

LOCAL MAN IS SHOT
BY HIGHWAY PATROL*DIES IN H. P. HOSPITAL*Samuel D. Christopher Victim of Fatal Chase Saturday Night;
Inquest Results in Holding Officer

Samuel D. Christopher, 712 North Green Bay road, employed as a line-man by the Public Service Co., was fatally wounded by a bullet in the head-fired Saturday night by Arthur Kline, a Cook county deputy sheriff acting as highway patrol. Christopher died early Sunday morning in the Highland Park hospital. The officer was held to the grand jury as a result of an inquest Monday night.

According to testimony brought out at the inquest held Monday evening at the H. M. Prior company's office, the shooting occurred between 11 and 11:30 o'clock Saturday night near the corner of Waukegan and County Line roads. Two deputies, William Mandernack and Arthur Kline, testified that Christopher had been halted for driving recklessly without lights and was trying to speed away from them after being told to drive to a station. They claimed the chase covered three or four miles, and that Mandernack first emptied his gun at the fleeing Ford sedan which Christopher was driving, and that Kline leaving Mandernack with the motorcycle, commanded a passing car and continued the chase, and that one of the rear tires of the sedan was apparently hit by bullets, as it was partly torn off.

Claims He Slipped
Kline said that finally, after the sedan had turned east on County Line road, he stepped from the pursuing car and fired again trying to hit the other rear tire, that he slipped to his knee, his hand flying upward as the gun was discharged, the bullet going through the rear glass striking Christopher in the back of the head. The officers said they had stopped another driver and was talking to him near Dundee road, when Christopher drove by rapidly and nearly striking them. Mandernack followed and searched both the man and the car, finding no weapon, but discovering a bottle containing a small quantity of liquid that smelled like liquor. There was no cork in the bottle, he claimed. The officer thought the man had been drinking, he said. He ordered Christopher to drive back to Northbrook and started him ahead. Then the man speeded up and the officer followed, finally firing until his gun was discharged. When he came back to where Kline was, Mandernack turned over the chase to the other officer, who stopped William Giacomo, 106 South First street, Highland Park.

W. C. Powell Dies At His Home Thursday
Funeral on Saturday

Last Thursday evening Mr. William C. Powell passed away at his home, 328 Park avenue, after an illness of two years. The service in his memory was conducted at the residence on Saturday afternoon and the interment took place at the North Shore cemetery. His pastor, the Rev. Frank Fitt, officiated. Mr. Powell is survived by his wife and daughter, Miss Gwendolyn James, to whom the heartfelt sympathy of many friends is offered.

Mr. Powell and his family came to Highland Park almost four years ago, living first on Laurel avenue and then in their own home on Park avenue. For the last twenty-five years Mr. Powell has been the Chicago manager of the Preferred Accident Insurance company of New York. He was a member of the Chicago Athletic club and for some years before coming to Highland Park had been president of the board of trustees of a Congregational church on the south side. Very soon after arriving in our community Mr. Powell was stricken with the beginning of the illness which brought about his death, but within the limited opportunity of his activity he allied himself with the good influences of our city. We all know that he stood for the highest qualities of citizenship.

Those who had the privilege of coming within the circle of Mr. Powell's influence appreciated his rare and beautiful character. Those who were most closely associated with him in business in Chicago realized that he was able to infuse into his work the atmosphere that made for character and inspiration. Quietly and without any ostentation he gave a helping hand to many. Refined, cultured, distinguished in appearance he possessed also a human touch that gave him a sympathetic understanding of others and especially of those much younger than himself. Through the months of his affliction he uttered no complaints and constantly exhibited a brave and cheerful spirit. All through life he never put himself first and the consequence is that in these days when he has passed from us there are many who realize how great is their debt to him. Such a man as the late William C. Powell leaves a heritage that cannot well be measured. Our community is much the poorer in his passing.

Hans Hess, Violoncellist
In Concert Here Sunday Afternoon March 7th

"Hans Hess, the famous violoncellist," who is to play a concert here Sunday, March 7, at 3 p. m., in the Elm Place auditorium, under the auspices of the Arts committee of the Woman's Civic club of Ravinia, "has surely a message to give with his music. The fortunate possessor of one of the finest instruments in the world, and gifted as only a few in this world are gifted, with years of devotion to his art, is master of masters among the contemporary cellists of the day. Prone as we are to judge by what we hear daily and giving all due credit and gratitude for the appreciation which makes us proud of the products of our own locality, we nevertheless have to hear the finest occasionally in order to realize just what music really means. To the musician it is an inspiration; to the music lover it is one of those beauties of life which although he cannot copy, he can absorb and be the better for the experience. Like all true artists, Mr. Hess in building his programs, prepared numbers which would appeal to everyone. If one did not care particularly for the stately sonnets of Corelli, or of the Lalo concertos, displaying the marvelous technic of the player; there were still those shorter appealing numbers which show perhaps more than any the interpretive powers of the artist. Even without the ability to analyze the form or to distinguish the types of numbers, one could not help but enjoy the veritable magic of the music, that superb melody and heavenly tone which is for every one who desires to hear and to call his own." — Reprinted from the "Beaumont (Texas) Enterprise."

