"The League of Women Voters is the most perfect organization for women in the country" declared the Rev. J. AIRPLANE DUSTING TO PROTECT CROPS

METHOD IS CONSIDERED

Many Acres Can Be Sprayed by This Means In Short Time and Experiments Show Practicability

Airplane dusting, similar to that used on cotton for the control of the boll weevil, may be the next step in improving the methods which are now used to fight the insect and disease enemies of Illinois fruit industry. This was indicated when 30 of the leading peach growers of southern Illinois met last week at the invitation of W. P. Flint, chief entomologist of the state natural history survey, Urbana, to discuss the question of airplane dusting with C. L. Woolman, field superintendent of a commercial airplane dusting concern. Approximately 4,000 acres of peach orchards were represented by the growers who attended the conference.

Flint's action in calling the meeting is in line with his belief that Illinois growers should consider airplane dusting as a future practice in commercial peach production. His belief is backed by M. J. Dorset, chief of pomology at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois; Dr. H. W. Anderson, associate chief of pomology and R. S. Marsh, horticulture extension specialist, all of whom attended the meeting and who believe that airplane dusting would be highly advisable under certain conditions.

Dusting of peach trees by means of airplanes already has been tried out with complete success, Woolman told the growers. Although his company has confined its activities chiefly to the dusting of cotton for boll weevil control, it dusted a thousand acres of peaches in Georgia last year with excellent results, he reported. Federal entomologists who inspected the job reported that the top and under side of the peach leaves were covered 20 per cent better when the trees were dusted with airplanes than they were when the dusting was done from the ground. The same check revealed that the airplane dusting gave better control of curculio, a serious ground parasite.

It also can be done in a small fraction of the time required for treating the trees from the ground and also growers are relieved of all the expense of equipment for summer spraying and the need of maintaining a force of men for this work. The saving in materials comes from the fact that a ground rig delivers the dust at a rate of about 15 to 20 miles an hour, while the airplane shoots it out at a speed of about 250 miles an hour. This high velocity gives the particles a swirl which gives the dust a uniform spread and imparts a positive electric charge which repels the particles away from one another but causes them to be attracted by the foliage and fruit.

The machines fly at a rate of 100 miles an hour and deliver the dust on a swath 60 feet wide. Last season Woolman's company dusted 750 acres of cotton in 79 minutes, which is considered significant in view of the fact that only timely spraying and dusting gives successful insect and disease control.

—And Now
Tax Reduction Allowed

Effective at once, the delivered price of all Chevrolet models is reduced. Chevrolet buyers will be given the benefit of the recent tax reduction though it does not become officially operative until March 29th. Thus for the third time since the first of this year Chevrolet emphasizes its supremacy in dollar for dollar value.

First—Reduced Prices

Early in January Chevrolet announced sweeping price reductions.

Then—the Improved Chevrolet

Shortly thereafter the improved Chevrolet was announced at these reduced prices. Instantly it met with such an increase in popularity that it became necessary to break all previous production records for January and February.

And Now—a Further Saving

Although the reduction in automobile taxes does not become officially effective for some time, the full amount of this reduction is now passed on to Chevrolet buyers. Thus Chevrolet again emphasizes that principle of value on which it has built the greatest success ever attained by any manufacturer of modern gear shift automobiles. Come in! See the improved Chevrolet! One ride will be a revelation!
