

Highland Park Wants a Change!

The people of Highland Park believe there is danger in having one self perpetuating group control the administrative offices of their city longer than twelve years and have voted to oppose extending this control to sixteen years. Furthermore, in any business, when employees make too many "blunders,"—"It's time for a change."

At the Primary Election last month, Highland Park citizens gave the Lewis candidates a total vote of 6951 votes while the administration candidates received only 5046.

Mr. Lewis and his associates stand on a clear platform of three points consistent with the fundamentals of American government and of sound business practice.

The Platform:

1. City Manager

An experienced, specially trained man on the job at the City Hall all day, every day.

2. Impartial Zoning Enforcement

To protect our homes. No favoritism. At least ten violations permitted by the present administration.

3. Abolishment of Fees

Sound business methods in paying city employes. No extra fees which taxpayers must add to special assessments.

The Ticket:

FOR MAYOR

BENJAMIN F. LEWIS

Experienced in municipal finance. Worked out the plan for financing the Glencoe and Waukegan water filtration plants. Honest, honorable, calm in the face of mud-slinging, capable. Polled 545 more votes than his opponent at the primaries.

FOR COMMISSIONERS

LYLE GOURLEY

Led the entire primary in the number of votes received. His business is in Highland Park. Knows local conditions and works consistently for the good of the city.

NANINE G. HOPKINS

Experienced in State Welfare work, Red Cross work and executive work in Highland Park women's civic organizations. Highland Park women should have representation.

WM. KRUMBACH

A successful Highland Park business man who is in close touch with local conditions.

JOHN OLIVER

An old resident of Highland Park, known for his administrative ability and civic interest. A retired business man who spends all of his time in Highland Park.
