HOW TO OPERATE SYSTEM

What to Do and Not to Do In Order to Get Best Result and Most Warmth for Least Money

The cost of operating and heating plant will depend upon the care and completeness with which it has been installed, and the character of frequency of attention which the operator is able or willing to give it.

The chimney should be absolutely tight and should have a continuous fire clay flue lining from top to bottom.

The smoke pipe should guide up to chimney, and should always be straight and short.

Shut-off Damper
 A shut-off or cross damper is required in the smoke pipe to control the intensity of the chimney draft, and there should also be a check draft damper in the smoke pipe beyond the cross damper. Use the check damper for the ordinary daily regulation of the fire.

There should be a lift damper or slide in fire door, but never use this damper to check the fire. All dampers must fit true and be tight.

With the check draft closed the fire should burn up quickly when the draft damper in the ash pit is open; otherwise the draft is deficient.

The by-pass damper, if provided in your heater, must be tightly closed except when starting fire.

Base Must Be Tight
 The heater base must be tight, and grouted to the door, so that no air leakage into the ash pit can occur at this point.

Heating surfaces must be kept clean and free from spot and ash accumulation and the entire ash pit must be cleaned daily.

All basement piping, heating surfaces, and smoke pipe must be completely covered.

Soft coal should be fired frequently in rather small charges by the alternate or coking method, and all over-drafts should be closed as soon as coking is complete. The fire should not be poked nor stirred from above.

House heaters must have provision for overdraft through fire door or around top of fire pot.

The Fire Pot
 The fuel pot must be kept full with fire surface at level of fire door; let ashes accumulate on (not under) the grate in mild weather. Never shake or disturb a very low fire until you have added and ignited a little fresh fuel.

Anticipate the heating demand by firing promptly when the outside temperature begins to drop, or the wind increases.

Some kind of automatic damper regulator is essential to economy of operation.

The house must be kept at a uniform temperature and not allowed to cool down more than ten degrees at night.

Temperatures
 The temperature of all rooms must be as low as is consistent with comfort. To heat a house to 75 degrees F. instead of to 70 degrees F. with an average outside temperature of 40 degrees F. for the entire heating season means a 17 per cent increase in fuel consumption.

All windows and doors must be as tight as possible.

OLDEST SHIP AFLOAT AT SESQUICENTENNIAL

Former Pirate Craft Built In 1776 to be Brought From
 Virgin Islands

The Schooner Vigilant, former pirate, and the oldest ship afloat, having been built about 1776 in Baltimore for privateering, will be an exhibit at the Sesquicentennial International Exposition, and all visitors will be heartily welcomed aboard.

Since the day she was first made ready for sea the Schooner Vigilant has been in continuous service, as privateer, pirate ship, slave trader, Danish warship and finally as a cargo and passenger boat running between the Virgin Islands which have been her home for more than a century and a quarter, and Porto Rico.

The St. Croix Chamber of Commerce will rig the Vigilant as she was in her pirate days, man her with descendants of "Blue-beard" and "Captain Kidd" as a pirate crew, put a "Fungy" band aboard, line her decks with exhibits of Virgin Island products and send her to Philadelphia, where she will be moored at the Sesqui grounds from June 1, 1925, until December 1, 1926.

Governor M. E. French, of the Virgin Islands, in a letter to Director-General Collier, states he is supporting the plan to exhibit the Vigilant at the Sesqui.

Secretary Fred A. Boardman also had written to Colonel Collier assuring him that the St. Croix Chamber of Commerce is particularly interested in the Sesquicentennial Exposition.
