JUDGE REYNOLDS OF CIRCUIT COURT DIES

Well Known Jurist Passes Away Sunday at His Home in Rockford

Judge Earl D. Reynolds, of the 17th judicial district of the circuit court, died at his home in Rockford Sunday afternoon after an illness of a few weeks. He had suffered an attack of influenza some weeks back, and this, along with a weakened heart condition and liver trouble, was given as the cause of death. He was 55 years old.

Judge Reynolds had been on the bench about three years. He succeeded Judge R. K. Welsh, of Rockford, who resigned after years of service. Besides the widow, a daughter is left by the death.

Judge Reynolds was prominent in social as well as business life in Rockford. For years he was chief counsel for the Modern Woodman, and a vice-president of the Manufacturer's National bank.

Funeral services were held Tuesday.

PRISONERS AT FORT ESCAPE, RECAPTURED

Three prisoners, under guard, who had been working on the post cemetery at Fort Sheridan, on Saturday, knocked Sentry Debowski senseless with a rake, stripped him of his revolver, which he had fired at them twice, and then struck for the woods.

Of the three men, Leslie J. Leahy, convicted of desertion by a court martial jury, was awaiting the confirmation of this verdict from Washington while the other two, William W. Carman, 25, and John Houston, 34, were serving for minor infractions.

Authorities at the fort lost little time in throwing out patrols and notifying police departments with the result that the three men were captured in about an hour's time.

"If we are to take Great Britain's place as the foremost international banker of the world, there are many who feel that gradually we should have to abandon our policy of protection so that the world might pay us in goods as well as in gold. Can this be done without wrecking American industry, or, at any rate, without reducing our labor to a basis that would at least put our industries on a competitive basis with the cheap labor of Europe—particularly of Germany? Would this be possible without breeding discontent, revolt and perhaps revolution? Furthermore, would our government be ready to change its policy with regard to the protection of American interests abroad?"

Mrs. Eloise Whitney Wortley of Winnetka announces the engagement of her daughter, Katherine Whitney, to Charles Francis Pearce, Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Pearce of Glencoe.

MOTOR MAGAZINE TO HAVE LAKE CO. STORY

Will Devote Space In Its Columns to History of This Part of State

A meeting of the executive committee of the Lake county branch of the Chicago Motor club took place last week at the new office of the branch, 123 Water street, Waukegan. The meeting was called for the purpose of ascertaining ways in which the service of the club may be improved in the county.

An article on Lake county will appear in the June issue of Motor News, official magazine of the club according to John Dixon, manager of the Lake county branch. "Motor News has a circulation in excess of 50,000" said Mr. Dixon "and the publicity that the county will receive should be very valuable."

The article will be written by J. E. Bulger, associate editor of Motor News, who was in Waukegan last week with J. J. Cavanagh, secretary of the club. The history of the county will be outlined, the industries of the county will come in for notice, and the work of the Lake county branch will be explained.

It is flattering to be referred to as the "World's Banker," but W. L. Clause, the Pittsburg manufacturer of glass, doubts whether any thing very substantial is to be derived by the United States from that distinction. He says in Nation's Business Magazine:

Claimed the American farmer ought to have a place in the sun, but he will soon be looking for one in the shade.
