, and has afforded competitors an opportunity to "squeeze" them. Executives for large corporations have complained that as a result their employees have been deluged by letters and embarrassed by personal calls of "get-rich-quick" promoters who have not only consumed their time at their places of business and at their homes, but in many cases, because of the lack of understanding of financial undertakings, have secured large sums of money from them, with a consequent complete loss.

Believes People Honest

One woman, in writing to Washington, said: "It is my firm belief that the people of this country are honest; that they are willing and glad to pay an honest tax. The very idea that one must make public all their intimate business affairs and afford 'snoopers' an opportunity to have the government pry open their personal business accounts for the gratification of some inquisitive individual, or set of individuals, is un-American. The people of this country are at all times willing and anxious to aid their government."

Hundreds of newspapers throughout the country, editorially, have commented upon it, with the same line of thought as contained in the letter just quoted.
