and stood for every agency that worked for the good of Highland Park and its citizens.

Mr. and Mrs. Keller have not had an idea moment since they have reached Highland Park. On Saturday night a dinner was tendered them by the vestry, at which every vestryman and his wife was present. Mr. John V. Norcross, senior warden, presided and assured Mr. Keller of the united support and backing of the vestry in the work which he intends to carry out. Mr. Norcross then called upon Dean Edwards, who stated that it was his prerogative as priest in charge at the time, to welcome Mr. Keller and offer advice which was befitting from a senior to a junior priest whose rectorship would become effective at twelve midnight.

In reply Mr. Keller expressed his great appreciation of the wonderful welcome tendered to himself and wife and outlined his plans as he saw them and assured those present that he would give his best to the parish and to the community.

Reception at Parish House

On Monday night a reception was held at the parish house to give the members and friends of Trinity church an opportunity to meet Mr. and Mrs. Keller. The great interest in their coming was evidenced by the great number who came to extend their greetings. The City of Highland Park was represented by Commissioner Frank L. Cheney, who is acting mayor during the absence of Mayor Hastings. The schools were represented by Richard L. Sandwick, principal of the Deerfield-Shields high school, and Jesse L. Smith of the Elm Place school. Among the clergy present were Rev. F. J. Magner, of St. James' church, Highland; Rev. Wm. B. Doble of Grace M. E. Church, Highland Park; Rev. Hubert Carleton, president of the Wilmette Ministerial association, and Rev. Herbert W. Prince of Lake Forest.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of the parish, and after a few selections were rendered by Trinity church quartet, the Rev. Frank Pitt of the Highland Park Presbyterian church, in representing the clergy of Highland Park, extended to Mr. and Mrs. Keller a welcome and assured them that the co-operation which he had expressed would be greatly appreciated by his fellow clergy, who were all endeavoring to better the spiritual condition of Highland Park.

At Moraine Hotel

Mrs. Keller will return to her home in Winona on Thursday and does not anticipate returning until the first of September when the rectory will be ready for their occupancy. In the meanwhile Mr. Keller will be located at the Moraine hotel, where he can be reached by those in need of his services.

Highland Park is to be congratulated in having in its midst such a man as Mr. Keller, who it is predicted will be a power and force in the community, and under his guidance and leadership a great future is predicted for Trinity church.

Local Man Classmate

It is a most happy coincidence that in coming to Highland Park Mr. Keller will come into close and intimate contact with Mr. George W. Childs, our fellow townsman, who was a member of Mr. Keller's class at the University of Pennsylvania.

WOMAN CANDIDATE IS ENDORSED BY MAYOR

Miss Weinacht Running for Alderman in Highwood Given His Support

The following letter has been received from Mayor Joseph Severson of Highwood endorsing the candidacy of Miss Elsie Weinacht for alderman in the first ward in the annual city election in that city April 20. The letter:

Three aldermen are to be elected in Highwood April 20. There is no opposition in the second and third wards, but in the first ward there are three candidates on the ticket. Miss Elsie Weinacht is the first woman who has ever attempted to run for alderman and raised in the city of Highwood; her father is a plumber at Fort Sheridan and a civil service employee and is therefore unable to hold an office while employed as such.

This lady is a bookkeeper and has an exceptionally good education, an excellent reputation, and is well qualified for the office she seeks. The voters of the first ward should take into consideration that the exceptionally high educational qualifications of this lady are urgently needed in the council for the betterment of the city at large, and a vote for her is a vote for progress.

(Signed) Joseph Severson, Mayor of Highwood.

WHAT WILL THEY DO ABOUT WOMEN NOW?

Legislators Spent Years Protecting Them, and Now They Want Equality

Legislators anxious not only for the votes but the sympathy and the good will of the women citizens of the country find themselves in a state of confusion. For years, long before men had the vote, the whole tendency of voters had been to enact protective legislation aimed to safeguard women and children in industry. In so doing, they have had the applause of the people at large, and indeed the careers of many statesmen who questioned the advisability of these restrictive measures, and who voted against them have been nipped in the bud because of their adverse actions.

But now a considerable group of women have come forward in their own right, and in asking equality with men are insisting that all restrictions be removed on the grounds that these laws which limit to escape of women in industry have operated to decrease their earning capacity, they argue that a woman has as much right to work overtime as a man, and the right to make such a decision belongs to her and not with the state. It is between these two crossfires, of those who demand in the interests of humanity that women be protected, and the women who claim that freedom of choice should be with the women themselves, that the legislators now find themselves, a position which is not a happy one. In the end it will be settled as all things are settled to the best interests of all parties.
