REGULAR MEETING OF BUSINESS MEN

was named to take the matter up with the city.

William Guyot made a very interesting and extensive report on the recent visit of himself and Howard Moran to Salvation Army homes in Chicago. His report is appended hereto.

It was decided to hold the annual staff party of the association in the Woman's club building, the same as last year. The date is to be arranged by the entertainment committee.

New members reported are Charles P. Hunter of the Hunter Radio Shop, J. A. Carqueville of Nash Sales and Jesse L. Smith, superintendent of schools of District 107. About 50 members were present Tuesday evening.

The report of Mr. Guyot and Mr. Moran on the Salvation Army tour precedes the annual campaign for funds in this county for the Army's benefit. The report follows:

Report on Salvation Army

As two delegates from the Highland Park Chamber of Commerce, we had the privilege of making a tour of four institutions conducted by the Salvation Army in Chicago for the benefit of the unfortunate and distressed humanity. Not only for Chicago alone, but for the northern Illinois counties.

Our first inspection was the Young Woman's Boarding at 51 W. Delaware place. This is a spot on the Salvation Army map that deserves commendation. What mental distress and anxiety is the portion of the young girl who has left all her relations and friends in the home town and travels to Chicago to earn her living, where perhaps the pay is larger and the chances of advancement greater; with what unknown dangers are her ways beset before she learns from bitter experience to take care of herself. For her protection and assistance, the Salvation Army has built this boarding home; a modern home, neatly furnished, with the best associations and environment, the loving care and aid of consecrated women to advise her and assist her to find employment.

She will find a clean, comfortable room. she may know a "home" and the best of meals. She will find laundry facilities to enable her to save this expense if she cares to, private parlors for her visitors, library, radio, piano, victrola, in fact everything that is included in a private home. Prayer service is conducted each evening but attendance is not compulsory.

No one can come under the influence of a Salvation Army officer without responding to his or her kindly sympathy and helpful service, not even young factor hands, poorly paid court clerks, etc., who live at this home kept for their use, where for an average of $7.50 per week, they may live in comfort and happiness, away from the associations and environments that lead to ruin.

Woman's Hospital

We were next taken to the Woman's Home hospital at 5040 North Crawford avenue, where the Salvation Army shelters from two hundred and seventy (270) to two hundred and eighty (280) unmarried mothers every year. We were first amazed at the size of this hospital. A beautiful structure covering a city block and secluded from casual overlooks so that the girls can enjoy outdoor recreation without embarrassment. There are eight doctors on the staff with a full personnel of nurses under the matron, staff-captain Julia Thomas. The large reception rooms are most tastefully furnished, and needless to say, as scrupulously clean as human ingenuity could contrive. As we went along from room to room, we came to the assembly hall, where some sixty-five girls were gathered. Quite cheerful sounds were heard as they were making clothes for themselves and their babies, or studying their lessons. You fathers and mothers may learn that the average age of these sixty-five girls were under the age of seventeen. It seemed as if we looked on a class of high school girls. Forty-three of these were mothers and the rest were awaiting the greatest ordeal likely ever to reach them, and at the age, under normal condition, where they would be playing with their dolls. The thought immediately occurred to us, these were life's tragedies, not through their own desire or waywardness, but through ignorance, lack of parental oversight, and perhaps greatest of all, lack of religious training. Twelve of these girls were under fourteen years of age and one was twelve.

Nursery

From here we went to the nursery where row upon row of little cots, each contained a morsel of humanity, starting under so severe a handicap, must fight its way up to mature citizenship with all that state conveys. Each of these babies, cared for under the most expert supervision, were as sweet, clean and cuddlesome as the most favored in the land. Tears came into our eyes unashamed as we visualized their helplessness and gratitude surged up in our hearts toward the Salvation Army for providing the helping hand to care for and protect them.

From our escort, we learned that the average length of a girl's stay was six months, during which time she was provided every requirement, food, clothing, doctors and nurses. All was hers so that she might be able

ZION LUTHERAN

German service, 10:30.
 English service, 11 p. m.
 Evening service, 8 p. m.
 Church school:
 Saturdays, 9 a. m.
 Sundays, 9:30.
 On the coming Sunday we shall celebrate our annual Mission Festival. At the morning services the pastor will preach, and in the evening the Rev. W. C. Greve of Orland, Ill., will occupy the pulpit. The condition of Synod's Mission treasury calls for a real generous offering this year.

This evening (Thursday) the Lutheran league will hold its regular meeting at the assembly room.

Next Thursday, the 21st, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid a Plunkett dinner will be served promptly at 6:30. At the same time the ladies will have their usual fall sale.

The Ladies' Aid of Zion Lutheran church on West Central avenue will hold their annual fall sale early this year, namely on the 21st of October. The usual hand-work will be offered for sale, and grab bags for those who like to buy something in the dark. The Dorcas circle will assist the Ladies' Aid by running a country store. At 6:30 a Plunkett dinner will be served.

to start life anew under the most favorable conditions. She is encouraged to retain possession of her baby and employment is found for her if she does not return to her relatives and friends; in no case is a girl dismissed from the home until suitable means of livelihood have been provided for both her and the child.

We then visited the "Out of Love" suite, a suite of rooms set aside for girls who have gone back into the every day life, at some time finds she needs shelter, it may be lack of employment or sickness of herself or baby, then the "Out of Love" suite opens its doors and she is home receiving, gratis, the fullest help and assistance that science and the kindly arms of the Salvation Army can give her.

