NUMBER 20

SOME THINGS ACCOMPLISHED

Raymond Carrol, Chief of the Washington Bureau of the Philadelphia "Public Ledger," feels that the 69th Congress has a good record of achievements and presents striking cases in support of the same in his newspaper. The outstanding accomplishments of the session as Mr. Carrol writes are in the order of their importance:

Enactment of the 1926 Revenue Bill, reducing the federal tax burden more than $350,000,000.

Ratification of the protocol of American adhesion to the Court of International Justice with safeguarding reservations.

Approval of settlements funding virtually all of the $12,000,000 debt owed to the United States by allied nations.

Passage of the so-called Railroad "Locarno Peace" Bill, establishing new machinery for settling labor disputes in transportation.

Enactment of a legislative program, authorizing expenditure of more than $150,000,000 over a five year period, to place American aviation in the front rank among nations of the world.

After these five legislative milestones, he says: "The record would deserve to be stamped as 'extraordinary' measures by the performances of peacetime congresses of bygone days, but there are a score of other measures, not so much in the limelight, but all important in their way, which have been put through the house and senate."

MAY BE IMPROVED

The postponement of the Rivers and Harbors Bill to the December session will work some hardships on certain projects, but cannot be regarded as a catastrophe. Inasmuch as the administration is committed absolutely to a program for the curbing of floods in the great rivers of the country and also for the general development and conservation of their waters, projects which of themselves require vast sums of money. Thus no special harm will be done by the few months delay. In fact, it will allow an opportunity to figure up and set down and compare costs and benefits and the net result will be a better bill even than the one now before congress.

WHERE PRIMARIES FAIL

Looking over the field of candidates, in this state, who have already asked for preferment at the hands of the people in the coming primaries, and at those threatening to run as independents, for offices ranging from minor political positions to those of United States congressmen and senators, most of us find our gorge rising at the preposterous assumption on the part of some of this human material, says the St. Louis Post Dispatch, and continues:

We regretfully begin to realize that it is our present system of primaries, once heralded as a cure-all for every evil in politics, which makes it possible for this spume of ignorance and sublimated mediocrity to rise up and demand that positions of trust, which require brains, ability and trained administrative capacity, be placed in their inept care.

The political boss, the ward heeler and the scheming politician are making no outcry against the present primary system. They have no desire to return to the days of open conventions, where, as leaders, viewed by the spotlight of pitiless publicity, they were forced from necessity to pick candidates who possessed qualifications which would attract public attention and secure popular approval.

They find the workings of the primary game much simpler. Certain in their knowledge that only a small part of the vote will come out in the primary, and that that vote is represented mainly by tried and true henchmen, the political leaders are assured, in advance, of the nomination of their pliant tools through the so-called popular voice of the people.

With our national, state, urban and municipal problems becoming more complex and abstruse each year—a situation which demands that these problems be handled by men of the highest attainments—are we willing to perpetuate a system of selecting men to represent our interests, most of whom we know to be of peanut mentality?

That the people will not vote for them in either party is evidenced by the steady shrinkage of the vote at the fall elections.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Highland Park, Ill., 381 Hazel avenue, a branch of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., holds services every Sunday morning at 10:45 and on Wednesday evening at 8 p. m., when testimonies of Christian Science healing are given. Sunday school meets at 9:30 a. m. and is open to pupils under the age of twenty.

Subject for next Sunday's lesson: "Life."

You are cordially invited to make use of the reading room, 361 Central avenue, which is open every week day from nine in the morning until six in the evening and on Sunday afternoon from 2:30 to 6:00.

"Sacrament" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, July 11. The Golden Text was from John 6:57, "As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father: so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat: this is my blood. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it; For this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins" (Matthew 26:26-28).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The true sense is spiritually lost, if the sacrament is confined to the use of bread and wine. The disciples had eaten, yet Jesus prayed and gave them bread. This would have been foolish in a literal sense; but in its spiritual signification, it was natural and beautiful" (p. 32).

Claimed the politicians are twisting facts, but probably they are merely shining them up a little to make them more presentable.

The Story of the Centuries

"The Man Nobody Knows"

by Bruce Barton

"Nobody has ever seen him laugh"

Certainly could never be said of this living, breathing Christ who sees life with your eyes, chats with your tongue, toils with your hands through page after page of the most amazingly unconventional story of the century.

Bruce Barton's "The Man Nobody Knows" is probably the most intimate, most understanding and understandable, and certainly the most unconventional conception of Christ ever penned.

Not a "life" of Christ, it prescinds both theology and tradition and sweeps aside all ordinary notions and conventions to bring to you, out of the mist of two thousand years, a most extraordinarily graphic picture of the Man. Christ as you would really know Him if you were walking and talking and toiling with Him at your shoulder.

Ever reverent and respectful, never does the author attempt to foist individual religious views upon the reader. Whatever your faith you will thoroughly enjoy and perhaps benefit from this refreshing story.
