

EDW. WENDLING DIES; FUNERAL IS FRIDAY

DEATH OF MRS. F. GOETZ

Aged Woman Succumbs Yesterday Morning from Effects of Fall Nov. 22; Inquest Held by Coroner

Edward W. Wendling, 14 South Green Bay road, a resident of Highland Park for 37 years, died at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, at the Highland Park hospital, where he was taken November 27, following prolonged illness.

Mr. Wendling was born Sept. 11, 1865, at Wheeling, Illinois, and he was aged 60 years, two months and 20 days. His wife, whose maiden name was Julia Fischer, is living. There are no children.

Other near relatives are the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Jacob Hausam, Arlington Heights, Ill.; Mrs. Amelia Stengel, LeMars, Iowa; Mrs. Melissa Arnold and George and Charles Wendling, Hazel, S. D. All of these, except Mrs. Arnold, will attend the funeral.

The services will be held at the family residence, 14 South Green Bay road, at 12:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, and at the church at one o'clock. Burial will be at North Northfield cemetery, on Dundas road.

Mr. Wendling was for many years engaged in the painting and decorating business here and was well known and highly regarded by a host of friends in the community. There is sincere regret at his death, and the relatives have the deep sympathy of all at this time.

Mrs. Frances Goetz, aged about 70 years, died about 8 o'clock yesterday morning at the home of her son-in-law, Joseph Leech, 388 East Elm place, from the effects of injuries, received when she fell from a kitchen window on Sunday, Nov. 22. Chronic heart trouble was a contributory cause.

An inquest was held at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at the H. M. Prior Company's office, by Coroner John L. Taylor of Libertyville, before a jury composed of Charles Donner, E. C. Hoskin, Fred Glader, Claude Van Arsdale, W. J. Hennig and Carl Costello.

Joseph Leech, the son-in-law told the jury that his mother-in-law had fallen from a kitchen window on Nov. 22, a distance of about three feet to a cement walk. He had helped her up when she called for aid and afterwards, while able to walk about some, she had complained of pains in the side and was short of breath.

Dr. F. M. Ingalls, the attending physician, stated that the woman had had a very rapid pulse and high blood pressure for some time. He had attended her at intervals previous to the accident and also after a previous fall about a year ago when she suffered fracture of an arm. She remained conscious from the time of the fall on Nov. 22 until Tuesday night. There were symptoms which might indicate fracture of a rib and the respiration and pulse were high, following the accident.

The jury after due deliberation found death due to the effect of the fall on Nov. 22, combined with chronic endocarditis.

War Memorial Plans Perfected; Ready To Proceed With Work

At a meeting of the Highland Park War Memorial committee held at the city building last Friday evening further plans were made for carrying into effect the proposal to commemorate by a suitable monument the war services of all men and women from this city who participated in the World War in any branch of the United States service, air, land or sea.

It was reported that preliminaries had reached a point where work on the memorial was ready to start, and in order that all names of those entitled to a place on the bronze tablets be listed with the committee at the earliest possible moment so that work on these tablets may not be delayed, the following letter was authorized and is being sent out; replies should be sent at once to Mrs. John F. Mackenzie, chairman, 195 Laurel avenue, Highland Park, Ill. The letter:

To the Member Addressed: Highland Park is to erect a Memorial to those residents of its city who served in the war in any of the branches of the United States service, air, land, or sea.

The proposed Memorial is the work of James Cady Ewell, of Ravinia, and is to be of granite and bronze. It is to be placed in Memorial park, deeded by the city, which is between Laurel and Prospect avenues and will be unveiled Decoration day, 1926.

The committee in charge is trying to get as correct a list as possible of all residents of Highland Park who served in the Great War, as these names will be placed on bronze tablets on the Memorial.

Will you kindly fill out the enclosed card and return as soon as possible to the chairman so that our records will be clear as far as your military career is concerned? Also if you know of any resident of Highland Park whose name has not been handed in, please send it in or telephone.

The card enclosed with the letter to be filled out covers the war service records of the person by whom it is to be filled out.

