

Mr. and Mrs. Sallie

—being the Confessions of a new wife—

Illustrated by Paul Robinson

Copyright 1925 by Publishers Autocaster Service

An Acquaintance Blooms Into Friendship

"The reason I can not understand why so many girls in your country and this are cutting short their tresses is because in Russia a woman's hair is woven into our poetry, folk-lore and song," the young Cossack continued speaking, "we have grown to consider it a sacred symbol and in many instances the way a girl wears her hair has a special significance. For instance, unmarried Ukrainian lassies wear their hair loose in a long, single braid ornamented with ribbons and sometimes covered with flowers. This braid, or kosa, is a maiden's chief ornament, the cherished object of her care. Its unbraiding is the sign of the change which is coming upon her."

"And what of the married ones?" he had said.

"Oh, they wear theirs in two braids wound round the head and covered with a kerchief."

"What enchanting sentiment!" averred Barrington Pierce.

"Yes, it's all right but personally my only objection to bobbed hair is that when I go into a barber shop I can never get a chair!"

The Cossack smiled.

"What do you think about it?" he turned to Barry who was at my side.

"I'm afraid I'll never get used to it though I'm quite sure there isn't a long-haired girl left in Paris. To find one would equal the search for the proverbial needle in the haystack. My ideals of course are the lovely leading ladies of Opera and I can never imagine Marguerite for instance with a boyish bob."

"Or Aida with a shaved neck!" concluded Curtiss.

"Some of the opposing forces declare that the Bible forbids bobbing," declared Lemoyne Danille.

"Really That's interesting. Do you know where?" asked Andre Moliere.

"Yes, I do, although my knowledge

I did not."

It was a small thing in itself but her desire to please Barrington Pierce was plainly evident even in the most trivial affairs.

It was almost daybreak when we said goodbye. While the Cossack was busy Curtiss had adroitly paid the check. We exchanged cards and addresses and I had the psychic feeling that it was not the last time that our paths would cross.

The next afternoon there came a gentle tap-tapping at my door. In response to my invitation to enter, the door opened quickly and in walked Lemoyne.

"O, mon enfant!" she began speaking French as she invariably did un-der great emotional stress, "word has just come from my manager that I am to sing 'Manon' at the Opera Comique. It is my favorite role and the first time I've had the opportunity to do the part."

"How perfectly corking!" I interrupted, now wide awake, and catching the enthusiasm of Lemoyne who was informally ensconced on the chaise-longue, "when? Oh, I hope while we are here."

"That's one reason I'm so happy about it all. Today is Monday, tomorrow's Tuesday and then—Wednesday is the night of nights—at least for Lemoyne. I've phoned Barry and you three will be in a box. I'll do much better if he is there," she added aloud, though I'm sure she meant to frame the sentence only in thought.

"Today, tonight and tomorrow I'll be shut up with my teacher in order to rehearse. Of course it's in my repertoire—all opera singers know the famous roles," she answered the question I was about to ask.

"I hope I didn't wake you, but I wanted so for you to know. I might as well tell you that you've won your way straight into my heart. It's intangible—this thing called friendship," she announced wistfully, "and not often in a lifetime does one have more than one real friend. The theosophists would say that in a form-

"Really?"

"Yes, I realize," she continued, "that so many of my so-called friends flock around me because I've been fortunate enough to acquire in a measure that subtle thing that the world calls fame. Were I a nonentity, and still myself, how far would these same friends go? This business of worshipping those who have gratified their own ambition and forged ahead is not fair. Followers of the arts," she added, "get a full sense of satisfaction out of their work—a thrill that more than compensates for the struggle and sacrifices they usually have made to attain success and, with it come the plaudits of the world. If I were not a singer but a manikin in some obscure shop I would not be admired for myself or my personality or my own individual attainments, no, I would be lost with those half-million other girls in Paris who are much more deserving, because their work itself is without colour or joy."

"I think you're wrong, Lemoyne," I said, "people would still seek you out for your charm."

"You haven't lived in the greater meaning of the word, mon enfant, nor have you perceived the husks on which most friendships are fed. Fame is the most overrated thing in the world," she continued, her eyes holding a grave and pensive light, "it is the 'open sesame' to anything that its possessor might wish to obtain. It clothes one with popularity, golden opinions, and freedom of unconventional (with no risk of being anathematized) even to the point of immorality at the same time the assurance that any aberration will be condoned on the ground of temperament—temperament," she repeated, "that clever piece of propaganda put out by artists themselves as an excuse for their non-conformity to rules to which others are inexorably bound."

"You shouldn't be cynical, Lemoyne," I remonstrated, "you're too lovely and young."

"It's not cynicism m'amie, but rebellion at the injustice of things as they are. Not for myself but for others who have not had the good-fortune to attract the attention of the fleet-footed nymph that the world has labelled renown. But come, I must not start your day with such analytical reflection. I'll leave you now so that you may dress. Your very nice husband is patiently waiting down stairs for you to join him on a personally conducted tour of the Louvre."