JAIL DELIVERY IS NARROWLY AVERTED*FIND WEAPONS IN CELLS*Body of Missing Man Found In Lake; Grand Jury Returns 19
Indictments; Other Late
County News

Sheriff Edwin Ahlstrom on Monday announced the discovery of a supposed plot of two prisoners in the county jail to overpower either the day or night turnkey and escape. The plot was discovered within the past week. A knife and two clubs, the latter made out of tin foil and weighing about two pounds each were found in a cell on the first floor by Carl Ahlstrom, day turnkey. A wholesale jail delivery may have been foiled by discovery of the weapons, the sheriff said.

The cell, in question, is occupied by James Gordon Miller, who was convicted in the October term of court along with Jack Durand on a charge of robbery, and Frank Walkowski, alias Kasper, an ex-convict, awaiting trial here on a robbery charge.

Take Body From Lake
The waters of Lake Michigan on Sunday gave up the body of David T. Long, 37 years old, ex-chief yeoman and mental patient at the Great Lakes naval hospital, who was reported missing on December 9 of last year.

The body was found partially encased in ice inside of the breakwater a few feet south of the main entrance to the Great Lakes Naval station boat house by a boat house attendant.

An inquest was held Sunday and a verdict of "death by drowning" returned by the jury. Commander Conger presided at the inquest.

City Officials Are Made Defendants In
More Suits in Court

In addition to the suit filed in the circuit court by Attorneys Gail and Jackson representing Olaf Lindblom, against V. C. Musser, an employe in the office of the city clerk, two other suits involving city officials also have been filed, one against Corporation Counsel Samuel Holmes and the other asks for an injunction restraining the city treasurer, Harry Paul, from paying Holmes additional funds, which it is alleged he is not entitled to collect and asks the court to order the city treasurer to make an accounting.

The suit against V. C. Musser, charging that he received certain fees illegally, was reported last week. The others are summarized as follows:

Suit Against Holmes
Robert R. Cowie was named as plaintiff in the suit against Corporation Counsel Samuel Holmes, which also names Treasurer Harry Paul, and the City of Highland Park as defendants. Attorney Leslie Needham filed the bill.

The bill states that the salary of the corporation counsel is fixed by ordinance at $2,400 a year, no further compensation to be allowed this officer. It is charged that in a mandamus suit started against the City of Highland Park by Attorney Needham, Corporation Counsel Holmes represented an official involved. The bill says that the law firm of McNabb, Holmes and Long, was allowed a bill of $1,225.46 for services rendered in the case. It is charged that the money was paid out of the general fund and that Holmes received a portion of the money, contrary to the law. An accounting is asked to determine the compensation of Holmes, and the attorney made to return his share to the city.

Cites Figures
The bill says that from May, 1924, to April 30, 1925, Holmes received $3,663.51 for work purported to have been done on special assessments. It is further charged that Holmes during this same period received a fee of $4,290.45 on another special assessment job and that he was not entitled to the money in either case. An accounting from both Paul and Holmes is required, according to the bill.

NEW BUILDING TO REPLACE LANDMARK*AT GREEN BAY & CENTRAL*McKillop to Erect Three-Story Structure; Old House Is To Be Removed By E. E. Farmer

Early removal of another old landmark in Highland Park is indicated by E. E. Farmer's purchase of the house at the southeast corner of Central avenue and Green Bay road to make way for an extensive improvement planned by the owner of the property, W. H. McKillop. This house was recently vacated by the Highland Park Y. W. C., which sold the property to Mr. McKillop.

Mr. Farmer expects to move the old house to another location within the next couple of weeks, if weather is favorable, and Mr. McKillop is preparing to erect on the site thus vacated a three-story brick store and apartment building, to cost somewhere in the neighborhood of $100,000.

The new addition to the business district will be wholly modern and provided with every possible convenience. Plans are not yet completed, but Mr. McKillop said this week that it was his intention to erect a building to extend about 65 feet on Central avenue from the corner, leaving 60 feet for an addition to be built later at the east end. The building to be started this spring will comprise four store rooms on the first floor with apartments on the two upper floors. Ten apartments are planned.

Business District West
This is another indication that progressive business men are convinced that the future growth of the business district in Highland Park is to be westward, as scope for expansion to the east is already limited, and this means steady increase of improvements of this character westward on Central avenue.

The old frame house which Mr. Farmer plans to remove from the site it has held so long, was erected about forty years ago by C. G. Hammond, according to the memory of George Brand, well known pioneer resident. Mr. Brand recalls also that before this house was erected there stood on the same site an older dwelling which was originally built of logs before the advent of the first railway here, and when there were but three or four houses in the pioneer community. This first house was later enlarged and remodeled into a frame structure, and when the present house was to be built, the older building was removed to a location on McGovern.
