NAME COMMITTEE ON STREET LIGHTS

to pay the estimated deficiency of cost of work and interest for the improvement of Sheridan road, as previously explained in these columns.

An ordinance also was passed providing for construction of a concrete sidewalk in St. Johns avenue and East Park avenue, to be done by special assessment.

Commissioner Preston moved approval and acceptance of a plat of a subdivision of the east half of Lot 1, Nelson's addition to Ravinia Woods. Commissioner Preston also moved that the corporation counsel be instructed to prepare an ordinance for licensing of sidewalk builders.

At this point in the proceedings Mayor Hastings appointed Messrs. Udell, Witt and Witten as a committee on improved street lighting system for the business district.

On motion of Commissioner Cheney the owner of the Ross subdivision was granted permit to construct sanitary sewers and water mains in said subdivision, providing he agrees to pay all costs of construction, including engineering and inspection fees, and that he deposit a sum equal to five per cent of the cost for a period of one and two years to cover cost of maintenance of said work.

Improvement Board
Much of the session of the board of local improvements was occupied with motions to pay to contractors portions of sums withheld retained on their contracts under the provisions of their agreements. The Western Improvement Co. was allowed payment of $4,426.30, two-thirds of the sum retained on the paving of St. Johns avenue and other streets. The Highways Construction Co. was allowed first payment of one-half of the five per cent retained on contract for sanitary sewers in Northwood Manor. The T. H. Iglehart Co. was allowed first payment of one-half of five per cent retained on contract for water main in Ravine court. The E. A. Meyer Co. was allowed payment of $3,610.41, in accordance with engineers' recommendation, being two-thirds of the 15 per cent retained on contract for paving St. Johns avenue and East Park avenue. The Arcole Construction Co. was allowed $2,955.89, two-thirds of 15 per cent retained on paving of St. Johns from Laurel to Sheridan.

Commissioner Cheney moved adoption of resolution providing for final acceptance of the paving in Sunset Terrace subdivision by the Chicago Heights Coal Co. The total cost of the work is given as $1,625.36, and with assessment collection and interest costs added the total is $179,590.

VALUE OF PICTURES IN HOME ADORNMENT
As Necessary as Windows, Says Art Expert Regarding This Subject

Would you build a house without windows?

Of course not. Who would want to live in a prison of dark blank walls, without a glimpse of sunshine or waving branches or the passing world? Who would want to shut himself up in an electric-lighted cavern of four bare walls?

A framed picture is the window for your soul. Just as you must have big windows for light and air, and a view of the outside world for your house, so you must have smaller ones, pictures upon the walls of every room in it, to let in color and pleasant thoughts and to decorate what would otherwise be a dull and tiresome surface.

The newest principles of interior decorating are once more a recognition of this vital fact.

"A home without framed pictures hanging in every room is like a lamp without a light," said a local artist today. "A house must have more in it than expensive furniture and costly rugs before it becomes an attractive home. Books, flowers and pictures—the latter especially, since they serve a decorative as well as a practical purpose—are the most important touches in creating a livable and lovely atmosphere."

FOREIGN TRADE OF U. S. IS INCREASING

Gain of Thirteen Per Cent in Last Six Months Over 1924 Record

The foreign trade of the United States is gaining rapidly, in spite of the protective tariff calamity howlers, and for the first six months of the present year was greater than in any year since 1919-1920. The figures were issued recently by the foreign commerce department of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The exports during the six months were $2,364,000,000, a gain of 13 per cent over the preceding year. The imports were $2,067,000,000, an increase of 12 per cent over the same period in the preceding year. There was the usual slowing up in the summer periods, but trade was said to be holding up well.

Vegetable foodstuffs, chiefly grain, were 51 per cent higher than a year ago, the value of vehicle exports increased 34 per cent; textiles, principally raw cotton, went up 30 per cent, the machinery group increased 13 per cent metals went up 9 per cent chemicals 4 per cent, and the animal group held their own.