ANOTHER HEARING ON ZONING MEASURE

TO BE HELD ON DEC. 11TH

Meet at Elm Place Auditorium and Room for All; Large Attendance at One Friday Evening Last

Further public hearing on the question of amending the zoning ordinance will be held on the evening of Friday, Dec. 11, in the Elm Place auditorium, where it is believed there will be accommodation for all citizens who wish to attend. This plan was decided upon following the largely attended meeting of last Friday evening, when a number were unable to gain entrance to the council room because of the many in attendance.

Pursuant to the call of the Zoning committee the public hearing on the amended zoning ordinance was held in the auditorium of the city hall on Friday last. The interest in the ordinance on the part of the public is very great as demonstrated by the fact that the meeting room at the city hall was entirely too small to take proper care of the great crowd wishing to be present, and many persons could not get into the hall and went away disappointed.

The zoning committee sat in a judiciary capacity only and did not enter into the discussion but were interested in listening to what the various speakers had to say. A court stenographer was present to make notes of the speeches and chairman Cushing requested at the opening of the meeting that speakers on rising should give their names and addresses and speak slowly so that a proper record could be made.

The first speaker called upon was Mayor Hastings who explained the new ordinance and, no doubt, disillusioned many persons as to the real points at issue. The mayor's talk, which was exceptionally timely and comprehensive, made an excellent impression. He said:

Mayor Hastings' Address
"Mr. Chairman: Twenty years ago, if the city of Evanston could have called together a group of its citizens such as we have here tonight to consider the questions that are coming up before us, Evanston today would not be a hodge-podge of apartment houses, factories, lumber yards and coal yards, but would be, what it was

FAMOUS VIOLINIST HERE NEXT TUESDAY

ALL-STAR ARTIST SERIES

Noted French Musician to Appear in High School Auditorium; History of Career; Other Numbers Coming

Renee Chemet, violinist, who will be heard here in recital next Tuesday evening, December 8, at 8:15, at the Elm Place auditorium, in the second of the Highland Park All-Star Concert series, has been recognized by the leading critics throughout the world as one of the greatest of living violinists. Since coming to America three years ago, she has been soloist with the important symphony orchestras, and appeared on all the big concert courses, and at many of the music festivals. She has played at the White House and so swayed her audience when she appeared last season at the Blackstone Morning Musicals that she was re-engaged for this season, being one of the only two artists who have ever been presented in two consecutive seasons at these musicales.

History of Career
Renee Chemet was born in Boulogne-sur-Seine, a suburb of Paris, France. Her tomboy pranks, at the age of seven, persuaded her mother that the young Renee must be sent away to a severe boarding school; but her father, eager to keep his favorite at home, vetoed the plan. For he had discovered that the child had a remarkably fine musical ear, and contented that it would be far cleverer to make her a musician, and, more particularly, a violinist.

Before the child had studied a month she was able to name any musical sound. The highest harmonics on a violin, even though new to her, did not confuse her. She would say, in answer to everyone's astonishment: "The notes tell me their names."

At nine Renee Chemet was a pupil in solfège, theory, etc., at the Paris Conservatory.

OPEN LETTER FROM H. P. WOMAN'S CLUB

Civics Committee Corrects Distorted Story in Chicago Morning Paper

Fellow Citizens: After the public hearing before the zoning committee last Friday, a certain Chicago morning newspaper carried a front page story of that meeting not only garbled and distorted, but with an absolutely untrue statement. The error was pointed out to the acting city editor, but the paper made no correction in its subsequent issues.

Therefore we call the attention of the community to this error, which, if believed, would do damage to the whole community. The paper said that the west side and the east side of the village were divided on the proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance. This is not true. The persons who are opposed to the amendment as it now stands, are the home owners all over town.

The home owners are alarmed at the prospect of apartments getting a foothold anywhere. Whether the home be a cottage or a mansion, the menace of the apartment is the same. It is a question of the welfare of the children, and there are children both sides of the tracks.

Residents of the town are fighting for all that is nearest and dearest to them—their homes and their children's future. They realize that the admission of apartment houses means the ruin of the village as a place of homes, and they refuse to be the victims of real estate speculators.

The function of the local business is to serve the homes. The homes must not be made subservient to the business interests. The committee urges the community to study the question, investigate the situation in other north shore towns, and be prepared to stand for their right as home owners.

