Henry K. Coale
AN APPRECIATION

Many of the business friends and acquaintances of our late fellow-townsmen, Henry K. Coale, were surprised to learn from the recent obituary articles in the newspapers of his prominence in the world of ornithology. Even many of his closer friends were unaware of the extent and fame of his collection—the result of a lifetime of patience, study and enthusiasm,—work done largely outside of the hours of his regular business.

It was reserved for the intimate friends to know the real inner man and to appreciate his wholesome philosophy of living; his attitude toward life was fundamentally one of buoyant optimism. Experiencing his full share of human tragedy and troubles, he ever maintained a cheerful and genial exterior; always manifesting a kindly interest in the problems of his family and friends. He was naturally of a tender and sympathetic nature; he had a kindly sense of humor and keenly enjoyed all the good things of life. He possessed the true scientific mind and pursued with a scientist's enthusiasm, the activities of ornithology; collecting, preparing the skins; exchanging, labelling, cataloguing, corresponding, writing articles, receiving visitors and all the various and detailed requirements of his chosen avocation.

When a man has spent the greater part of his life in doing something really worth while, he has erected a monument to himself not only in the creative results of the work itself, but in the object lesson which such a life offers in true values and lasting influences for good. Such a man was Henry K. Coale.

GIRL SCOUT WEEK TO BE OBSERVED OCT. 23-30

Steady Growth of Movement Here; Ask Co-operation of Citizens

The Girl Scout movement in Highland Park is growing by leaps and bounds. A few years ago we were a mere handful. Today we number one hundred. The very fact that we may say with almost no exception, "Once a Scout, always a Scout," proves that we have faith in our movement and that we believe the principles which we have helped to form and which we are striving to express in our daily lives.

Once a year we set aside a week during which we make particular efforts to present these ideals to our own community. This year it comes October 23-30. Let us have your co-operation and interest. Come to our meetings and see what we are doing. Make yourself familiar with our laws and aims. Give us your criticism and advice for we have only begun our education in girl scouting. We need you today to make us better citizens tomorrow.

Mary F. Card,
Captain, Highland Park.

BOOKS AVAILABLE ON BETTER AMERICAN HOMES

Highland Park Library Offers Complete List for Home Builders; Gifts of Books

A set of the complete works of Count Lyof N. Tolstol was presented to the Public Library this week by Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Wurth of Highland Park. This set of books fills a long-felt want in the Library's collection, and comes most opportunely, at a time when there is a decided interest in things Russian—particularly in Russian literature, music, and art.

Another gift which has just been received is a copy of Halliburton's "The Royal Road to Romance," presented by Mr. W. E. Egan of Highland Park. Gifts of books were also received this week from Mrs. Harry A. Sellery and Miss M. C. Thomas of Ravinia.

A warm-hearted reception was given by the public to the "Better Homes Association" at the Highland Park Woman's club last week. To continue in a small degree the purpose of this association, and to further the interest of the community in planning new homes or making old ones more perfectly adapted to their needs and their comforts, a selected group of books on house-planning, house-furnishing, and allied subjects has been placed on one of the display shelves at the Public Library. If there is one piece of advice rather than another serviceable to a prospective home-builder, it is to plan. Pencils and papers are cheap and books on home-building are available at the Public Library. Materials and labor are not. Even before the prospective home-builder visits his architect, he should borrow from the Public Library some of the books listed below and read and plan before he signs his contracts. These books discuss both the architectural detail of the home and the furnishing of its rooms, and cover every step from the front porch to the back gate; and they deal not only with the rich man's acres but with the small house as well.

Crane—Everyman's House.
Seal—Furnishing the Little House.
Northend—Art of Home Decoration; The House-beautiful building annual for 1926.
