FOUNDATION OF FAITH

Recently there appeared in the public prints two reassuring and important statements by men in high official positions and widely separated by distance. In England, Sir Thomas Luskin, Member of Parliament, is quoted by the Christian Science Monitor as having declared: "We neglect the Bible at our peril. It is the chart and compass without which the path of any man or any nation is a perilous and disastrous adventure." A few days later, speaking at a community meeting held by civic organizations of the Calumet region of Illinois and Indiana, near Crown Point, in the latter state, James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor in President Coolidge's Cabinet, urged upon the American people the wisdom of clinging steadfastly to the faith which they have inherited, and that veneration for the Bible which has been the basis of national character and national steadfastness. He declared that he did not regard seriously the assertion that the people are beginning to lose the fruits of Christian experience and Christian teaching, that they are losing their faith in immortality, and that they are ceasing to venerate the Bible. "It is probable," he declared, "that there never was an age when more people believed in religion than believe in it today."

Surely there never was a time when what might be termed practical Christianity was more generally exemplified than in this day and age. If this is true, it cannot be feared that the fruits of Christian experience and Christian teaching are being lost. "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another," is the teaching which has done much toward lifting the thoughts of men above sordid selfishness. The fruits of this teaching are everywhere apparent. Gradually this precept, exemplified in daily practice, will leaven the lump of discord and redeem the world.

To the careless and indifferent it may seem that the trend of popular thought and appreciation is away from rather than in the direction of a clearer realization of the truths which are the basis of the Christian faith and the foundation upon which rests those institutions marking national and individual progress. But this is patently a misconception. It requires no close analysis to disclose the fact that at every point along the way we are guided and reassured by those enduring landmarks, those beacons, which, throughout all the ages have shown unmistakably the way of progress and realization.

The English statesman and leader pauses to remind his friends that they must not lose their bearings in times of discouragement and trial. The Chart and compass which saves from disaster is available now. The American Labor Secretary, in close touch with the masses, finds reassuring promise in the fact that the people retain an abiding faith in Christianity.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Soul" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, August 15.

The Golden Text was from Psalms 33:20, "Our soul waiteth for the Lord: he is our help and our shield."

Among the quotations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul? (Matthew 16:24-26).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Keys to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The pains of sense are salutary, if they wrench away false pleasurable beliefs and transplant the affections from sense to Soul, where the creations of God are good, 'rejoicing the heart.' Such is the sword of Science, with which Truth-decapitates error, materiality giving place to man's higher individuality and destiny." (p. 265, 266).

There are still some confiding people who think the red cheeks are due to youthful health and exercise at the summer sports.

If you see weary looking people who are just able to get around, they have perhaps been away on a few weeks rest trip.

The government urges us to address our letters more accurately, but anyway our bills seem to come through on time.

Cash Balances this date $10,955.70* $2,070.17 $1,996.25 $1,000.00 $5,889.28*

I hereby certify that the above is a true statement of cash receipts and disbursements for the month stated, and that the cash balances on hand th's date are deposited to the credit of the city in duly authorized depositories.

Overdrawn
This statement shows the financial condition of the Treasury of Highland Park on July 31, 1926. You note the star (*) on cash balance under the "general" account, which means overdrawn ($10,955.70). The water revenue for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1926, was $61,125.89. $24,564.65 was collected from water rates from May 1, 1926, to July 31, 1926, and this amount was placed in the "general" account. The appropriation for running the water department this year is about $33,000.00. It is self-evident the water department is self-supporting if the income is kept in the water works account.

The other three accounts, "Garbage, Public Benefits and Sewer," have cash balances to their credit totaling $5,889.28. If you subtract this amount from the overdraw in the "general" account, there is a net overdraft of $5,889.28, taking into consideration all of the general funds of the city.

You will notice that the city has spent on July 31, 1926, $5,889.28 more than it had received into the treasury from all the enumerated and miscellaneous sources at that time.

Respectfully submitted,
HARRY PAUL, City Treasurer.
