EXERCISE CARE IN PURCHASE OF GAS

AVOID WAYSIDE STATION

Motor Club Head Advises Motorists to Fill Up Tanks at Places Where Quality is Dependable

Believing that better methods in purchasing supplies would aid the motorist to better results in the operation of his car, the Chicago Motor Club is suggesting to members the advisability of exercising greater discretion in buying gasoline, both while in the city and while touring.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, says that much carburetor trouble from watered and dirty gas can be traced to lax purchasing methods and has suggested the following plans as a guide to the motorist who would put his purchasing of supplies on a better basis and avoid trouble.

In Large Quantities "Buy gas in larger quantities from garage and filling stations which are known to be thoroughly reliable. Buy small quantities from unknown wayside pumps, and then only in cases of necessity.

"Aside from the advantage of filling up the tank with clean gasoline it minimizes the possibility of collecting sediment by not opening the cap is removed the chances of dirt getting into the tank are increased, and there is also the increase in the process of chipping off a piece of metal when the nozzle of the hose is jammed into the filled pipe.

"All gasoline pumps are subject to inaccuracies, all hoses are subject to scaling and all tanks are subject to water dilution. The car owner's chances of being the sufferer from any of these unavoidable causes are greatly decreased by reducing the number of visits to gasoline pumps, filling up the tank each time rather than to buy just a few gallons at a time."

In addition, Mr. Hayes passes along to local motorists the thought of the American Automobile association, with which the local club is affiliated, to the effect
