UNIFORM GRADES IN EGGS SALE WANTED

Government Seeking Some Way to Eliminate Various Selling Evils

A visitor to the outskirts of Boston had his attention attracted to the display of eggs in front of a dealer's establishment. There were seven varieties of eggs, which included "fresh eggs," "strictly fresh eggs," "Western eggs," Cape Cod eggs, etc. Different parts of the country have in like manner made their own standards and created their own names for eggs. The United States department of agriculture has recently planned to reach every licensed egg dealer in the United States in an effort to establish through these a uniform system of grading. For that purpose the department has prepared a set of posters which show colored pictures of eggs of different qualities, and comparison of eggs as they look when candled. Specifications are furnished for each quality factor. The factors included are soundness of the shell, depth of the air cell, visibility and mobility of the yolk, firmness of the white and development of the germ. The standards provide for four qualities of clean, sound shell eggs, two qualities of dirty shell, and one quality of cracked shell. Six different types of inedible eggs are also pictured and described.

Developed the "Burbank potato," now universally grown, more productive and nourishing than the earlier kind. Evolved a new type of wheat that added millions of bushels a year to the world's crop.

Brought forth the California gladiolus, with 100,000 different shades. Made corn grow to a height of eight feet, with ten to fourteen ears to a stalk.

Removed the spines from cactus and made the plant bear pears. Removed the seeds from the orange, developed a seedless plum and a seedless grape.

Originated the beautiful Shasta daisy. Produced the arum which is known as "motten fire," his proudest work among the flowers.

DOWNSTATE ROADS IN BAD CONDITION

Motorists traveling to Springfield or points southwest are advised by the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor club to avoid route 4, which is impassable, and use route 26 to Urbana; then route 10 to Springfield. Route 4 is reported good to Lincoln, but south of Lincoln it is under four feet of water with no detour available. North of Springfield in the vicinity of the Sangamon river the route is impassable, has no detour. Between Springfield and East Saint Louis it is in good condition.

Route 8 is in passable condition between Peoria and Galesburg. It is closed between Yates City and Knoxville because of high water at Spoon river. Route 9 is open between Peoria and Canton. It is closed to travel at Spoo river, between Canton and Bushnell. There is some water on route 10 but not enough to hinder travel.

Route 24 is now open between Peoria and Springfield. On route 28 the new pavement east of Galva is in passable condition. On route 30 the dirt detour between Peoria and Wyoming is reported in fair condition.