Home For Men

We next visited the Industrial Home for Men. Here we found a bustling, bustling institution where men, who had been discarded elsewhere because of being crippled or too old, were daily employed by the Salvation Army and were busily engaged in bailing waste paper, rags and magazines which are given them by the public. Others were repairing furniture, beds, stoves, clothes, mattresses, etc. The paper and rags are sent to the mills and help toward this support and maintenance of this work. The ages of the men ranged from 88 years down. Each one is apportioned his class of work, in return for which he is provided with the necessities of life, food, clothing and lodging. Clean and comfortable beds, cozy lounging rooms and reading rooms for their leisure hours, substantial food served in a clean and sanitary manner, individual lockers for clothing and personal belongings, tub and shower baths are all provided for the convenience of those whom the world has discarded. The inmates come from all parts of the country and nearby territory and preference is shown to no individual but are each treated alike, regardless of race, color, creed or denomination.

Systematic and Efficient

During the hour of inspection, we were immediately impressed with the systematic and efficient manner in which each detail is looked after, to the end that each one of those poor, helpless and discarded wrecks of humanity find that there is still hope where there is life and that this hope has been kindled by the little army of service, the Salvation Army. No thanksgiving is uttered nightly by these soldiers who are daily toiling to convert taxonomers into taxpayers, worthless human waste material into useful agents of production, criminals into law-abiding citizens and are spreading joy into the hearts of the sick and distressed, the homeless, hopeless and helpless and to think that this same work is being carried on in 81 countries and colonies and in 44 languages.

We were then taken to the Day Nursery where working mothers leave their children in charge of the Salvation Army lassies, who care for, feed and amuse them until their mothers call for them in the evening. It does not need imagination to picture the relief from anxiety to the mother, nor the health and happiness of the child under such an arrangement. Picture yourself on the roof of a splendid open air playground with swings, and sand-pile, an indoor assembly room with slides and other apparatus, and a scientifically arranged plan of instruction and amusement that keeps every child happily and profitably using its time, finish off with three square meals served in the bright sunny dining hall and you have a vision of Christianity in action, doing real service, bringing real happiness to thousands who otherwise never would receive it, and a scientific betterment of child conditions among the tenements of incalculable benefit to Chicago. To us and to the nation, we urge the support of all for the Salvation Army carrying on this work and suggest that those who can should drop in to 2055 Normal avenue and see these things for themselves.

William Guyot,
 Howard Moran,
 Committee.

H. K. COALE DEAD; WELL KNOWN HERE

a bungalow and occupied it. He was one of the oldest and most experienced real estate dealers in the Chicago region and was regarded as an authority on land values and locations. He selected the site of Ravinia Park for the North Shore line when the park was established and also purchased much of the road's right-of-way. He also picked the site of the new high school athletic field and of the Highland Park hospital; having handled all the real estate business in connection with these matters. He was for several years a member of the board of education of school district 108.

In earlier years he demonstrated his inventive genius by planning and manufacturing a notably compact officers' mess cabinet for army use, which was widely used during the Spanish-American war. He was widely acquainted in army circles and had many friends among the officers.

Famous as Collector

It was in the study of bird life, however, in which he found his greatest interest and pleasure. He accumulated three notable collections during his life time. One he sold to the British museum and another to another museum. His own private collection which he kept in his own home comprises fully 10,000 birds from all parts of the world and is regarded by ornithologists as the finest and most complete private collection of birds of the world in the United States. Included in it are such rare specimens as the extinct American wild pigeon, of which he has two mounted, the trumpeter swan, the whooping crane and others as rare. He had discovered and named several new species and was regarded by experts in this line as one of the greatest authorities on birds in this country. Even foreign ornithologists came to counsel with him and exclaim over the extent and completeness of his private collection. He was a charter member of the American Ornithologists Union, of the Chicago Bird club and of the Wilson Ornithological club of Chicago. During his life he had made copious notes of his experiences and recently he began writing a book on the subject nearest his heart. He had frequently contributed valuable articles to various magazines devoted to bird life. He was an expert taxidermist and skillfully mounted skins of rare birds received from near and far.

He loved music and played the violin with considerable talent. He was a clever artist in freehand work and frequently drew marvellously life-like pictures of his birds.

Family History

Mr. Coale was first married in the early eighties to Miss Caroline Markham of California. Her death occurred in 1910 and in August, 1924, he married Miss Irma Burdette of Chicago, who survives. The children by the first marriage are Mrs. Helen Coale Stagg, Mrs. Mildred Coale Allen, Henry Kello Coale, III; a daughter, Lucille, died in infancy. Seven grandchildren are Caroline and George Dewey Stagg, II; Henry Kello Coale, III, Carlisle Coale, Grace Suzanne Coale, James Everett Allen and Peyton Skipwith Allen.

Man of Rare Character

Mr. Coale was a man of rare character, marked by the humanness and kindness of his nature. While not a member of a church his life was a truly christian type and in his character and deep interest in his family and friends the sterling qualities of his character were especially exemplified. He was a devoted and loving husband and father, a loyal friend, democratic, generous and self-sacrificing in his associations with his fellow men. Those who knew him best loved him most for his many fine traits and among these there is deep sorrow that his useful and valued life has reached its close. The entire community feels the loss which has fallen upon this fine family and sympathy for them is heartfelt.

Funeral Saturday

The funeral service will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the family home, 528 S. Linden avenue, and burial will be in the North Shore cemetery.

BETHANY

EVANGELICAL CHURCH