There were only sixteen declines among the 50 leading exports, which were severe. Leaf tobacco declined 39 per cent in value and 45 per cent in quantity, logs an timber declined 31 per cent in value and 26 per cent in quantity, logs and timber declined 27 per cent in value and 30 per cent in quantity.

"CULTURE" AND COMMON SENSE

Under the title, "Intelligentsia vs. Commonsensia," George B. Lockwood, in the National Republic comments in this wise on the "better-than-thou" type of alleged "culture" with which some people clothe themselves in their attitude toward those they consider "beneath them."

Our self-styled "intelligentsia,"—the word, like the breed, is a European importation or imitation—ranging all the way from the sophomore socialists to the super smart-alecks whose cleverly constructed wares enjoy a wide vogue among persons who feel superior, would be hard pressed for a vocabulary if Sinclair Lewis had not written his caricatures of rural and small town life known as "Main Street" and "Babbitt." The phrases and ideas of these transient bits of fiction have been over-worked until they have become bromidic.

Rural America differs from urban America—though not as much as it did a generation since. The differences are in externals. The people themselves are not essentially different, and certainly villagers and ruralists are not essentially inferior; taken as a mass the contrary is true. If the rural and small town folk of the United States do not conform to the conventions of critics who feel above them, this is no sign of inferiority in any essential matter. Sophistication is not superiority. And if the cities of America were not constantly fed with a stream of new blood and brain from the American country-side they would die of dry-rot. Fully three-fourths of the worthwhile men in American history have been bred in small towns and rural communities.

No one can know rural and small town America without having once been a part of it. Those who judge it casually are prototypes of the tourist who sneers at Europe's historic buildings because their plumbing is not up-to-date. Wisdom is a natural rather than an acquired gift and the homely "horse sense" of people who dwell close to Nature and their fellows is more valuable and more admirable than the sour cynicism of those who speak of them as "yokels" and "boobs." The fact that rural Americans do not habitually feast their eyes on the Broadway electric signs or their noses on the aroma of the New York East Side does not prove their inferiority. That they cherish old-fashioned virtues, that they still cling to the ideals and traditions of their country, that they still act like human beings rather than poseurs, that they are not ashamed to act naturally rather than with a view of impressing other people that they are "cultured" in the conventional sense of that term, is not to their discredit. To the man broad enough to take people as they are, to estimate their worth by real rather than artificial standards, the society of these "boobs" and "yokels" is more stimulating mentally and safer morally than that of the egomaniacs, snarleyows and varioloid Europeans who dub themselves "intelligentsia." The greatest man, the most universal character the nineteenth century produced, found his greatest satisfaction and inspiration in association and conversation with the "boobs" and "yokels" congregated at backwoods country taverns, county fairs and political rallies. Therein, indeed, was one sign of his greatness.

EDUCATION WEEK

The United States bureau of education this year again is promoting a week's campaign for the furtherance of educational interests throughout the United States, known as American Education Week, which will be observed November 16 to 22, inclusive. This is the sixth annual observance of this character, the plan having been inaugurated by the U. S. commissioner of education in 1920. Each year the campaign has met with an increasing measure of success; last year it was estimated that more than one-half the entire population of the country was reached by it. This year, as in others, in order to emphasize those phases of education which need special attention from the national point of view, certain days in the week have been designated for special observance, as follows, according to the program issued by the bureau:

Constitution Day, Monday, Nov. 16—"The constitution is the bulwark of democracy and opportunity."

Patriotism Day, Tuesday, Nov. 17—"The flag of the United States of America is the symbol of the ideals and institutions of our Republic."

School and Teacher Day, Wednesday, Nov. 18—"It is not too much to say that the need of civilization is the need of teachers—Calvin Coolidge.

Conservation and Thrift Day, Thursday, Nov. 19—"The forests of America, however slighted by man, must have been a great delight to God—John Muir.

Know Your School Day, Friday, Nov. 20—"Progressive civilization depends upon progressive education."

Community and Health Day, Saturday, Nov. 21—"Physical education means health and strength."

For God and Country Day, Sunday, Nov. 22—"Religion, Morality and education are necessary for good government."
