 These masterful men that dominate business and politics will probably go home and do just as their wives tell them.
 The old rags trade is said to have been hit by the scanty clothes worn by the women, but anyway the old junk business must be improved by the automobile smash-ups.

SAMUEL INSULL IS HOME FROM EUROPE

Samuel Insull returned Sunday to his new home near Libertyville, from his European vacation. He would not discuss his trip or business conditions abroad.
 From other sources it was learned Mr. Insull spent most of his time in Reading, a town about forty miles from London, and a spot dear to the public utility head, according to the Lake County Register.
 It was there Mr. Insull's father was wont to expound the scriptures to his flock. It is not known to many even among Mr. Insull's business intimates, that his father was a Congregational minister. He was not much of a stickler for the precise letter of church creeds. But the story is that he was a very fine type of minister, a sort of a free lance, and held in high esteem.
 His trip had no connection with the political fireworks in Illinois, the report says. Each year after he has checked up the $700,000,000 properties he dominates, he puts the world aside for a few weeks to hobnob with old acquaintances in Reading.
LAUNCH IS WRECKED AFTER HARD FIGHT
Waukegan Fishermen In One of Most Spectacular Battles In Lake History
 Caught in a sudden squall, the fifty foot gasoline launch Leona, owned by John Abrahamson and Peter Travaras, commercial fishermen of Waukegan, battled for hours against the elements and finally was wrecked on Monday night at ten o'clock at Wilmette. The ten hour fight for life waged by the crew of four men was one of the most thrilling in the history of the local fishing industry.