"We'll walk over. It's a glorious day. Tell Curtiss please that I'll be right down," I called to her as she stood in the doorway. The door closed.

I felt that I had peeped into the innermost recesses of an extraordinary woman's heart.

(To be continued)

COACH ROTHACHER IS MAKING FINE RECORD

Coach Rothacher, former athletic director at Deerfield-Shields, is meeting with great success at Springfield college, in Massachusetts. His football team came through with flying colors, and now his swimming team has defeated Amherst with the odds 2 to 1 against him.

Special for Two Weeks $82.00

Do away with your old fashioned sink and install this Double Drain board one-piece Sink, 22x60 1/2" in long, with swinging spout faucet Complete, $82.00

Swinging spout faucet, as shown on sink—$8.00

On display at our showroom.

VIC J. KILLIAN, Inc.
PLUMBING CONTRACTORS
917 Waukegan Avenue
Phone H. P. 1248

HIGH SCHOOL BOARD IN REGULAR SESSION

At the last meeting of the high school board of education Principal R. L. Sandwick spoke on the effect of conditions on the health of students and also upon certain additional opportunities offered by high school courses.

The board voted to place a public telephone in the auditorium of the school.

Mr. Dinkeloq was authorized to attend the Music Supervisors' conference in Detroit from April 12 to 16.

Mr. Schneider was authorized to attend at Des Moines, Iowa, March 17-20, the joint convention of the Vocational Education association of the Middle West and the Western Arts association.

Provisions were made for the holding of the annual election of a board member on the second Saturday in April.

May be all right to stop the business men from getting too much profit, but the people should not throw themselves out of work while doing so.

New Home at Cost

Beautiful new English type, half-timbered seven room home on fine lot with large fruit trees on paved street. This home has large living room with beamed and vaulted ceiling, natural stone fireplace and chimney. Sunny dining room connected with kitchen by butler's pantry. Four chambers and tile bath. Garage designed to match the architecture of the dwelling.

Fixtures by Caesar.

This home could not be duplicated in this district for less than $18,000 or $20,000, and is located fairly close to the main depots on the C. & N. W. and A. E. & C. R. R. at Glen Ellyn, Illinois. Price $11,500.

Key at A. C. Hoy & Co.'s Glen Ellyn office, just across from the C. & N. W. depot. (Mr. Knaak).

A. C. HOY & CO.
160 N. LaSalle St. State 6644
550 Crescent Blvd. Glen Ellyn
Phone Glen Ellyn 505

PIANO TUNING

All work guaranteed. Charges Reasonable. Estimates Free
15 Years' Experience Phone OFFICE HIGHLAND PARK 2048

