THE ENCHANTED APRIL TO BE HERE APRIL 24

North Shore Theatre Guild Production Is a Comedy; North Shore People in Cast

The latest North Shore Theatre guild production, "The Enchanted April," is a comedy brimful with scintillating dialogue, humorous situations and a beautiful love story. Kane Campbell, who dramatized this very popular book, has caught the charm and beauty of the novel. The play evolves about four women, who although unknown to one another, and from different castes and environments in life, yet are drawn together by an advertisement in a London newspaper that an Italian castle on the Mediterranean sea is for rent for the month of April. They rent the castle on the club plan with the proposition that it is to be a safe retreat from the male species for thirty days. What eventuates when the husbands of two of the women and lovers for the hand of Lady Caroline Dester invade the place, brings to a culmination many scenes of rich merriment and, of course, the big love scene in the play which is destined to live in dramatic history.

Mrs. Laird Bell of "Mary the Third," Helen Sanford of "Outward Bound," Julia Hanks of "Outward Bound," and Mrs. DeWitt Buchanan of Lake Forest who is making her first appearance with the guild have the leading roles. W. Albert Kemp of Glencoe, J. Lincoln Gibson of Evanston, E. Lyman, Jr., of Evanston, Arthur Boettcher of Evanston and Mrs. Donald F. McPherson of Winnetka complete the cast. The play will be in Highland Park week from Monday and in Lake Forest the following night.

CITY GOVERNMENT COST INCREASING

Federal Is Being Reduced, But Municipal Continues to Climb, Report

While federal expenditures are steadily decreasing the expenditures of American cities are growing greater, according to figures just issued by the Department of Commerce.

The revenues of the cities have mounted too, but not enough to keep pace with the expenditures. The per capita indebtedness was increased forty per cent from 1917 to 1924 because of the enormous increase in the number of municipal bonds issued. During this same seven year period public expenditures are nearly three times as great as they were in 1903.

The per capita government cost for expenses and interest for 146 cities was $16.41 in 1903. It increased to $24.58 in 1917. It jumped to $45.62 in 1924.

Net indebtedness per capita of these cities was $44.71 in 1903. This had increased to $80.75 by 1917. It jumped to $110.09 in 1924.

The payments for maintenance and operation of the general departments of the city governments of the 248 cities for the fiscal period 1924 amounted to $1,429,749,082, or $35.76 per capita. In 1917 the comparative per capita for maintenance and operation of general departments was $19.07. Payments for the operation of public service enterprises, interest on debt, and outlays for permanent improvements brought the total payments in 1924 up to $2,841,797,778 as compared with $1,108,021,565 in 1917.

ROSENWALD AIDS BREASTED'S WORK

Julius Rosenwald has donated $300,000 to be used by Prof. James H. Breasted in digging up and translating the inscriptions on the tombs of the Pharaohs of Egypt, it was announced Saturday by the board of trustees of the University of Chicago.

Prof. Breasted is now directing research work in the Valley of the Kings. Mr. Rosenwald visited the explorer during the winter and promised a substantial gift.

Prof. Breasted is negotiating with the Egyptian government for the establishment in Cairo of a museum for which John D. Rockefeller, Jr. has given $10,000,000.

CONGRESS STILL IS REPRESENTATIVE BODY

Notwithstanding the temptation to throw stones at congress, to vocalize and editorialize that body as a whole and the individual members, the people of the United States have a pretty decent and respectable legislative assembly. We all probably talk more than we should, and write more than we should. There is hokum and buncombe in many of the solemn phrases under the dome. Indeed, the president of the United States not so long ago, perhaps a bit indiscreetly, but with some truth, sought to advise the people of the country that all is not gold which glitters, and that now and then there was a little politics in even the most elaborate oratorical product in congress.

But the fact is congress is making good. When for example Republicans and Democrats are able to get together, as they did on the tax bill and enact such a measure, not as a political but as a patriotic act, then stand in photographic attitudes behind the president while he signed it, it is clear that representative government still lives.

AUSTRALIA FINES THOSE NOT VOTING

The Commonwealth of Australia, like the United States, has been bothered by the absentee voter, the citizen fully qualified who has ignored his opportunity. The average of eligibles who vote has been about the same in Australia as in the United States, but the fact that 40 per cent of the people refrained from attending the polls worried the Australians. At the last session of the Australian legislature, with very little discussion, a compulsory voting bill was passed imposing a penalty of ten dollars on those who failed to vote. At the last election ninety-one percent of those enrolled exercised the franchise and the credit is given to the new law. In New York the Legislative League has unanimously endorsed a bill in the state legislature at Albany which also fines non-voters ten dollars each.

FARMER IS POPULAR WITH POLITICIANS

All Trying to Devise Means for His Relief; May Result in Good Plan

Everyone wants to do something for the farmer and the situation is complicated by a divergence of ideas according to Senator William B. McKinley, who writes interestingly in the current issue of the National Republic of the agricultural situation as it affects the country at this time.

"What can we do for the farmer?" is the leading question of the hour, the senator says and he then discusses the situation as he sees it.

"The most important problem now before congress in my judgment is the question of farm relief," the senator asserts. "That it is an issue that must be squarely met is realized by not only the senators and representatives from the agricultural districts but by those who come from the urban and manufacturing sections. Something will be accomplished by the present congress I believe though the situation is a little bewildering through the presentation of so many plans to rescue the farmer from his present depression and the inability thus far of the many different friendly agencies

POSITION OF WOMAN IN BUSINESS SHOWN

The position of woman in industry and in the professions is no longer a matter of conjecture or surmise, it is an actual achievement: In 1910 there were 478,000 women school teachers as against 121,000 men; in 1920 there were 639,000 women, and less than 123,000 men. In 1910 there were 200,000 saleswomen and women clerks, against 938,000 men; in 1920 there were 531,000 saleswomen, against 1,050,000 men. The men increased by something more than ten per cent; the women nearly doubled. In clerical occupations, the proportion of women rose from 34.2 to 45.6 per cent; and in professional service, the proportion went up from 43.3 to 47.4 per cent. In the trades from 12.9 to 15.7 per cent. There has been, however, a decrease in the employment of women in domestic service from 67.1 to 64.2, and in manufacturing from 17.1 to 15.1, while in agricultural, forestry and animal husbandry from 14.3 to 9.9. When one contrasts these two sets of figures it becomes reasonably plain that Mary has come out of the kitchen.