Above all, do not let careless or vicious publicity cloud the issue. The questions are: Do you want apartments to get a foothold in Highland Park or not? And do you want Highland Park to be a business and industrial center, or a beautiful suburb of houses?

Signed—The Civics Committee, Highland Park Woman's Club, Mrs. Robert Seyfarth, president, Mrs. A. O. Mason, Jr., chairman.

MARIONETTES PLEASE TWO BIG AUDIENCES

Tony Sarg's marionettes pleased two large audiences Tuesday afternoon and evening at the Elm Place auditorium. In the afternoon the offering was "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" and some shorter features, all of which greatly pleased the large number of children present.

In the evening the attraction was "Treasure Island," and the realistic manner in which the marionettes performed the parts of the characters in Stevenson's famous pirate story afforded unlimited pleasure to all who attended. The two performances were under the auspices of the Woman's club.

FAREWELL SERMON BY BELOVED RECTOR

AT TRINITY CHURCH SUN.

Reception at Rectory in Afternoon; Both Notable Events, Show Community's Appreciation

Last Sunday morning Dr. P. C. Wolcott preached his farewell sermon as rector of Highland Park Trinity church. In the afternoon he and Mrs. Wolcott were at home to all their friends at the rectory, and both the morning service and the afternoon reception were notable events.

Perhaps never in the history of this city has there been such a manifestation of esteem and appreciation for a local citizen as has been shown by Highland Park folks since the news of Dr. Wolcott's resignation became public, and the reception at the rectory on Sunday was the climax of this feeling. During the three hours, from four to seven o'clock, almost a steady stream of people called to express their regrets and to wish the beloved couple well. It was a spontaneous outpouring of good will and sincere appreciation, and it represented in a splendid way the sentiment of the community toward Dr. and Mrs. Wolcott. The following graphic and feeling account of the morning service is contributed:

MANY HEAR NOTED ENGLISHMAN SPEAK

A. Hamilton Gibbs' Address Tuesday at Woman's Club Draws Large Attendance

A large enthusiastic audience last Tuesday afternoon greeted the appearance of A. Hamilton Gibbs at the Highland Park Woman's club. Mr. Gibbs is a young Englishman, brother of the famous Sir Philip and Cosmo Hamilton. In his opening remarks, he likened himself to a stable-boy who, having grown up with horses, is not surprised to find himself turn out to be a jockey. Similarly, young Mr. Gibbs, as son and brother, not to mention several minor relationships, to literary men, finds it quite natural that he should be a writer.

His talk on "The Human Side of Writing a Novel" furnished many a graphic and humorous picture of literary men plying their trade. Some worked in the night, albeit at queer hours, such as from twelve midnight to dawn, others worked all day, and again others worked both night and day. Cigarettes and pipes were the "stage properties" so to speak of the performance. G. K. Chesterton usually distinguishing himself by the preponderance in mere numbers which he could smoke. The speaker's elder brother, Sir Philip Gibbs, might at first glance appear to rival Chesterton in the array of cigarettes, but on closer observation, it would be seen that the Gibbs cigarettes were not smoked, but only puffed at once perhaps and laid aside, and then forgotten in the throes of composition. Although this habit might not recommend itself readily to thrift, it was imputed to Sir Philip for righteousness in the field of concentration.

Mr. Gibbs told several interesting incidents connected with well known British writers, mentioning especially, Beloe, a recently naturalized Englishman, of French origin, Locke, Stegried Sasson, and others. Then he took up Americans and their methods, touching kindly rather than facetiously on the Oppenheim fecundity of production. Not that Oppenheim does not deserve the kindness, but it is rather unusual and long-suffering in a writer who takes at least one year to write a book, to speak in terms of deference of one who turns out eighty-nine this side of old age, and is "still going strong."

Mr. Gibbs spoke of the distractions that beset the daily output of the pen, and how there was simply no remedy for it but hard discipline and concentration. He spoke of the high expectations of the writer folk, the serial rights, the cinema rights, the florid expectations, the bitter disappointments, which beset their path. Whether intentionally or not, he showed himself to be a hard worker. He is modest, unassuming, sanguine, and slow of speech—a very likeable Englishman, who has shown himself not inimical to America by marrying an American girl. All credit to the fine program committee, and may their good work increase!
