NORTH SHORE SUBURB AT NORTHFIELD, PLAN

Geo. F. Nixon & Co., founders of New Town Near Evanston In Skokie Valley

field, close in to Chicago on the Skokie Henry Hanson. 14 Valley extension of the North Shore

Chicago offices have been directed tion at the dignity and beauty of the that there is nothing quite like it in the metropolitan area, are the found- bers to worship in a body at the to manufacture but will be more ers of the new town. Right at the Presbyterian church on the Sunday economical to operate, the statement Skokie valley station and near Evanston, Wilmette and Winnetka, the Nixon company has given to Northfield the name of "super suburb."

Ideas that are scientific as well as lack of pay drawers. unique have been used in laying out this new townsite, it was learned. Embodied in its plan are features which are expected to set a new standard for residential suburbs. The experiences of other communities, their successes as well as their mistakes, have been studied by the engineers' who have brought the plans for Northfield to completion.

The town is laid out around a civic center, or village green, which is only a stone's throw from the North Shore station. This public square is flanked by streets 100 feet wide and it is here and only here that the business section of the town will be located. Radiwide streets, interspersed with parkways, all elaborately landscaped.
