THE CHURCH IN THE NEWS HOPPER

Church notices and religious items which in a former day found only begrudged space in the newspaper now go into the daily news hopper like any other matter of local or general importance, and The Reformed Church Messenger takes occasion to speak appreciatively of the "growing spirit of intelligent co-operation on the part of the daily newspapers in the duty of encouraging church attendance." It has a special bouquet for the Reading Eagle, and quotes a message from that paper as an example of what newspapers can do toward helping the churches. The message is entitled, "A Great Treat Is Ready for You," and runs thus:

"Thousands of Reading people never go to church, and they miss a great deal. You may think you do not need the church, but you do. And the church needs you. The necessity is mutual. Think what is offered! Reading has about seventy churches. There is an investment of possibly $5,000,000, all for your benefit—and it is a benefit indeed. There are over 100 soloists, choirs that number 500 trained voices, scores of organists; there are orchestras, chimes and everything in melody that can bring peace and contentment to a troubled mind after a week of business cares. Over threescore pastors, educated men, have put in hours of study preparing sermons covering a wide range of themes. If you get but a single new thought, you will be amply repaid for attending some service on Sunday. But there will be more than one beneficial thought. Some of these clergymen are orators; no two have the same style of delivery. There is clear reasoning, splendid delivery, excellent composition, all bound to inspire you. And the Sunday schools; your parents sent you—are you giving your children the same opportunity to lay the foundation for correct living, right thinking and reverence? By helping them to all this, you are helping yourself by rearing your offspring to be a credit to you and to the community. Tomorrow churches costing $5,000,000 will be open to you. Over 500 singers and musicians will sing and play for your benefit. Sixty clergymen will deliver carefully prepared sermons. The same number of Sunday schools are ready to receive your children. Thousands of earnest, kind-hearted Christian men and women are ready to give you the sincere handclasp of fellowship. Doesn't all this mean something to you? With all this prepared for your benefit, why not go to some church, Sundays?"—Literary Digest.

TOO MANY LAWS

The courts and police officials have been loaded down with too much work by the multiplicity of laws according to the Attorney General of Indiana, Arthur L. Gilliom, who is quoted by the National Republic, which says:

"Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom, of Indiana, has put his finger on one of the chief sources of lawlessness when he declares that by multiplying laws regulating conduct we have loaded down the courts and police authorities with more work than it is possible for them to do. So many acts have been made wrong by legislative fiat, which heretofore were unknown or legal, that the work of our police forces has been multiplied to the point where it is impossible to give sufficient attention to detecting and punishing the more serious crimes. Mr. Gilliom says: 'This is a condition which has come about as the result of the ever increasing tendency to regulate almost everyone and everything by setting up moral standards and arbitrary conceptions of conduct, and by attempting to compel obedience thereto by means of our police forces and other enforcement offices. If this tendency continues, I fear that it will ultimately lead to a condition of poorly protected people against real crime on the one hand, and a terrifying enforcement of tyrannous laws which invade the sphere of private conduct on the other. To me it seems plain that we must keep such police forces as our people are willing to sustain, sufficiently free to permit them to cope with those who are the real criminals, and we must stop demanding their protection primarily for a vague public instead of the interests of the public.'"

BETHANY EVANGELICAL CHURCH

9:45 Sunday School session.
 11:00 Morning worship.
 7:45 Evening services. Special music.

The primary department of our Sunday School is beginning to feel quite at home at the Elks Hall, their present place of meeting. There is plenty of room for the increasing attendance.

A union Thanksgiving Day service has been arranged for to be held at the Presbyterian church, and Dr. J. G. K. McClure will preach the sermon. There should be a large attendance.

The congregational meeting was well attended last Friday night at Witten hall. The dinner was splendid, and the address of Dr. G. B. Kimmel was inspiring. He also had charge of the solicitation of funds for the new church. There was a generous response.

It is said that seven million building lots have been staked out in Florida which indicates that a lot of folks are going to get their fingers burned at the stake.