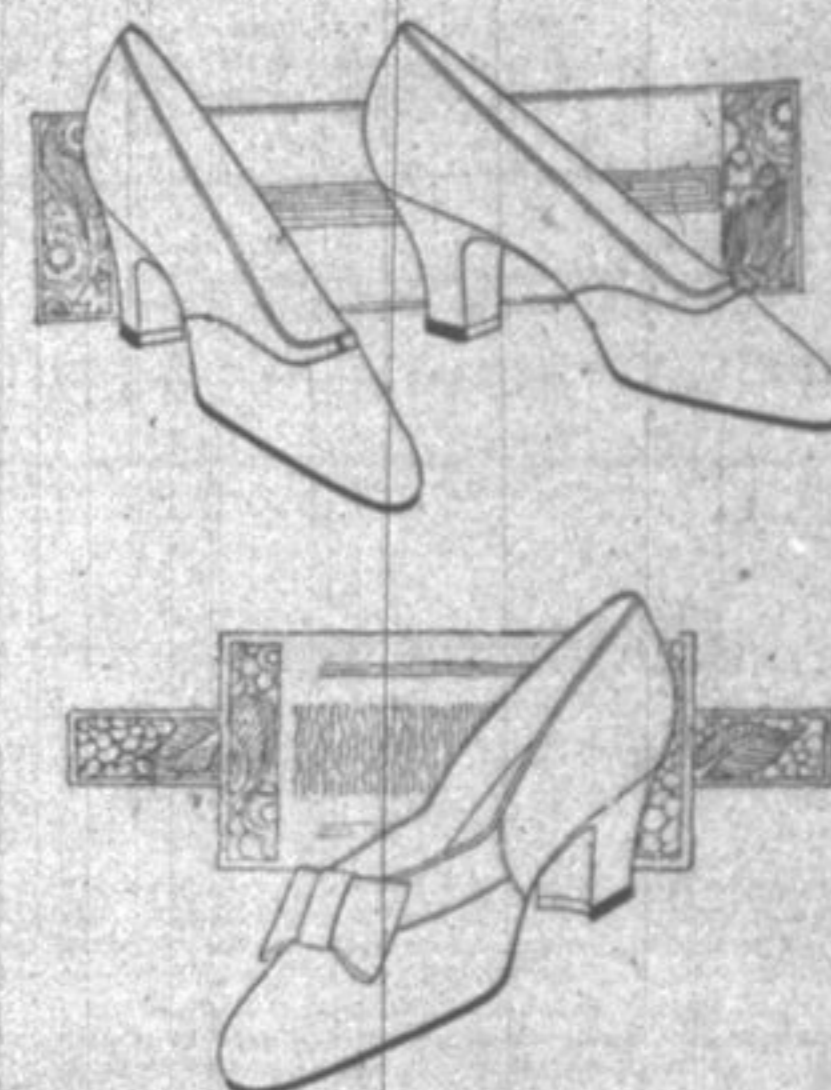

H. F. PAHNKE
National Association
PIANO TUNER

16-18 N. Sheridan Road, Rm. 10, Highland Park, Ill.
Office Hours: Daily 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Signs of Spring

Fell Brothers' new spring styles have the smart look you like. They make the right impression. They express the good taste of those who care.

Fell Bros. Shoes

Florsheim for Men; Arch Preserver, Queen Quality for Women 509 Central Ave. Phone H. P. 456

THE OPENING

of our

First Class Meat Market

in conjunction with our
GROCERY DEPARTMENT
was a wonderful success

A Full Line of High Grade Meats and Fresh Fruits and Vegetables are carried

The addition of a market to our store makes it possible for you to do all your marketing in one place.

Come and see what you want in meats, vegetables, etc., or telephone us — 454 — and prompt service will be given you.

Our Telephone Service is especially Convenient and Complete

C. C. NIEBUHR
Groceries, Meats, Etc.

39-41 South St. Johns Avenue Phones 454-455

of the Book of Books is scant. It's the fifteenth verse of the Eleventh chapter of First Corinthians—it reads —"But if a woman have long hair it is a glory to her, for her hair is given her for a covering."

"Bravo! You did that with quite an air," Curtiss announced.

"I have an argument for those who bob," put in Andre Moliere. "I understand that a well-known scientist is contending that in the next generation we will all be hairless. One German thinker came out the other day in a concise article on the subject claiming that we lose, as we progress more and more hair! Of course it's based on evolution because he mentioned the fact that each stage of development, beginning with the monkey, produces less and less hair."

"By jove, bald heads do give the effect of intelligence," exclaimed Curtiss. "And now that we are confronted with the facts in the case there isn't anything specially intellectual about a man with a shock of hair," he teasingly threw in Barry's direction because, like most musicians, were his not extremely, but moderately long.

While the others were laughing at Curtiss, Lemoyne leaning slightly across me, said to Barry who was at my right, "I didn't know how you felt about bobbing. I've often longed to cut mine but now, thank Goodness, er life you and I were attracted or closely connected in some way and held by an eternal bond—and perhaps that's the most intelligent explanation for mutual attraction after all. You've never been a stranger to me although I've known you only a very short time. I hope I'm not being too sentimental," she apologized, "but I believe in presenting flowers, if one truly deserves them, as we go along." She blushed slightly, almost self-conscious because of her frank revelation of her affection for me.

"I feel the same way about you too," I agreed, "and I'm so flattered that you like me. You, who have so many admirers and hundreds of friends—"

"Not friends, acquaintances, my dear. Until I met you, Sallie, I never had a real, true friend, to whom I could unburden my heart."

"Why do you like me?" I asked, "there're others, great celebrities who seek you out and worship at your shrine. You're a wonderful singer and I—well, I'm just little old me."

She laughed outright.

"But 'little old me' just happens to have that beautiful gift of understanding and of being interested in other people and of course, that is the real key to friendship. With the others I am always conscious of a great gulf of misunderstanding and doubt."

THURSDAY

Mrs. Geo. Mo., was Blaine, Fri Mrs. A. guest We Kessench Mrs. Fy con guest Chicago, F Miss Irs the week- Harvey L. Mrs. J. the regu Aid societ church at ternop, Ch Mrs. A. the March Dorcas s church at Wednesday cle II will W. A. We Thursday Frank Sm will enter afternoon. Mrs. R. cousin, M. Albany Pa Miss S. at the Jus noon. On We Knaak e bride. Mr. an salic, N. J. nounce th day, Mar The Ma was ente Burns of Mrs. H. Libertyl is a meo Mr. an two child day with and Mrs. road. The re sive club was sch noon, M. indente Mrs. C. lard and journa eral mee field. Mrs. A. mitte r Cross of the Red House. Mr. a their di Mrs. L. Mr. and ka. The give a store of o'clock Mrs. avenue Betty, birthday noon. Miria for the hospita spendin Mr. an Mrs. J. Vajt e Walter Northb urday many vicinity. Abot ter sut unier. Pengre The be hel Missio ish ch church presid have e. Mis taught race e North lege, diplon De

No progr mitte Pare state of th week the i in close will Frid a ve Chil publ soci cula exco

Nov adm day bud ban own saf sha T the pas of Te hat