REPORT INJUNCTION HALTS OCCUPANCY

Delay in occupying of the newly remodeled store rooms in the Goldberg building, where the Highland Park theater was formerly located, has resulted in many rumors regarding the matter, one of which is that the chain store which was to take over the new store has been enjoined by a court. The Goldberg building, which is alleged, had a provision in its lease of another Goldberg building to the effect that the owner should not lease any of this property, within 100 feet of the first chain store, to another similar business concern. The report could not be confirmed because of the absence from the city of the manager of the Goldberg estate.
